IN THE HAMPTONS

Visitors begin their fun on the sun splashed mats of the driving range, where the Hamptons' most dedicated golfers flex their muscles and polish their skills. Our ever improving driving range is complete with 75 stations, target greens, bunkers and putting green.

If playing golf is your game, test your skills on our beautiful Nine Diamonds executive course. The fairways are open and wide, perfect for all levels of play.

You can take a break and dine at the locally renowned Fairway Restaurant where breakfast, lunch or dinner is served all day long. Rated best burger in the Hamptons by Time Out magazine.

Take a lesson—which offers yet another way to improve your game from beginner to aspiring professional. Private lessons, group clinics and golf schools for adults and juniors are available 7 days a week.

From Sunrise Over The Ocean

To Sunset On The Intracoastal.

Introducing The Magnificent Tower II.

Rising majestically between the Ocean and the Intracoastal, Toscana's magnificent Tower II will offer the most spectacular floor to ceiling water views ever witnessed.

Here in a 17-acre environment of elegance, luxury and romanticism, residents of these fabulous new two and three bedroom residences, from 2,315 sq. ft. to 3,493 sq. ft., will enjoy many exquisite amenities. The Grand Piazza's five acres of landscaped beauty include an estate-manicured lawn, heated swimming pools, spa, and tennis courts. There are brick-paved walkways with trellised canopies and fountained alcoves. The fabulous, recently completed Ocean Club is reminiscent of a Tuscan villa and serves as an emotional touchstone for both celebration and relaxation — all just steps away from the ocean.

Toscana residents are serviced by a full staff of professionals, including concierge and valets. They enjoy the convenience of on-site fitness and business centers, billiard lounge, and party room.

Toscana's wonderful Highland Beach location, on the Boca Coast, is near excellent restaurants, diverse shopping and Boca Raton's many cultural events.

Two and three bedroom residences are pre-construction priced from the $400,000s to $2 million.

Toscana's sales office is located within Tower I, at 3700 South Ocean Boulevard in Highland Beach. Telephone 561-278-9933 or toll free 888-278-9933.

TOSCANA

OCEAN CLUB RESIDENCES ON THE BOCA COAST

Success of Tower I Inspires Tower II.

Due to Tower I's unprecedented success, Toscana's second tower is underway earlier than anticipated. For those desiring immediate occupancy, however, Tower I is open and ready for move-in right now! Even with 90% of these wonderful residences sold out, Tower I still offers a few select residences with spellbinding Ocean and Intracoastal views.

LIFE INSURANCE. THE INVESTMENT ALTERNATIVE THAT ALWAYS PAYS. GUARANTEED!

MEET BARRY KAYE CLU, INSURANCE AGENT EXTRAORDINAIRE!

If you have attended a Barry Kaye seminar in the past you know that he is one of the most knowledgeable, eloquent, energetic and impassioned speakers you will ever meet. Because he dares to be different, his strategies have forever changed how financial and estate planning are done.

Having spent 38 years in the business, Barry Kaye, who received his Chartered Life Underwriter (CLU) degree from The American College, is the best-selling author of eight books on the subject of estate tax planning and life insurance.

He has appeared twice on the Today Show. His original concepts have been featured in ads in The Wall Street Journal, Forbes and other national publications.

Since he refuses to use cookie cutter concepts, Barry Kaye has succeeded in making and saving fortunes for America's wealthiest families. And he can do the same for you! Why call anyone but the original?

AVOID ESTATE PLANNING ERRORS THAT CAN DRAMATICALLY DEVALUE YOUR ESTATE

Whether you're worth $2 million or as much as $2 billion, let Barry Kaye's unique new concepts work for you. If you cannot attend this seminar, call Fern Kaye Tessler, CLU at 1-888 693-4374. and request a FREE consultation with an associate or with Barry Kaye, either on the phone or in person.

July 4th SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Bulldozers Come To Sagaponack And Tear Down Summer Homes To Make Way For Potato Farms

By Dan Rattiner

The other day I was driving through Sagaponack and as usual not the continuing changes that are going on there. There are giant new summer homes going in and more of the potato farm fields going up for sale. And I imagined the time in the year 2018, when practically all of Sagaponack will be city people's summer homes and there is only one farm left and an amazing thing happens in the American economy.

In downtown Manhattan, Wall Street collapses. At the same time medical science discovers that the secret of doubling your life span is potatoes.

It is a beautiful summer day, four o'clock in the afternoon, and some rich stock brokers are sitting around the pool when the door bell rings and standing on the front deck is the man the owners of this home have been dreading.

"Everybody out," the court officer says. "The bulldozer will be here in ten more minutes."

The summer people gather their belongings, throw sandwiches in a wicker basket, wake the weekend guests who are still sleeping off a hangover from the party the night before and they all flee out the door to their Mercedes, BMWs and Lincolns. In minutes they are away and down the road. Way off in the distance behind them they now hear the chilling crunching sound of the bulldozer, driven by a descendent of one of the local farmers, smashing through the exercise room, the Jacuzzi, and the media room. Another house down. Before morning the planters will have turned over the rich Bridgehampton loam and sewn the first crop.

As Sagaponack slowly falls to the farmers, a group called Save Our Summer People is formed they hold their first meeting in the still standing vacant grand ballroom of the late and bankrupt Ira Rennert.

"There is great tradition here," says one of the stockbrokers. "Kurt Vonnegut lived here. Rona Jaffe."

"Don't forget Truman Capote," someone piped up from the back.

"It was not just a bunch of us stockbrokers," said the stockbroker leading the meeting.

"Don't forget Bianca Jagger lived here," said somebody else.

The wheels are put in motion to approach the state about allocating money to purchase and save the homes of the summer people. A fifty million dollar war chest can be put together by the people in this room., but as the local assemblyman points out, it is

Dan's Papers is delivered to 400 locations in Manhattan, but one of them isn't Fille Ponti at 39 Desbrosses Street just off Canal. Yet, when you go in there, there are Dan's Papers on all the tables. We spoke to Manager Taso Sengos who confirmed it. Go figure!

It may seem odd but there's going to be a fund-raiser at the home of Francesco and Marina Galesi in Southampton on August 18 to raise money for the Hearst Castle in California. Why does the Hearst Castle, one of the largest home in the country built in the 1920's need private funding? As Anne Hearst told me, the castle has been given to the state of California nearly fifty years ago, but the state's yearly restoration budget wouldn't cover much more than just repairing a major art work on the property. Only eighty couples will be seated at the Galesi estate for the fund-raiser. Co-chairs are Princess Yasmin Aga Kahn, George Plimpton, Francesco and Marina Galesi and Anne Hearst.

Who's going to be admitted this year to the exclusive, exclusive Southampton Bathing Corporation? The membership meeting is coming up and twenty-six have applied. Among those with the best shot are Christina Greevan who owns the Manhattan File magazine, Francesca Stanfel, Wendy Vanderbilt Lehman and Leslie Banker. Maybe because of her last name.

Ron Perelman of East Hampton and actress Ellen Barkin are reportedly married after a long and well documented and loving courtship. We wish them the best.

Don't go to Sean Puffy Combs house this July 4th for a party. He didn't apply for and wasn't given a permit to hold one.

Last Friday night, East Hampton's Steven Spielberg was at the First Annual Hollywood Hall of Fame Awards, specifically to honor John Williams, the composer who did Jaws and Jurassic Park for Spielberg and perhaps most famously Star Wars for Spielberg. "I wouldn't be here if it weren't for him," he said. "He's as responsible for my career as me. He's my brother, father confessor and my conscience, he's my maestro."

Hamptonites at the Council Fashion Designers of America Awards the other night included, Donna Karan, Betsey Johnson, Ellen Barkin and Ronald Perelman, Ben Stiller, Anna Wintour, Sean Puffy Combs and many others.

SOME CALL IT HEAVEN, YOU'LL CALL IT HOME.

Inspired by a majestic waterfront and high mountain views, prestigious Mill Pond Farm is a gated estate community that offers a lifestyle for a select few.

With only 23 sites on 350 acres, the Mill Pond Farm life gives its residents estate living in world renowned, architecturally built homes on an average of 15+ acres with pristine beaches that include private cabanas and boat dockage, as well as vacation activities like canoeing, cross country skiing, tennis, water skiing, and trail hiking.

Combining the elegance and privilege of a European estate with the summer fun of Southhampton, Mill Pond Farm is only 1½ hours from New York City on easy to travel highways in lower Connecticut.

Building packages are available using a select group of professionals.

AT STONY BROOK AN INCREDIBLE JOURNEY BEGINS WITH A CARDBOARD BOAT.

The annual student/faculty Roth Pond Regatta. The rules are simple: all boats must be homemade, and only six materials can be used—only two of which, duct tape and paint, resist water. The rewards are better: a chance to develop skills that will help the student to navigate through college.

In many ways, the Regatta is a metaphor for how we approach education at Stony Brook. Just as faculty and students must work together, the undergraduate experience must be a collaborative process between learning and life.

This kind of thinking has led to Stony Brook's becoming one of the top public research universities, as shown in a recent study published by Johns Hopkins University Press. In only forty years we've become the national model for undergraduate education at a research university.

This kind of environment has led to some of the world's most important discoveries. More importantly, it leads to a wonderful college experience. After all, the more you learn from the journey, the more you appreciate the destination.

Even in a cardboard boat.

THERE'S A LOT TO DISCOVER AT STONY BROOK

- The most distant galaxies were discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- The cause of Lyme disease was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- Bar code technology was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- The link between smoking and emphysema was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- The world's most primitive fossil bird was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.

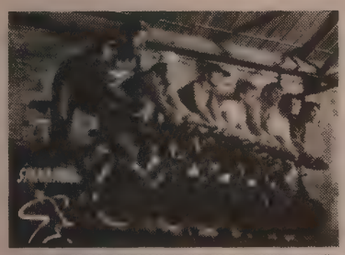

Stony Brook is an affirmative action/equal opportunity educator.

On the merry, merry month of May, walking on the street one day. Low and behold a pit stop at the cash machine changed our lives. I (Mona Kuper) waiting patiently for my sister Dora Kessler (Now known as Edible Portraits Ltd.) She of course was taking her time in the bank (SaturdayATM). Standing outside the bank I was browsing thru my gift brochures I had picked up. Suddenly a man walking and talking intently on his cell phone turned to me with a stare and a smile. He proceeded to sit on the ledge of the railing to the bank. He said "Hello"! I was very impressed to the extent that he was willing to extend that he was willing to compromise his call and asked me if I were in the giftware business. I replied, "No just browsing". (Sis returned), He anxiously told us about a friend the engineer who patented and successfully perfected his invention for duplicating photos and logos with edible ink on chocoalate.

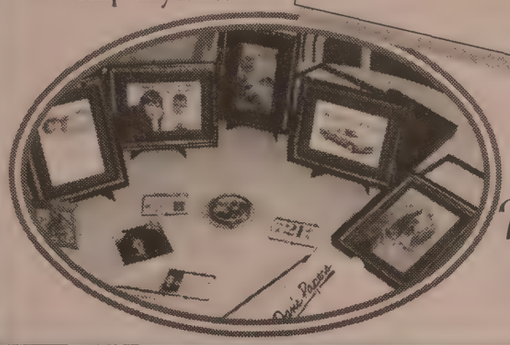

We imediately loved the idea and concept, Dora and I were both ready for a change in our lives.

Sometimes when you wish for what you want, you may get it.

Well we proceeded and were introduced to this genious and his financial backers. They asked us to join hands and promote this wonderful product. We then did some leg work of our own. We've introduced this to our friends in the entertainment field, business moguls and the baby boomers. Our response phenominal as we expected.

Now with Edible Portraits Ltd. business deals are now sweeter, and parties are more personal.

GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S., and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

Dr. Janet Stoess-Allen, our orthodontist, believes in early orthodontic intervention for those children who will clearly benefit from it. Early treatment presents the opportunity to influence jaw growth in a positive manner, lower risk of trauma to protruded upper incisors, correct harmful oral habits, and improve esthetics and self-esteem!

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed - a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling — and their parents, too!

Why did Tiger choose TLC?

He insisted on seeing the best.

When it came to improving his vision, Tiger wasn't about to play games. So the world's best golfer took dead aim at the world's best laser vision correction center, TLC Laser Eye Centers. After all, TLC doctors have done more successful laser eye surgeries than anyone. Anywhere. "I felt TLC had the experience and track record I demanded," says Tiger, who now sees better than 20/20. "I am extremely pleased with the results."

So are his fans. Following surgery, Tiger went on to win 5-straight official PGA tournaments. A feat that hasn't been duplicated in over 50 years. "Thanks to TLC, the hole and everything now looks bigger," says Tiger. Including his winnings.

When it comes to your vision, insist on the best. For a free consultation, call 1-888-CALL-TLC.

SERENITY. CHALLENGE. ROBERT TRENT JONES JR.

A GREAT COMBINATION.

Designed by world renowned architect Robert Trent Jones, Jr., Long Island National Golf Club is destined to become the premier public golf facility on Long Island.

Located just minutes from the Hamptons, Long Island National is surrounded by scenic farmland and historic vineyards, sheltered from the distractions of everyday life. Guaranteed to challenge players of all skill levels, this unique par-71, 6,800 yard course offers a spectacular mix of links and traditional design elements. Dramatic rolling hills covered by tall fescue grasses frame each hole, while more than 55 sand bunkers and three large lakes come into play to test each player's shot making ability.

Call us today to book a tee time, corporate membership or outing and experience a public course with the look, feel and amenities of the finest private clubs.

Overseas moves aren't foreign to us.

At Despatch Moving & Storage, we're as experienced at moving you across the Atlantic or across the Island. (In fact, we recently won a Customer Quality Achievement Award from North American Van Lines.)

We know the language. The tariffs. The legalities. The subtle nuances of overseas moves. We have to. Because not only do we move complete households, we move decorators, interior designers and international art collectors. You'll find that we're as sensitive to your possessions as we are to your specific needs.

If you're considering an overseas move, consider Despatch. In fact, the thought of using someone else is foreign to us.

Au revoir.

The New York Times

$25 and Under | Eric Asimov

From the "now you see it, now you don't" department

For years, the southeast corner of 75th Street and Third Avenue was held down by Juanita's, a Tex-Mex margarita mill with the kind of enclosed sidewalk cafe that was popular in the 1970's. Then Juanita's closed and the space was completely transformed by its new owners into Bistro le Steak. Can you guess the specialty?

The new restaurant has been open six weeks, but it looks as if it's been there forever, or at least since the 70's. Judging by its brass fittings, burnished wood, tile floor and artificially tarnished tin ceiling, the owners dutifully followed the outline for How to Look Like a Parisian Bistro.

It's tempting to pass off Bistro le Steak as a too obvious marketing scheme. The father-and-son owners, Herb and Greg Wetanson, also own Dallas BBQ and Tony's Di Napoli, more noteworthy as concepts than as restaurants. And French is hot now, right?

The surprise is that Bistro le Steak hardly strikes a false note. It does looks Parisian. The friendly staff conveys warmth and informality, and the food is both good and an excellent value. By staying away from the most expensive steak, it is possible to keep the tab under $25.

Bistro le Steak

1309 Third Avenue, at 75th Street, Manhattan, (212)517-3800.
Best dishes Country pâté, mussels, shrimp St. Tropez, house salad, Parisian cut sirlion, filet mignon, chocolate cake, lemon tart
Price range $20 to $30

Hours 5 P.M. to midnight daily
Wheelchair access Entrance is one step up, restrpoins are downstairs

The restaurant wisely sticks to the basics: country pâté ($5) is a good place to start. The big serving actually includes both a moist pâté and a smooth, flavorful duck terrine, surrounded by a little salad and cornichons. Mussels ($6.50) are delicate, steamed in white wine and garlic, a sauce that calls out for sopping it up with bread. Shrimp St. Tropez ($7.50) is another big appetizer, the shrimp sautéed with garlic, tomatoes and artichoke hearts. I prefer the house salad ($4.50), with its mustardy dressing, over a sampling of marinated vegetables ($5.50).

Yes, the specialty is steak, with five choices. My favorite is the least expensive, the Parisian cut sirlion ($14), firm and ful of beefy flavor, served with a mountain of wonderfully crisp, salty fries and a pitcher of Provencal mustard-and-white-wine sauce that seemed superfluous. I didn't try the New York cut sirloin, which was too expensive for this column at $20 and is simply a bigger steak.

The New York rib eye ($16) is quite good, though not so flavorful as the sirlion. Filet mignon, offered plain ($16) and au poivre ($17), is perfectly tender, though also not so beefy. It's a better candidate for Provencal sauce.

The menu also offers poultry, fish and pasta alternatives, and though I might be tempted by a main course order of the mussels with fries ($12), why stray from the specialty?

I wish wines were as good a value as the food. The Brouilly, Château de la Chaize 1994, is excellent, but $21 seems too much for a bottle of Beaujolais.

Desserts are terrific. I especially liked the rich, dense chocolate cake with dried bernes hidden in it ($5) and the exuberant lemon tart ($5)

While Bistro le Steak seemed to sprout from nowhere, its owners say they were inspired by Le Steak, a similarly simple restaurant that had a 25-year run on Second Avenue near 57th Street Maybe this bistro does have history on its side.

LAURA HARTWIG:

CHILEAN CULT WINE

AS VINEYARD OWNER, I'M WORRIED.

Dave Sokolin

Here are the reasons I feel threatened by the wines of Laura Hartwig:

- Lower labor costs in Chile allow Laura Hartwig to make world class wine inexpensively.
- New strategy in Chilean wine: Hartwig focuses on the super-high-end. They can do it for less.
- The only pre-phylloxera, original French vines left in the world. Including France and Cali!!

1998 Laura Hartwig "Gran Reserva" Cabernet $185 - 6 pack

18 Six Packs Available

is this wine Baby Bryant family? It has richness and concentration that you won't find in Most power-packed California favorites, and surprising finesse and depth. Long finish and high extra action of fruit are key here. Sounds like a Leoville Lascases or Cali Cult review.

REMEMBER, HARLAN ESTATES COST $25 PER BOTTLE 6 YEARS AGO...

1998 Laura Hartwig Chardonnay $135 case $11.25 BTL

Simply put, the best $11 white wine we've found. If you've liked expensive California Chardonnay and have appreciated French Meursault, you will find the richness and quality of this wine familiar. HERE IS THE POINT: Most inexpensive wines taste cheap. They have some great qualities, but you can just tell. This wine fools the experts. Expect to see this INCREDIBLE FIND on the pages of the Wine Spectator any day.

1998 Laura Hartwig Cabernet $135 case - $11.25 BTL

If you like: Phelps Insignia
Silver Oak
Caymus
Montelena

You will not only like this wine, you will question your high-end buying practices...
This wine tastes similar to a good NAPA CABERNET at a fraction of the price. Really.

Perhaps it is: Boutique winery care, similar in size to Peter Michael. 2000 cases produced. Perfect climactic conditions for Cabernet. Expensive French Oak Barrels...

Help Us Fill In The Blank....

The Old Whalers Church of Sag Harbor is a "community home" for the East End: A National Historic Landmark (1845), a Food Pantry for all in need, a home for Presbyterian as well as Conservative Synagogue services, a meeting place for Alcoholics Anonymous, as well as the Ecumenical Youth Group (open to all, members and non-members alike), to name just a few.

The Old Whalers Landmark Restoration Campaign needs your help as we approach an important threshold in the Master Plan for full restoration of this landmark. Accomplishments of the last year: 1999/2000, brought us to this point:

- Restoration/Reconstruction of the 1899 Community House/Chapel.
- New York State Grant plus required matching funds received for full restoration/reconstruction of the main sanctuary windows.
- Formal adoption of the restoration/reconstruction plan for the steeple.
- Field verification of feasibility and receipt of preliminary proposals from major cellular carriers for "invisible" installation of antenna.

With the Main Entry Facade, Main Sanctuary, Roof, and Gutters previously completed, the final and most heroic endeavors of the plan are before us. These include the steeple with its related space impacts down to the foundation and, most importantly, the coordinated infrastructure upgrades for the church as a whole.

In this final stage, we are reaching beyond the walls of The Church to the Community we serve, calling for the shared preservation of this unique legacy. Please contribute or join us as a partner in this shared adventure.

merely a drop in the bucket when the farmers can buy up the land for six million dollars an acre. All they'd save is twelve acres.The Save Our Summer People group goes to Town Hall seeking tax breaks, particularly inheritance tax breaks.

"Our children will lose their homes, if we try to pass them on to them," says one man who for some reason is an advertising executive. "They'll have to sell them to pay the taxes."

The town comes up with the idea to buy the farming rights to the homes. If the summer people agree to not sell to farmers and leave their summer homes intact forever, the town will exempt them from excessive inheritance and real estate taxes. The county wades in with its own plan. They'll buy the farming rights, outright. The summer people get a windfall of money and lose the right to ever sell out to the farmers. But the county plan is effective for only a small area. The money involved is too great.

Pretty soon, practically all of Sagaponack is rows and rows of potato fields, stretching from the Montauk Highway all the way down to the backs of the dunes at the beach. In the early dawn when the sun comes up, great mists of steam rise from these fields and up on the Montauk Highway the cars have to turn on their headlights and go slowly to get through. Artists and writers come from thousands of miles away to rent rooms in the farmhouses and are inspired to paint the scenes they see. Novelists rent rooms and write great literature. Pretty soon, the last summer home is bulldozed down and the Manhattanites that owned it, tears in their eyes and their possessions strapped in battered Louis Vutton luggage to the roof of their twenty-seven year old Volvo, drive slowly through the fog, heading back to New York. They stop at a Burger King drive thru.

"Welcome to Burger King," the metallic voice says over the speaker. "May I help you? We have a special today on fries. Just $6,000 for a large and only $1,000 more to super size it."

Food Fight

Stop Eating Those Delicious Chocolate Chip Cookies (If U Can) And Support Kathleen King

By Dan Rattiner

You've probably seen the farm trucks by the side of the road with the big banners on them that read BOYCOTT KATHLEEN'S COOKIES UNTIL KATHLEEN IS BACK. You've probably seen the pickets walking back and forth in front of the Kathleen's Cookies Bakeshop on North Main Street carrying signs that say about the same thing.

Where did Kathleen go? you might ask. When will she be back?

That, it turns out, depends on a whole lot of things. Not the least of which is how four different lawsuits turn out. It is quite a story. And it involves a whole lot of cookies.

The facts, leading up to about January of 1999, are not in dispute. Sometime in 1993, Kathleen King hired a man named Robert Weber to be the bookkeeper for her company. Kathleen had been baking chocolate chip cookies almost all her life, having begun while still in grammar school by baking them in her mother's kitchen on a Southampton farm, then selling them at a stand along the side of the road. Soon she got serious and made it a real busines. She's been in business for nearly thirty years.

Today, her cookies are legendary, and, for many, no trip to the Hamptons is complete without the purchase of a dozen of her cookies, available in almost any specialty or grocery store for about four dollars and fifty cents.

Over the years, I am sure that Kathleen had considered making Kathleen's Cookies a national brand. There had been Famous Amos. In another field there had been the Colonel's Kentucky Fried Chicken. There was Paul Newman's Salad Dressing. In any case, sometime in 1998, Robert Weber convinced Kathleen to go into partnership with him and his brother. They'd each own a third of the business. And to induce Kathleen to take a minority share, he said he and his brother would pay her about $800,000, due in monthly notes of about $10,000 each. Furthermore, they would pay her a salary to run the bake shop. And her remaining 1/3 interest in the business could be worth millions once the Webers took the product national. Kathleen signed.

Kathleen continued to run the business in Southampton.

The Webers negotiated to have a plant in North Carolina make the cookies in large quantities according to Kathleen's recipe. And for about six months all was well.

There are differing stories about what happened next. Kathleen, running the store in Southampton, says she found there was not enough money kept in her check-book for her to pay off all her vendors. The rest of the money was going to North Carolina. And from a Kathleen's Cookies account in North Carolina, she was receiving her $10,000 monthly purchase payment. In other words, the Webers were paying her to buy 2/3 of Kathleen's Cookies with the money that was coming in to Kathleen's Cookies. And they were leaving Kathleen to hold off the vendors. They were buying her business, leveraged buyout style, with no money of their own. Where was their money? She had never agreed to this.

The Webers, meanwhile, told her to read what she had signed. The assets of Kathleen's could be used as collateral for the $800,000 purchase price. It was right there in black and white.

And so Kathleen filed a lawsuit. That's not what that meant at all. The deal was off. Kathleen wanted her business back. She hired a lawyer and the lawyer served the Webers a summons. They would see them in court.

In the meantime, of course, Kathleen was still the CEO and President of Kathleen's Cookies and unless the Webers wanted to try to fire her, she had a considerable number of things she could do.

In a series of counter lawsuits, the Webers contend that over the next month or so Kathleen took in the cash and just failed to put the money in that bank account where they could get it. They owned 2/3 of the business. It was their money. Instead, they claim, Kathleen paid herself and otherwise – and there is no other way to put this – stole the receipts. Kathleen says she used this cash to pay the bills. They were screwing up the business. She was fixing it.

An emotionally intense scene took place in the bakeshop this January. The Webers came into the Bake Shop to confront Kathleen and take their receipts, the Webers say, and Kathleen threatened them. Also, the staff of Kathleen's, loyal to the founder, backed Kathleen up. The wife of one of the Weber brothers even said that Kathleen's behavior during that confrontation frightened her and made her fear for her life. She went to the police and got an Order of Protection. (This part of the matter was recently dropped, with the fear for her life being replaced, according to the court papers, with fear for her livelihood.)

Ultimately, with more lawsuits filed, Kathleen

was fired as CEO and President, and with court orders indicating that Kathleen's days at the helm were numbered if that is what the Board of Directors wanted (Webers 2, Kathleen 1). Kathleen left peacefully and her staff either walked out or was fired, or both, and new people stepped in to take over.

A temporary restraining order was now obtained by the Webers preventing Kathleen from entering the premises (even though she is also the owner of the building and therefore the landlord) in order to avoid further disruption and confrontation.

Also in the papers is a claim by the Webers that Kathleen deliberately provided an inaccurate recipe to the North Carolina manufacturers, in an attempt to sabotage the operation. The Webers caught this subterfuge, they say, and so the cookies remain fine. Kathleen says they are not fine. Though she says she never supplied a false receipe, she says the Webers are using the wrong chocolate chips.

And so the battle continues. Recently, the Webers filed a lawsuit claiming that Kathleen is intent on destroying the business and has caused them so much harm that they are already out a million dollars, with the losses growing. They are suing for a million.

Kathleen denies the charge. But it is true that if the business did collapse, the corporation would go under, and, out of the same building, she could, from scratch, no pun intended, start over.

Most recently, the Webers filed papers asking that a judge order the picketing stopped and the farm truck signs be taken down. Kathleen's lawyer replied that the people picketing and making signs are simply exercising their first amendment rights. They want Kathleen back. And they have every right to forcefully say that. This is America.

I described all of this to a friend of mine who is an attorney and he said that he thought the Webers will probably very soon wish they had never met Kathleen King. Call it something that looks like a hostile takeover. Call it something that Kathleen can make, bake or break. Call it the wrath of a woman scorned. Call it a woman who won't put up with this – and they own 2/3 of this and they can't/won't let go.

Or call it – could this be? – is it possible? – one of the biggest public relations stunts ever designed to bring national attention to a regional cookie, with the Webers and Kathleen and the PR genius meeting at midnight every night to plot the next chapter. No. Impossible.

Eat a cookie. Try a corner. But just eat one. A nibble.

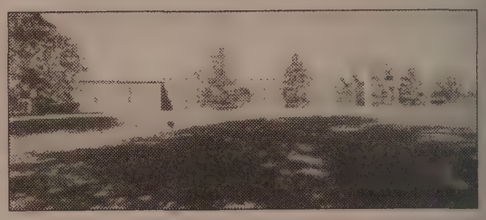

Support Kathleen. Make the rest of the cookies, since they come in a dozen, last for a long, long time.

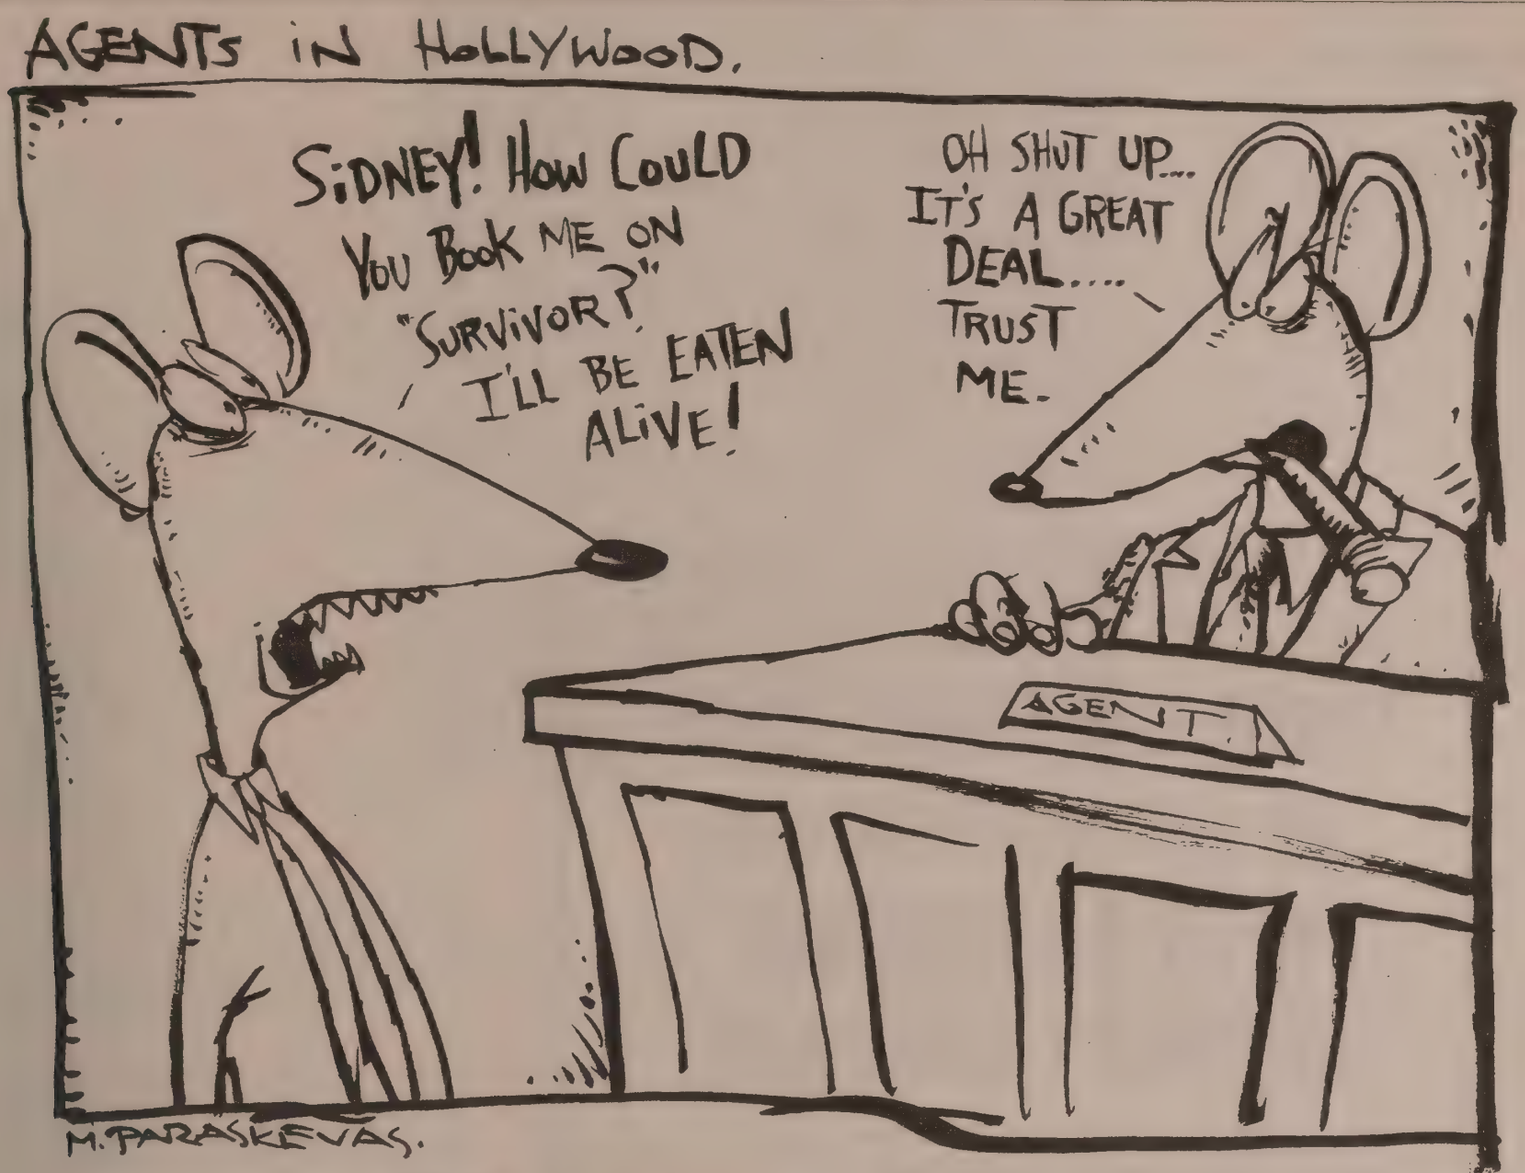

I support Kathleen, (I know, like and admire what she has done – the Webers I don't know from Adam) but it's so hard not to buy the cookies. One night, I ate a whole bag, a dozen of them and then sat down and had a good cry. I couldn't help it. I'm so sorry.

Interestingly, a week ago, I was sent a bag of cookies by Fletcher's, a store and bakeshop on County Road 39 which sells not only cookies but homemade ice cream, candies, malteds cakes and other treats. There was a note inside. "Hope you enjoy these." No reference to Kathleen. Good cookies. Thanks.

I love chocolate chip cookies. •

Who Wants To Be A Millionaire? Is Sued For A Million Dollars And Loses Ground To Survivor

By Dan Rattiner

So, here's my idea. If the TV show Who Wants To Be A Millionaire, goes on long enough, and I mean over years and decades, pretty soon everybody in the country will have won and we'll all be rich.

To accomplish this of course, we all have to make a long term commitment to the show so that every Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday when it's on we're in there watching it and when the ratings go up to thirty, forty or fifty or whatever percent it is that they go up to, they will keep renewing the show's annual contract and they will keep awarding more and more prizes.

The way they get contestants, by the way, is that there's an 800 number you call, and over the telephone a recorded machine asks you a series of six questions. If you've answered all six to their satisfaction, they call you back and the field gets narrowed down until finally somebody is selected. You should also know there is a man who is hearing impaired, his name is Peter F. Liberti, Jr., a school teacher, and he lives in Tonawanda, New York (it's near Buffalo), and he's filed a lawsuit against CBS and Regis Philbin and everybody else, saying he's being unfairly discriminated against because he can't hear the questions. Well, not to worry, as time goes by and they make more and more people millionaires, they'll soon find they have to get other ways to get contestants, so ultimately they'll not only get every deaf person, but every blind person and every other person with every other personal characteristic.

...a man who is hearing impaired... filed a lawsuit against CBS and Regis Philbin saying he's being unfairly discriminated against because he can't hear the questions.

Committing to a five day a week regiment of watching this program is a big bother, I know. But, if all of us really, really want to be millionaires then there's no other alternative.

By the way, did you see that there finally was a show that beat the ratings of Who Wants To Be a Millionaire? Everyone is making a big deal out of it. It's Survivor. CBS has flown twenty people to an island off the coast of New Guinea where there's only a few fish and small animals and bugs and rats, and the show is supposed to be a sort of voyeurs look of how these people spend their days.

Curious, I watched it the other night and I failed to see what's so interesting about it. Obviously, they are in no physical danger of any kind. I'm sure there's teams of doctors and nutritionists and psychiatrists, certainly there are teams of directors and cameramen there recording what they do. But, all they do is have dinner and play games that CBS tells them they have to play which are mostly running or swimming events and the other "color war" things that you'd find at any summer camp. Then they meet in some stupid fake tribal council at night and vote one of the participants off the island. The last one remaining gets a million dollars. Of course how you get two people to vote which one of them should be thrown off the island is an impossibility since each will vote for the other. But they've worked that detail out.

Honestly, it would be a whole lot easier if they just waited to get on Regis's show to get their million. What they're doing down there in New Guinea is like scratching their right ear with their left hand, making a big deal out of it. Just give them the money.

Frankly, I find this whole voyeur business disturbing. It's even coming to the Hamptons. On your computer in a week or two, go to Hamptonstv.com and click on 27 East and you'll see a four minute bitstream video of a group of summer residents doing whatever it is they're going to be doing at their group summer rental.

In the first episode, you can watch them all come out and unpack their luggage and boxes and bring their stuff into their house, which takes all of the four minutes up.

I suppose all of us are looking for them to do something dramatic and intimate, but the website says that there won't be any sex involved in their show, so the closest you're gonna come to any intimacy is somebody scratching their butt. And, I might add, if they ultimately change their minds and do allow intimacy, they're not gonna get a whole lot done in four minutes. It takes a whole lot longer than that where I come from.

On the other hand, the whole program might not last longer than four minutes. Group rentals are illegal. Figure out where it is from that first four minute video and the police will shut it down. My fifteen year old son is playing a video game that sends him down hallways to find and shoot bad guys and I don't understand that, and I don't understand obsession with voyeurism either. Somebody explain it to me. Help me out here. •

Vice President (and future President) Thomas Jefferson was a potent influence against the monarchist tide led by President John Adams

Almost A Monarchy

A Generation After The Revolution, The U.S. Nearly Became A Monarchy

By Jerry Cimisi

As America celebrates its 224th birthday on the Fourth of July, we look back to the American Revolution as the foundation of our freedoms, freedoms so rare that in the ensuing two and quarter centuries millions of people from other countries have been drawn to start new lives here.

But few people know that only a generation after the thirteen colonies gained their independence from Britain, the ideals of the American Revolution were perilously compromised and the new country in the New World came very close to becoming, virtually, a monarchy.

These perilous years were 1798-1800. On one side were the President John Adams, who had succeeded George Washington, and other notables such as Alexander Hamilton (who had been Treasury Secretary under Washington), pitted against Adams' Vice President, Thomas Jefferson, and Ben Franklin's grandson, Benjamin Franklin Bache – who, like his illustrious grandfather, had become newspaper a editor and publisher. Bache's Aurora General Advertiser in Philadelphia printed articles so critical of Adams' administration that Bache would eventually be jailed – and die in prison.

The essence of the conflict was this: Adams and his supporters wanted a government very much like England's. Instead of King we would have a President-for-Life. It was dangerous to have the people decide the course of the country. Adams had indeed wanted independence from Britian, but he wanted America to be like Britain. Jefferson and young Bache wanted a republic. When Benjamin Franklin was once asked what kind of government had the colonists wrought, he replied, "A republic, if we can keep it."

The definition of a republic is: a state in which the ultimate power rests in the people who elect representatives to make and enact their laws. A republic is never a monarchy or any sort of hereditary government.

But the Second President of the United Sates said he was no hater of kings; he said that if those who had less were given equal influence to those who had more, government could not function. And in the matter of what title to give the leader of the new country he said that we should not fear to give our executive a "title of majesty." There were those who thought "Highness not high enough, among whom I am one."

The grandson of the man Jefferson called the champion of liberty of his age was not the only editor, printer or writer to suffer from the wrath of John Adams.

Throughout the new country of America the very last years of the Eighteenth Century saw President Adams enact the Alien and Sedition Acts: as a result freedom of the press in America met its first real challenge, and was, for these years, oppressed and curtailed.

Yet this truly crucial period of American history is all but unknown to the general public.

I spent much of this past winter reading a nearly 1,000 page book by Richard Rosenfeld, American Aurora, a 1997 work detailing the tumultous end of 18th century America – as well as providing an insightful history into the events of the American Revolution, when "The Father" of our country, George Washington, won but two engagements and was roundly disparaged by other military men.

Rosenfeld provides 900 pages of text. The following one hundred pages are comprised mainly

"If all Printers were determined not to print anything till they were sure it would offend nobody, there would be very little printed."
Benjamin Franklin

of index and footnotes – there are in fact, 2,068 footnotes. Rosenfeld is not merely speculating, he is reporting historical facts. Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Doris Kearns Goodwin said of Rosenfeld's opus, "The early days of our Republic will be much better understood by the publication of this remarkable book."

Indeed, this is the sort of book that will forever change a reader's outlook about the period it describes.

"If all Printers were determined not to print anything till they were sure it would offend nobody, there would be very little printed." Benjamin Franklin, editor, The Pensylvania Gazette, 1729-1748.

But the President of the United Sates was offended enough to initiate the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798 Anyone who wrote, printed, published or spoke opinions or statements that "the said legislature, in enacting any law, was induced thereto by motives hostile to the Constitution," the hapless free speech offender "shall be punished by a fine not exceeding two thousand dollars, and by imprisonment not exceeding two years."

This in a land filled with men who had put their lives on the line to wrest their freedom from the British.

This was the "sedition" part of the Acts. The "alien" part raised from seven years to fourteen the number of years an immigrant must reside in the country before American citizenship could be attained. Adams saw a grave threat in the great unwashed already coming from Europe to pursue the newly minted American dream. It was the havenots who were coming, especially the Irish, and the havenots were more likely to have little liking for the established order of things, such as monarchy (again especially the Irish, who chafed under the rule of the British Crown). After all, not only the American Revolution but the French Revolution were fresh in the minds of the world's lovers of freedom. Adams had loathed the French Revolution and he had loathed Benjamin's Franklin's chummy dealings with the French, even though it was plain that without France's intervention in our war against Britain (and Franklin's crucial diplomacy in that intervention) it is very likely America would have lost.

Incidentially, Benjamin Franklin Bache had been schooled in France, a fact that made him more suspect in some quarters. When Ben Franklin had been sent to France during the Revolution to drum up French support, he had taken his grandson, young Benny with him. Benny would be schooled there until the age of sixteen.

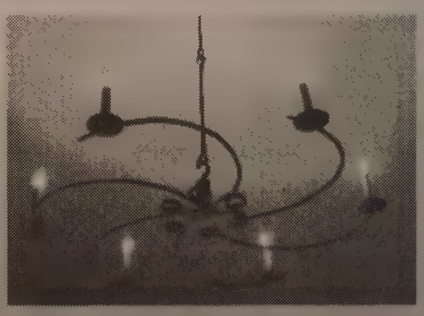

By doubling the time in which an immigrant could have any voice – any vote – in American affairs, and by keeping that individual in a status in which he could be easily deported, Adams could attempt to control the influence of the haters of monarchy that he saw as not only sweeping America's shores, but pervading public opinion. It was with scorn that the Federalists spoke of the Free Irish and it was with scorn that they greeted Irishman William Duane, Bache's successor to the Aurora, a stronghold of republicanism and one of the most successful papers in the country. Bache had been one of the earlier victims of the Alien and Sedition Acts, and had died in prison, awaiting trial, while an epidemic of yellow fever swept Philadelphia in the late summer of 1798.

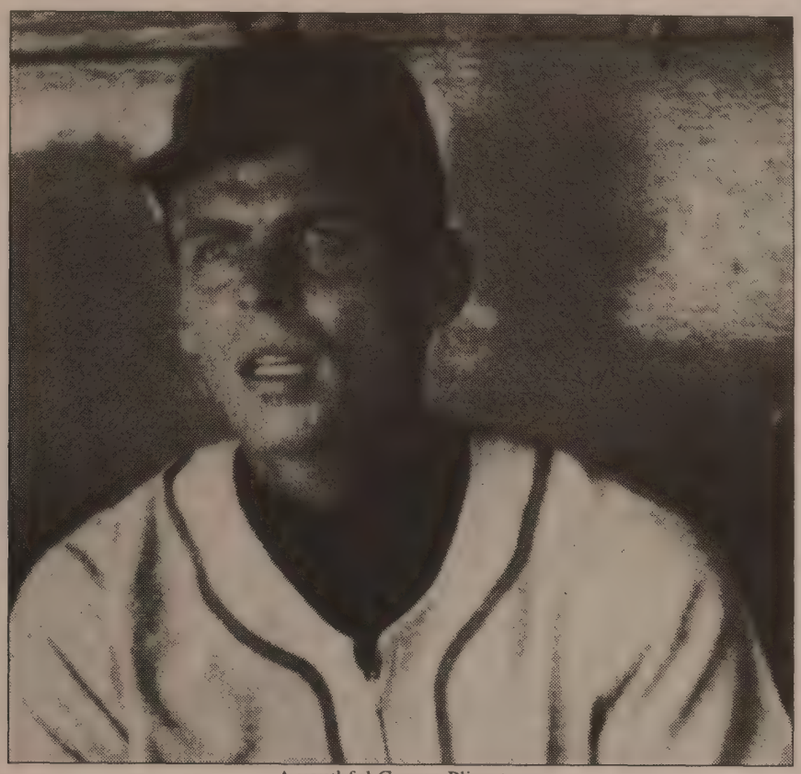

Author Rosenfeld gives Duane a fictional narrarative voice throughout American Aurora. But just as much of the book is composed of direct clippings from the newspaper and other journals (newspapers on both sides of the issue).

The Aurora, Monday, March 19, 1798: 'John Adams is the advocate or a kingly government and of a titled nobility to form an upper house and to keep down the swinish multitude."

Plimpton Holds Forth

George Plimpton Talks About His Chess Match With Kasparov And Other Adventures

By Yvette E. Somekh

George Plimpton, founder and editor of The Paris Review, author, participatory journalist, and the planet's most charming human being, spoke for the World Affairs Council of Long Island at Southampton College this past weekend. It was the most delightful hour I've spent in a very long time. Mr. Plimpton spoke to us of writers and writing. He read to us and he told us his stories. And he held us all captive. His sense of life and his desire to enjoy every moment was evident everywhere. George Plimpton doesn't live life, he celebrates life.

He started by reading to us from The Writers Chapbook a compilation of excerpts from The Paris Review. It's an amusing look at why and how writers write. He wanted us to enjoy the creative process and see it from a human standpoint. We were advised that writers are the people that don't like to write. Finding the appropriate word was an exercise more exhausting than jogging and 'Word Count' is the single most important feature on any word processor. Hemingway always wrote standing up. Anthony Trollope wrote forty-nine pages of manuscript daily. Almost every day started with page one. E.L. Doctorow got the inspiration for his famous novel Ragtime by writing about a wall. He wrote about the wall because he was so desperate to write anything that he forced himself to stare at the wall until he could find something to write about.

I was forced to laugh at my choice of profession until I cried. The laughter caused in me a greater enjoyment of my work and a higher appreciation for making that choice.

Mr. Plimpton then read to us from his new book, Pet Peeves or Whatever Happened to Dr. Rauf? This is a collection of letters to a veterinarian. One letter stands out. A gentleman writes that he owns an attack dog. The code word to attack is 'Wisconsin'. It is a perfectly fine word and would be absolutely suitable except that the man and his dog live in the state of Wisconsin. This is particularly troubling during the football season. The dog then works himself up into a frenzy and attacks. The question to Dr. Rauf was: can a dog learn a new attack word? Or should they move to Alabama?

Of course, no George Plimpton lecture would be complete without discussion of his time spent experiencing and reporting on other ways of life. His circus experience was touched on immediately. He related a lovely story about learning to fly on the trapeze. There was at the time with Ringling Brothers the smallest woman in the world, Princess Anne. Princess Anne had taken a liking to the author and would watch him every day as he was practicing. And every day, he would look down from way up high and see this tiny figure sitting in the bleachers with her eyes shut and her fingers crossed and, because of her size, it made him think he was twice as high as he really was. It scared the hell out of him. He asked her to stay out of the big top during rehearsals.

Asked what his most frightening experience in participatory journalism was, he thought, smiled and stated that it was his time with the Philharmonic. He played an instrument with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. It was the triangle. The pressure was enormous. And to this day, he is positive he ruined the piece.

He once played chess with Kasparov, taking a board with a whole group of chess boards all in a row. Kasparov would walk down the row, make a move, then go to the next board. When he got to Plimpton's board – Plimpton was not a very good chess player – he looked down, frowned, and said, "What a mess." Then he moved his piece and walked on.

Now our hero realized his bishop could check Mr. Kasparov's king. The bishop was quickly moved into position and George Plimpton looked the chess master in the eye and said, "Check." He said it very loud. Everybody at all the other tables got up and came quickly over. Who could have gotten the world's greatest chess player in check?

Mr. Kasparov used his pawn to remove the bishop, which Plimpton knew would happen all along. He just wanted to be able to say that.

The question of what, if any, profession remained a desire yet to be performed and reported brought a rather surprising answer. The Metropolitan Opera is still unconquered. However, opera requires more than practice. It requires talent. Mr. Plimpton is sure somewhere, in some opera, there will be two soldiers walking down a street singing. Soldier one will ask a question of soldier two that will require a one word answer. Look for George Plimpton with the Metropolitan Opera singing the role of Soldier Two. •

The Aurora went on to quote from Adams' own writings: "First magistrates and senators had better be made hereditary at once rather than that the people be universally debauched and bribed, go to loggerheads, and fly to arms every year."

The Aurora, a week earlier, Monday, March 12, 1798: "We are convinced that... people begin to see their madness in preferring John Adams and a French war to Thomas Jefferson with a French peace."

In 1788, France and America had signed an Alliance of Amity and Commerce, but a decade later President Adams was looking for every excuse to cast France as an enemy. Britain (as well as other European nations) saw the French Revolution as a threat to monarchy and there were more than intimations that Britian might intervene in France's affairs. France stopped American ships carrying armaments to Britain. Adams, as well as other Americans were outraged, While still other Americans saw this as the administation's efforts to aid America's recent enemy against another country seeking a representative government.

America became divided into pro- and anti-French camps. Adams began to raise a standing army, with a twofold purpose: to keep the "peace" at home and, should the situation call for it, to ultimately fight the French.

Adams' own Vice President, Thomas Jefferson, was horrified both with Adam's monarchial philosophy and possible conflict with the French. In 1787, at the Constitutional Convention, Jefferson had written of Adams and Alexander Hamilton, discussing the best form of government for America. They only disagreed over what type of monarchy should be instituted in the new country. Hamilton, was for "two hereditary branches and an honest elective," and Adams was, in Jefferson's view "for an hereditary king and a house of lords and commons, corrupted to his will and standing between himself and the people."

In April, 1798, Jefferson wrote to James Madison (his future Secretary of State), "The vibrators [movers and shakers?] in the House of Representatives have chiefly gone over to the war party." He also writes that the Congress has received petitions against arming from towns in Massachusetts. "They will no doubt have been immediately checked." In regards to a recent presidential address, Jefferson says, "It is a pretty strong indication that a neutral and pacific conduct on our part is no longer the existing state of things."

The Aurora, Friday, April 20, 1798: "The impolicy and intemperance of Mr. Adams may yet entail great evils upon the United States."

Jefferson is also worried at the Federalist "Committees of surveillance" (shades of Nixon's White House) that are meant to ferret out anti-government speech and acts among Republicans.

The government tried to limit reportage from events in Congress, an outright attempt to restrict freedom of the press. In January, 1798, a "debate between Republican Congressman Matthew Lyon from Vermont and Federalist Congressman Roger Griswold of Connecticut became so heated that Lyon spat in Griswold's face. Lyon, an Irish newspaper publisher, had been musing on the possibility that he would start a newspaper in New England in opposition to the administration. New England was heavily controlled by Federalists. The spitting incident was widely reported. Congress held hearings on the matter. Speaker of the House Jonathan Dayton of New Jersey, wanted to put a tight lid on news coverage. The Annals of Congress reported: "The Speaker said...he thought it improper that persons attending in the House should take notes...should publish the evidence.... The Speaker said, until the House should make an order...he did himself prohibit the publication of evidence in the future until it should be corrected by the members themselves."

Defining Celebrity

What Does It All Mean? Will We Survive It? A Discussion At Guild Hall

By Pamela Pollak

In a world of fame and fortune comes the desire to be famous, but along with this comes a life that is filled with invasions of people and the signing of autographs and tabloid headlines at the supermarkets. Is this what celebrities have to deal with all the time? The answer is yes. In order to maintain your celebrity in this world you must be willing to share your life with everyone. From your love life to your latest hairdo everything is public property.

What is the meaning of celebrity? A panel discussion was held at the Guild Hall on Sunday June 24 in partnership with Bookhampton, and was hosted by Barbara Goldsmith who is noted for her accomplishments in the literary world. Included on the panel were playwright and screenwriter Peter Stone, journalist Lynn Sherr and authors Steven Gaines and Neal Gabler. Award-winning author Barbara Goldsmith led the panel with questions about their opinion on celebrity and its affects on our society, She quoted from some of her earlier works and other well known writers and asked each of the panelists a question and gave them time to respond before opening up the discussion.

Steven Gaines, the author of Philistines at the Hedgerow, the powerful book written about the development of the Hamptons, contributed to the discussion by saying " there is a difference between talent and celebrity; you can be famous and still not be a celebrity." All of the guest speakers were very clear about how the media has played a very important role in the success of celebrity. Lynn Sherr is an accomplished journalist; she been an ABC News Correspondent for 20/20 since 1986, Her most recent book is, Tall Blondes: A Book About Giraffes. She claims that celebrity is misinterpreted by TV and that the family unit is putting too much emphasis on the importance of celebrity. Neil Gabler, a non-fiction writer is the author Life The Movie: How Entertainment Conquered of Reality as well as Winchell:Gossip, Power and the Culture of Celebrity, which was named non-fiction book of the year by Time Magazine. Neil claims that the medium of life has to be captured and that celebrity is the vehicle. "It is the American Dream to be part of the celebrity world," says Neil.

> "We all live vicariously through the eyes of the celebrity figures, hoping to work out our own mysteries of life."

Peter Stone is the author of numerous Broadway productions, with many Tony Awards to his credit: The Will Rogers Follies, Grand Hotel, My One and Only, and Titanic. Peter gave the audience a synopsis of his life as he knew it since the 1930's, when he was a child growing up in Hollywood. "Things are different now, celebrities are not protected the way they used to be, the media has played a major role in that, we are hurting this culture by doing so." He talked about the theatre today and referred to the " Standing Ovation and the Whooping" as the audience's participation in trying to get the attention of the celebrity so they could share a part in the world of fame. "We all live vicariously through the eyes of the celebrity figures, hoping to work out our own mysteries of life, to feel a moment of their life exemplifies that we are all human," said Stone.

The discussion was then opened to the audience for questions. One woman said that she truly feels sorry for the celebrity, there is no privacy at all; your life is an open book for all to see and judge. Why are we seduced into the belief that celebrity is the way we want to see ourselves, when in reality it is always better to be accomplished? Do you have to be famous to be a celebrity? Many people are famous, but it is the "celebrity" that intrigues all of us. So do not wish to hard for Celebrity, because it may come true and then you might have to sell all your secrets...You would not want to do that. Would You? So I ask you: Who Wants To Be A Celebrity? Be sure before it becomes your Final Answer!!!!!!!!

"corrected" however, and Lyon and Griswold weren't letting the matter rest between them either. In the middle of February, "after prayers" that opened the day's session, Griswold entered, spied Lyon writing at his desk, and immediately went up to the Vermont Congressman and began to beat him with a walking stick. Lyon defended himself by snatching tongs from the fire and going at Griswold with them.

Bache reported this escalation of the conflict (as he had reported its beginning) in the Aurora. Because he did this without "permission" from the Speaker, Bache was subsequently barred from Congress.

But Bache continued to take notes on Congressional shenanigans from the crowded gallery. It should be noted that at this point in time the seat of the federal government was in Philadelphia.

For his continued aggravation of the powers-that-be, Bache was one of the first to suffer under the Alien and Sedition Acts.

Wednesday, June 27, 1798, the Aurora: "The editor of the Aurora was yesterday arrested on a warrant from Judge Peters of the Federal Court on the charge of libelling the President and the Executive Government in a manner tending to excite sedition...."

Previous to this Bache had physically been attacked by Federalist ruffians – as would Bache's successor, Willian Duane. Bache's wife Peggy was pregnant with the couple's fourth child at the time of her husband's arrest. In a letter to a friend Bache wrote, "I am determined to pay whatever the price of doing what I believe to be my duty as a printer who is a zealous friend to liberty."

Bache indeed would pay the fullest price possible. As the plague of yellow fever hit Philadelphia in the latter part of the summer and those who could left the city, Bache would die in jail of the plague in September, 1798.

Until the presidential election of 1800, when Thomas Jefferson beat Adams in a close race, the country would suffer from a political division unmatched until the Civil War. Newspaper editors and reporters faced charges of sedition; many were convicted. Newspapers folded because their publishers were jailed. Publishers, editors and reporters faced beatings by mobs. Newspaper offices were vandalized. Local militias were raised in response to Adams' federal standing army. The federal army was prone to hulliganism, plundering private homes and manhandling the perceived enemies of the president. The anti-Adams faction mocked the president's love of titles by calling the portly Adams "His Rotundity."

Envoys from France and America crossed the Atlantic to smooth the difficulties between the two recent allies. Adams questioned the credentials of the French representatives. Newspapers such as the pro-federalist Gazette of the United Sates, questioned whether the loyalty of the citizenry was to France or America. It took Jefferson to task for the Vice President's position on the separation of church and state. If Jefferson did not support a Christian state he was nothing less than an atheist.

Thursday, October 9, 1800, The Gazette of the United States: "...the only question to be asked by every American, laying his hand on his heart, is 'shall I continue in allegiance to GOD – AND A RELIGIOUS PRESIDENT, or impiously declare for JEFFERSON – AND NO GOD!

Friday, May 28, 1800, The Aurora: "Is every man an atheist who does not make a public parade of his religion or who does not abuse his fellow citizens of being of a very different persuasion?"

Needless to say, the election of 1800 was of immense importance. In those days the Presidential and Vice Presidential positions were not on one ticket. Whoever polled the most votes was president, the second most, vice president. The difficulty with such a system, of course was that there could be a president and vice president who were at odds, as was the case with Adams and Jefferson; the virtue of such an arrangement was that the vice president could be somewhat of a check (at least a voice of opposition) against the president.

There is not the space to recount every important tumultuous event of this brief but crucial period. In the end, Jefferson and Aaron Burr were elected to President and Vice President, in a close election. Enough of the American people had gotten tired of Federalist highhandedness.

In March, 1801, former President Adams wrote to his former Navy Secretary Benjamin Stoddert: "No party ever existed knew itself so little or so vainly overrated its own influence and popularity, as ours. None ever understood so ill the causes of its own power or so wantonly destroyed them."

Star Wars, Elian And Other Conclusions To The Start Of The 21st Century

By Dan Rattiner

There were three major events in the news last week and I think they were related. The presidents of North and South Korea met for the first time in fifty years, shook hands and announced they wanted to unify the country. President Clinton, and President Putin of Russia concluded their talks and announced they had failed to reach an agreement on the Star Wars defense system. Finally, there was a riot in Central Park after the Puerto Rican Day Parade, where bands of young males pulled off the clothes and groped a variety of women who just happened to be in the park at the time. What they did was caught on at least ten video tapes. Many of the perpetrators, easily identifiable, have been arrested.

How these three pieces of news are related is as follows:

The high priority stuff is movies, Internet games, comedy and cable. Entertainment is king, our entertainers are celebrities...

First of all, the ability of Russia and America to blow each other up has kept a major world war from erupting for fifty years. It's like why you don't need dividers on all the roads in America. Self preservation keeps hundreds of millions of people from crossing over the double yellow line. Nobody wants to die. Clinton's conversation with Putin was laced with examples of how such rogue nations as North Korea might launch an attack. In fact, North Korea recently fired a rocket over Japan into the Pacific. But North Korea is probably the last of the rogue nations with a nuclear capability in place to be able to attack, say Los Angeles. Who's left? Cuba?

The fact is that all over the world, people have gotten totally tired of wearing uniforms, attending party meetings and living in cities that are lit by a single light bulb. Democracy, illuminated by the media all over the world, has won the day. The world is embracing the American Dream and except for a few minor forest fire wars here and there that can be easily contained, the twenty-first century is bringing with it peace.

From this perspective, Putin was right to reject Star Wars. Besides the fact that it is quite expensive, probably won't work and the Russians don't have the money to build it, building it would be equivalent to removing all the double lines on all the roads.

As far as the riot at the Puerto Rican Day Parade, the real story is not that it happened and that everybody was drunk or that the police weren't paying it much mind, (although that's a reasonable local concern,) the real story was that there were at least ten video tapes made of it.

The American Dream means opportunity, expensive adult toys, the Internet and, well, video cameras.

Politics as a concern have faded into the background and whether Peru invades Brazil or Austria makes an alliance with Ethiopia is just not important anymore. School children consider its relevancy to their lives about the same as they would consider the study of Latin relevant, which accounts for low SAT scores and the phrase is "history is history," as in "gone to the dumpster."

The high priority stuff is movies, Internet games, comedy and cable. Entertainment is king, our entertainers are celebrities and it can all be gotten for almost no cost in your living room. Everybody stays home and has fun, times are relatively prosperous and crime figures have never been lower.

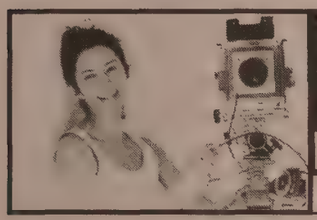

Who has time to be a criminal? Furthermore, who wants to be when there is a good likelihood you'll be seen on video tape? As a matter of fact, you can make a good arguement that people don't commit crimes because criminals are often made into the butt of jokes. Look at the way the police blotter is handled here at Dan's Papers. It's our intention to hoot crime out of existence.

Frankly, I think everything is heading in the right direction in the year 2001. I think that in the absence of a knowledge of history in the general population, we should see to it that we elect governors and presidents who know what they're talking about. And I think that we should never build Star Wars. •

The Alien and Sedition Acts were no more. In a letter to Adams' wife, Abigail Adams, who was as upset as her husband over the shift of power, Jefferson said, "I discharged every person under punishment or prosecution under the Sedition law, because I considered and now consider that law to be a nullity as absolute and as palpable as if Congress had ordered us to fall down and worship a gold image..."

The lessons of the closing years of the 18th Century, as important to the course of the country as periods as the Civil War and World War II are perhaps much less known because there was not an outright civil or foreign war. Yet the incidents, philosphies and outcome of this period are perhaps as important as any other in our history. Just think: newly severed from the British Crown, and yet we came close to having an hereditary ruler. Ponder that this Fourth of July. •

Who's Here:

Spalding Grey Monologist

By Dan Rattiner

Spalding with son Forrest

DAN: I'm here with Spalding Gray who is a good friend that I last saw four years ago and at that time had just moved here and bought a house. Tell us about the house.

SPALDING: It's the first home in my adult life I describe it in my monologue Morning, Noon and Night. It's a sweet straight up and down green clapboard Victorian, looks like a dollhouse actually, and in the night time you can run out and watch the kids playing in the living room in front of the fire because somewhere in the history of this 1880's house French doors were put in all around the living room, dining room and kitchen. Therefore, there's enormous amounts of light coming in. And wind. So, every once in a while we have these transformations, you know, putting in thermo French doors and putting money into it. I say I'm allergic to hammers. There's nothing I can do, I don't even know the difference between a Phillips screwdriver and whatever the other one is. So basically, I go out on the road and tell stories about the house, get the money and come back and pay the contractor.

That about sums it up. And I also say that I let Kathie Russo make all the phone calls to try to get them over because she's Italian-American and I figure they're gonna come quicker for a goombah than for Gray. But, when they get there they see me sitting at the table in my yoga outfit looking like a dressed down Ozzie Nelson, always on the verge of going to work, and they say are you Mr. Russo? So that's the name that I'm going under, that's my pseudonym in Sag Harbor. Mr. Russo, RUSSO.

DAN: Well, I'd like to point out that we should be sitting in this house doing this interview, but we're not. We're down here at the beach at Sagg Main with a lot of seagulls and a lot of kids and you can tell us why we're here instead of there.

SPALDING: We had to get out of the house because the roofers came today and it's bedlam. There are about eight Mexican workers on the roof, I call it raping the house. They're hurling off shingles, I don't want to be in it. But, here's what I want to lead into, what I want to tell you. We love it here and we love our house and we love living in the village of Sag Harbor and there's only one shadow left that we would like to get rid of and that is the Millstone Nuclear Power Plant in Waterford, Connecticut. I am a member of STAR, I'm on the board of STAR, which stands for Stand for Truth About Radiation founded by Helen Caldicot.

DAN: Now isn't there an event coming up this August?

SPALDING: Priscilla Star is doing a fundraiser at her Startop Ranch in Montauk on August 5. Physicist Michio Kaku will be speaking.

DAN: Do you think it's confusing for Priscilla Star to be connected with this organization?

SPALDING: I think it is confusing for Priscilla Star because her name is Star. When I first went to her ranch I thought the foundation was named after her but it's just one of those wonderful coincidences. But, I want to say that I won't be here for this fundraiser because all of a sudden a big thing that has changed my life is Gore Vidal, who is going to be seventy-five in September, is remounting his play The Best Man that was done on Broadway in 1960 and they were running different actors names by him and he sparked up at mine, so I'm cast as one of the leads on Broadway in The Best Man. I go into rehearsal July 30, and will never be seen in these parts again except for my one day off, Monday. So, that takes me out of the fighting circuit here for STAR.

DAN: Tell us a little bit about the play.

GRAY: Oh, I read it I guess three times to try to make a decision on it and it's definitely antique, I mean it's a sixties play and it's very innocent. It's about two people running for president and I suppose my character is modeled on Adlai Stevenson and the other is more of a Tricky Dick type, you know, a Machiavellian politician. So the Machiavellian politician – were both in the same party but you're not told what the party is – the Machiavelli gets my psychiatric records to prove that I've had a nervous breakdown and he's gonna release them. And then my people find out that he's had some record of homosexuality in the army, so there's a stand off. It's a play about "to smear or not to smear, that is the question."

DAN: It's somewhere between the Berrigans and Watergate.

SPALDING: Yeah. And it's going to be staged exactly like it was in the sixties, I mean there's not going to be any updating, so it will simply play against whatever the contemporary scene is now because, of course, you know the elections are coming up and all I can say about them is to quote Michael Moore who said, "The evil of two lessors."

(A big wave crashes on the shore).

DAN: It's a lovely day here.

SPALDING: I'll have very few days like this. I'm leaving this territory – you know we're renting our house out, we're going to Greece for eight days in July, then we're coming back and we will live up in Putnam Valley for the rest of the summer where Kathie is taking on a Fresh Air kid to hang out with our son Forrest. But, I'll miss it all, I'll be in New York.

I experience out here and what I love out here is, you know, sailing my boat, my little beetle boat in June and September. But, I pretty much miss the summer experience here and it's fine with me.

DAN: It's gotten very loud.

SPALDING: Yeah. I can feel it coming.

DAN: And the party people are going to be bringing in all the girls.

SPALDING: Right. Looks like some of them already arrived.

DAN: So it does.

SPALDING: Let me say something about Priscilla and how her benefit will raise money for the lawyer working hard in Connecticut on this lawsuit and that's Nancy Burton. We had a whistle blower speak at our house, and we invited friends and real estate agents to come and listen, and they sat in our living room. That's when I met Nancy Burton, and I like her very much. You know what's happening, the nuclear reactors are getting deregulated and bottom feeder companies are buying them that don't have the money to maintain them.

DAN: Why don't you and I buy one, we could call it Dan and Spalding's Nuclear Plant.

SPALDING: That's not a bad idea.

DAN: Half price on Wednesdays.

SPALDING: This benefit will be to get money for Nancy because she's worked for a long time. Because they are gonna store more fuel there than is legal and also there is no evacuation route over here.

DAN: There's an evacuation route. There's a big sign.

SPALDING: YI know, I saw the sign. I know the route. I've driven it before, bumper to bumper.

DAN: Broadway is fine but what you are really known for are your wonderful monologues which you sometimes do for an hour and a half without breathing but once.

SPALDING: Well, I'm at the end, I'm finishing up my tour of my last monologue, Morning, Noon and Night. And to stop me from compulsively jumping into something new that isn't right – and I don't want to do another one about living in Sag Harbor with my family because I just don't want to do an ongoing soap opera, which is what it is – because I would get bored with it and so would the audience. Taking this Broadway thing is a good way to refocus me. You know, I often focus through other peoples' energy. It's a good filter. I don't want to start trying to figure out if I want to do another just yet. I'd like to end the tour though by doing a show at Bay Street. I've never played there. I'd like to do Morning, Noon and Night there and bring it all back home to town. •

Robert Zimmerman Public Relations

By Dan Rattiner

Robert Zimmerman, together with his partner, Ron Edelson, heads up one of the two largest public relations firms on Long Island. They represent the Town of Babylon, the Town of North Hempstead, LIPA, the Town of Long Beach, and many Taubman properties, among others.

Zimmerman is a handsome man, forty-five, with a winning smile and yet a very serious way about him. Born and raised in New York City, he was the son of a man who had participated in the Normandy invasion of Europe and had among other things, set up town administrations throughout Belgium. Coming home to America, he became a CPA on the American Bill of Rights and then moved with the family to the Great Neck Estates. Zimmerman, along with his older brother went to Great Neck South High School and then Brandeis where he graduated in 1976 Cum Laude in Government and American History. Two years later he got an MBA from Fordham.

"It was a very difficult time." Zimmerman told me over coffee in Southampton where he has had a house for about fifteen years. "Up in Boston when I was at Brandeis, I was very active in the anti-war movement. We marched on Washington, protested to get the harbor cleaned up, in the evening went to a Boston Celtics basketball game, and then hung out in a coffee house until 3 a.m. over politics. This was the time when Watergate happened and Nixon resigned."

Back in New York, Zimmerman, who is a bachelor, moved into an apartment on the upper west side. He liked the things that Congressman Lester Wolfe had to say – he was the first Democrat elected on the North Shore of Long Island – and he joined his staff. Soon, Zimmerman moved to Washington, renting an apartment in Arlington right across the Key Bridge. Lester Wolfe was to serve as a congressman for a total eight terms, or sixteen years. During the last three of those terms Zimmerman worked for him.

"Here's what I learned living in Washington." Zimmerman said. "I learned it's a company town, it's great living on your own and being a member of a political party, and the greatest impact you can make on Washington is not inside the beltway, but outside it."

Zimmerman moved back to New York where he got a job at the public relations firm of Martin Greenfield Associates.

" 'What you do for Lester do for our clients,' he said."

The clients included banks, schools and environmental groups. At Martin Greenfield, Zimmerman met Ron Edelson and they formed Zimmerman, Edelson. Their largest account, brought in by Edelson, was a European firm called, Global Motors, that sold many hot European cars such as Pina Farina and Bertoni. Edelson travelled all over the world. Zimmerman meanwhile, still with the firm, decided to run for the State Assembly.

"I got 47% of the vote. He said. "Which means I lost."

Two years later he ran again and again was defeated but this time by only 3%.

"I decided I was getting a mandate from the private sector," he laughed.

He went out for dinner with Edelson. Ron told him he was tired of traveling and he thought that he and Zimmerman ought to settle down and run their firm primarily on Long Island. Zimmerman agreed. The two opened an office in Glen Cove and have been working there ever since.

In 1988, when he was in his early thirties, Zimmerman came out to the Hamptons to visit a girl friend.

"We'd hang out by the statue heads alongside the Parrish Art Museum," he said. "And then we'd go to the beach and tour the art galleries. I found the Hamptons to be a special place with great diversity. There is a depth of culture, mostly New York, and a strong sense of community. As I've been here over the years, I've come to realize that it has different meanings in different stages of my life."

Zimmerman came to represent Southampton Hospital and worked with Adair Beutel and Mary Lynch on some projects. He was appointed to the Board of Southampton Cultural Center.

Zimmerman divides his time between Great Neck and Southampton. A number of years ago Congressman Tom Downey introduced him to Al Gore.

"I thought him a very sensitive, shy person." Zimmerman said.

He was appointed to the presidential commission on the arts, which oversees the Kennedy Center, and this year was named the Chairman of the New York State Al Gore campaign. He's also been named a delegate for the Democratic Party to the National Committee.

Zimmerman goes out to the Hamptons, he said, "for fun. I go to the Candy Kitchen for breakfast every morning where I read the newspapers. I go to bookstores, galleries, events, concerts, I have late dinners with friends, and I find I can be as private or as busy as I want to be." • play review: hedda gabler

By Jan Silver

Henrik Ibsen's classic play Hedda Gabler, the drama of an intelligent upper-middle-class woman trapped by the social "rules" of her society, just opened in Sag Harbor as a contemporary adaptation by Jon Robin Baitz. It is a joint production of Bay Street Theatre and the Williamstown Theatre Festival. Hedda Gabler's effect on current audiences may be twofold: "Why did women's lib take so long to happen?"and, as Baitz writes in the program's introductory note, "there is a fatalistic delirium that makes Hedda Gabler almost comic at times."

Jon Robin Baitz has been faithful to the original (he wrote his script from a literal word-for-word translation). All the motivations, conflicts and emotions of the Ibsen characters are quite clear, but in this post-Monica Lewinsky era, Hedda Gabler comes across as melodramatic. The idea that fear of social scandal would inhibit an ambitious woman seems a bit quaint today.

Lead actress Kate Burton is galvanizing as Hedda. She is a general's daughter, attractive and much sought after. Whenever she is onstage, this Hedda is a simmering volcano of barely-repressed anger who has no idea the consequences her meddling can bring. Her reasons for marrying academic historian George Tesman, played with perfectly befuddled and loving innocence by Michael Emerson, sound too coolly rational for the firebrand Miss Burton embodies.

Harris Yulin is charming and comfortable as Judge Brack, the social and political leader who knows how to keep the status quo. "I'm a dangerous man when cornered," he reminds Hedda. Katie Finneran brings honesty and anguish to Mrs. Elvsted, another woman imprisoned by her place in society. Angela Thornton is warm and loving as the spinster aunt Julia Tesman who gracefully accepts her role of helping others.

Kathryn Hahn, as the maid Berta, knows her place in this bourgeois society. David Lansbury, playing the burning, passionate intellectual Eilert Lovborg, does not seem forceful enough to have inflamed a young Hedda and then later self-destruct.

Nicholas Martin directs this Gabler with sensitivity to both Ibsen's themes and Baitz's modern dialogue. He is aided by Alexander Dodge's open and airy set and Michael Krass's graceful costuming. Lighting designer Kevin Adams brings sunlight, chill and warmth to the set, and Bay Street's resident sound designer Randall Freed seamlessly integrates the piano into the action.

Bay Street Theatre audiences indicated last year they would like to see classic plays as well as new

TWENTY YEARS AGO
"Great, Good and Poor Deaths"
June 27, 1980

I am always on the lookout for great deaths. Great literature, if you haven't noticed, is usually centered around a remarkable death of one kind or another, and from the remarkable death there comes the Book of the Month Club, the movie, talk shows and fame. And sometimes even immorality, which is sort of a contradiction to the whole idea of a great death.

A really great death is the sort of thing that happened to Isadora Duncan, the bohemian and dancer of the 1900's and the 1910s. At the age of forty-nine, she got behind the wheel of her open convertible sports car, threw her long flowing scarf over her shoulder and stepped on the accelerator. The long scarf got caught in the rear wheel of her car, pulled tight and strangled her. Of such stuff are great legends made.

Three weeks ago a great death was had by a man named Harry S. Truman, not President Harry S. Truman, who in fact died a sort of fair death, but of eighty-three year-old Harry S. Truman, who managed Silver Lake Lodge. For over half a century the only hotel near the rim of the crater of Mt. St. Helens. Any geologists or tourists who wanted to explore the dormant volcano invariably stayed with Mr. Truman and his two dogs at the lodge.

One month ago, when Mt. St. Helens began rumbling and crackling , worried authorities advised all residents living near the mountain to evacuate the area in the event the old volcano decided to blow.

"That volcano wouldn't harm me," Truman told the many reporters who came up to the mountainside to visit him. "I'm perfectly safe here."

Harry Truman put up a brave old-man-of-the-mountain front to all the media people who interviewed him, and indeed he showed no fear whatever, going about his business in spite of the fact that all others around him were fleeing.

Privately, however, Truman told close friends that he was staying by the volcano for quite a different reason.

"I wouldn't know what to do if I wasn't running the volcano lodge. Hell, if I left here I'd be dead in two weeks anyway."

These, apparently, were the last words of Harry S. Truman.

On May 22, Mt. St. Helens let go with an explosion of the force of several atomic bombs. It was several days before authorities could get to the area where the Silver Lake Lodge once stood, and when they did, they found nothing – absolutely nothing. Mr. Truman, the lodge, the dogs, everything was just a powder of volcanic ash.

Another really great death, in my opinion anyway, took place in Neptune, New Jersey last Wednesday, June 4. It occurred to a fellow named William Fischer, a thirty-one year-old employee of the Ocean Township road department.

Mr. Fischer was in love, it surely would seem, with a young woman named Karen Wooley. Karen Wooley was twenty-four, the mother of a three year old son, and living in an apartment after separating from her husband.

Fischer carried on with Mrs. Wooley for a considerable length of time, but about a month ago Ms. Wooley ended the relationship and rebuffed all attempts by Mr. Fischer to bring about a reconciliation.

Mr. Fischer was distraught. On Tuesday afternoon, the day before Mr. Fischer's great death, he visited Karen Wooley and was absolutely beside himself. Again Karen told him there was no way she would continue the relationship, but this time Fischer got violent. He pushed her around, threw an ashtray into the television set, and ripped her telephone off the wall. Then he left.

Karen Wooley left her apartment with her son and went over to spend the evening with her father, John Torchia, who lived nearby. After talking to her father, she decided she was so afraid of what Fischer might do that she ought to spend another night at her father's house. She also called the police and registered a complaint against Fischer, stating

The Sheltered Islander, Only in Dan's Papers

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander #112
"We hold these truths to be self-evident..."

Happy Fourth of July to Everyone! I wish you family fun, barbeques and clambakes! And I also hope you raise a styrofoam cup to the memories of those who made the day possible. I did some research, initially just for my own curiosity, but I decided to share what I found. Have you ever wondered what happened to those men who signed the Declaration of Independence?

The year is 1776. The population of New York is 23,000. It must have been an amazing time. Half the country enraged and wanting war, half wanting to remain part of the British Empire.

Do you know how Americans became coffee drinkers? It was one of the precipitating events that brought on rebellion. You see, the British dumped the Jamaican coffee they got in the triangle trade on us. Colonists were tea drinkers. But, in order to buy a quarter pound of tea, you had to buy three quarters of a pound of coffee. It was an oft cited example of how the British boot was on the colonists' necks even in their own kitchen.

The signers of the Declaration of Independence were comprised of twenty-four lawyers and judges, eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners, all were men of means and well educated for their time.

They signed the Declaration knowing full well that the penalty would be death if captured.

Five signers were captured by the British as traitors and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine of the fifty-six signers fought and died from their wounds or the hardships of the war that followed.

Carter Braxton of Virgina, a wealthy planter and trader, lost his trading ships which were specific targets of the British Navy. He sold his home and properities to pay his debts and died in rags.

Thomas McKean was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay, and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him and poverty was his reward.

British soldiers looted the properties of Ellery, Clymer, Hall, Walton, Cwinnett, Heyward, Ruttledge and Middleton.

At the Battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson Jr, noted that the British General Cornwallis, had taken over Nelson's home for his headquarters. Nelson urged General George Washington to open fire. The home was destroyed, and Nelson died bankrupt.

Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife, and she died a miserable death within a few months.

John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their thirteen children fled for their lives. His fields and grist mill were destroyed. For more than a year, he lived in forests and caves, returning home after the war to find his wife dead, his children vanished. A few weeks later he died from exhaustion and a broken heart.

Norris and Livingston also saw their families destroyed.

Such were the sacrifices of the original signers. It does us all good to take a moment and remember these men. We know they weren't saints. The same is true today, isn't it? Many politicians may be great thinkers and doers and still be gamblers, drunks or adulterers. Thomas Jefferson, who authored the document, had illegimate children with a slave and hypocritically kept slaves till the end of his life despite his protestations that slavery should have ended at the nation's inception.

We know the Declaration of Independence wasn't perfect either. We all understand and acknowledge the famous compromise that made our African-American brethren pay a heavy bloodprice for starting our country. We also acknowledge that less than a century later, our northern European-American brethren paid a heavy bloodprice to correct it. (We have to be consistent, it's black/white or African-American/European-American.)

Still, it had to take an awesome amount of personal courage to sign that paper. I'm not sure I could have done it if it meant endangering my family. I think the signers of the Declaration called upon the righteous best in them as they took a deep breath and signed that parchment paper that fateful day.

Happy Fourth!

elaine k.g. benson, her daughter's column

I don't understand how anyone can say they hate the Hamptons. I understand hating the traffic. I understand that commuting is terrible but hating the Hamptons in general must mean you've never been here. There is so much to do here that you might find it impossible to keep up, but hating "it" is a terrible idea.

Every weekend is packed with the possibility of going to the beach, fishing, kayaking, entertaining, gallery openings, concerts, fundraisers, nature walks, lectures, etc. If you love celebrity, you can see Billy Joel, Roy Scheider, the Baldwins, Eli Wallace, Ann Jackson and many more just by going to the supermarket or out to dinner. Easier is attending one of the many fundraising events throughout the summer. There are almost always celebrity chair-people.

Jazz at Jennings is a jazz concert that takes place at Peter Jennings and his wife, Kayce Freed's house. There have been four concerts over the last five years. It's fun to check out the lifestyle of the rich and famous but believe it or not, that is not the high point of the event. The world's greatest jazz performers have taken part in making these evenings of jazz shine in my memory as some of the most magical evenings of my life. The concerts benefit the Bridgehampton Child Care and Rec. Center. The last few concerts have helped fund renovations and repair of the center's buildings. Some percentage has gone into programs. This year the balance has shifted and most of the money will go directly to programs for the center's children.

The Bridgehampton Child Care and Recreational Center's summer program (camp) is about to begin. This is an affordable, full-day camp including sports, field trips, gardening, small animal husbandry, a farm stand, art projects and other cultural events.

The Center started in 1949 when a house fire killed the children of migrant field workers. The need for a safe, clean, friendly environment for children has not diminished during the last fifty years. The Center now provides an after-school program focusing on tutoring. For the younger children there are activities including arts and crafts, dance, sports, writing a center newsletter, computer skills, and gardening. For older children and teens there is a youth program which includes computer work, dance, karate, Rap sessions, health workshops, and recreational and cultural field trips. The teens take part in determining their own programs. The youth building for teens will be renovated this fall.

The Child Care Center is a "pet" involvement of Peter Jennings and Kayce Freed. They are on the advisory board. I'm on the board of the center. It's my pet, as well.

Saturday night's Jazz at Jennings was a joy. Peter said it was the best ever. It's hard to know. They have all been incredible. Last year I "fell in love" with Al Grey. He died this spring but is alive in my memory. This year, I was charmed by meeting Anne Bancroft and Mel Brooks. One of the highpoints of the concert was a rendition of "Georgia" sung by Shannon Gibbons and dedicated to Penny and David McCall who died last year doing refugee relief work in Albania. "Georgia" was one of David's favorite songs.

With all this it's important to say that it is still possible to live a peaceful, solitary life in the Hamptons. It's often best to stay home, water the flowers and watch the carrots grow. I have lots of friends who choose to never go out on the weekends and spend "family time."

work, so Hedda Gabler comes in under those auspices. Norwegian playwright Henrik Ibsen is considered one of the first "moderns" to show the psychological motivations of his characters. He wrote his great verse play Peer Gynt in 1867, but then went on to write many prose plays dealing with the hypocrisies of Western society including A Doll's House, Ghosts, An Enemy of the People, The Wild Duck and The Master Builder.

Hedda Gabler, written in 1890, is still relevant today. It plays Wednesdays through Sundays until July 9. Tickets are available by calling the box office at (631) 725-9500 (11 a.m. until 6 p.m.). Bay Street Theatre has a reading of James Kirkwood's play Legends with Lypsinka (James Epperson) and Sinthea Starr (Joel Vig) on Monday, July 3, at 8 p.m.

WHITE BURGUNDY SALE!

1997 Corton Charlemagne by LOUIS LATOUR $950 CS

Huge ripeness in its poached white fruit and hazelnut aromatics. On the palate it is broad, creamy, luscious and hedonistic. It possesses a long, dense and flavorful finish.

93 PTS ROBERT PARKER

We are $70 less per case than the closest competition on this wine.

1998 CHASSAGNE LAGUICHE by Drouhin $815 Case* (2 CS Avail)

The Marquis De LAguiche Only Makes Two Wines: 1 - MONTRACHET LAGUICHE ($3600 cs) Also available
2 - CILASSAGNE LAGUICHE ($825 cs)*

This is one of the best Chassagne Monrtrachets that we have ever had. It has richness and purity that only the highest level whites possess. It is extremely limited.

1996 CHASSAGNE MONTRACHET by GAGNARD $399 Case

"Thick and opulent, this full bodied, rich and ripe white manages to maintain a firm structure packed with intense acidity. Offers plenty of lime, pink grapefruit, melon and cream flavors. Not overly, just a bit toast and smokey on the incredibly intense finish."

1995 or 1996 PULIGNY MONTRACHET by DROUHIN $365 Case

Good mineral character, ripe fruit and honey combined prettily in this clean, pure White. Full-bodied, it is fresh and nicely under-oaked to bring uncomplicated drinking pleasure from start to finish. Joseph Drouhin is one of Burgundy's most renowned producers.

1996 PERNAND VERGELESSES by PIOT $199 Case

Super crisp, full bodied and delicious White Burgundy. Do you like Puligny Montrachet but are looking for a great under $20 White? Try this! DAVE SOKOLIN: THIS IS INTENSE AND COMPLEX WINE. IF YOU DISLIKE KENDALL JACKSON CHARD, YOU'LL LOVE THIS.

1996 BOURGOGNE BLANC by LOUIS LATOUR $135 CASE - 3 CS $125

THIS WINE BEAT 1998 LOUIS LATOUR PULIGNY MONTRACHET DURING A RECENT IN-STORE TASTING. IT IS SOFT, RICH CHARDONNAY WITH STYLE AND ELEGANCE FOR ABOUT $10 BUCKS.

Did you catch the Barbara Walter's TV show The View last week? Enid "Twinnie" Weiss of Amagansett and her twin sister "Winnie" were featured on Barbara's show which was a tribute to Barbara's father, Lou Walters, owner of the Latin Quarter Night Club. Twinnie and Winnie were the featured French Can-Can dancers there for many years and they did a capsule form of it on the show. It's already been featured on ET and you will probably see and read more about the twin show stealers. By the way, "Twinnie" is the wife of Sam Weiss, who, with their son Michael Weiss owns the hot record label Nervous. They can be spotted at Nick & Toni's in East Hampton at their usual table, where they are regulars.

Bridgehampton's Don Hewitt, who created the amazingly successful 60 Minutes newsmagazine, has signed on for four more years, six months before his current contract is up. This would keep Hewitt at the helm as executive producer until the end of 2004 – by which time he will be eighty-two.

For those who might say Hewitt is getting too old to shepherd the pioneering newsmagazine, Hewitt can point out that his premier correspondent, Mike Wallace is five years his senior.

Hewitt said he might consider retiring after 2004, but,. then again, probably not.

The Southampton Publick House was awarded a Silver medal in the World Beer Cup 2000, a global beer competition that recognizes the most outstanding beers being produced in the world today. The winners were announced June 19, at the World Beer Cup Gala Awards Ceremony and Dinner held at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in New York City. Southampton's Sullivan's Irish Ale captured the Silver Medal in the "Irish-style Ale" category. The Southampton brew is named after the Sullivan Brothers, the founders and owners of the Southampton Public House and is a brew that is produced on a seasonal basis at the Public House. Congratulations are in order.

During the same week in early June, business journalist Warren Strugatch made two significant moves; relocating to Hampton Bays and launching a new column in Long Island section of The New York Times. Called "L.I. @ Work," the weekly column peers into the business world of Nassau and Suffolk counties, finding the human angle behind the wheeling and dealing. Strugatch is an award-winning national journalist who's written for Newsday, New York magazine, the New York Times Sunday financial section and dozens of other media. Expect to see Strugatch nosing up, down and around the East End this summer, mining the local scene for those juicy, only-in-the-Hamptons biz stories.

Shelter Island Killer Gets Maximum Sentence

The first and only man ever charged and convicted of murder in Shelter Island's three and half century history got the maximum sentence for his crime – in spite of many pleas from the community for leniency.

Kenneth Payne III received a sentence of twenty-five years to life for the murder of Curtis Cook in 1998, after Cook made threatening remarks about Payne's girlfriend and daughter. At the time Cook was on bail on the charge of sexually molesting a young girl.

Payne and Cook were neighbors and had been longtime friends. Payne took a shotgun, walked next door and shot Cook when the latter opened the door.

The court received approximately seventy letters supporting a less harsh sentence for Payne, describing him as a good father with an alcohol problem. Among those requesting leniency for Payne were former Shelter Island Supervisor Hoot Sherman and former Police Chief Ben Byington, apparently much to the surprise of current Police Chief James Read.

that he had beat her, smashed the TV and ripped out the phone. Then she went to bed.

William Fischer, meanwhile, apparently spent the rest of the evening trying to find Karen. He had a plan. At 5 o'clock in the morning, as the sun was rising, he drove out to the Monmouth County Airport in Wall Township. He had located Karen. Now he would once and for all be done with her.

Climbing the cockpit of a twin engine plane belonging to the Garden State Aviation Company, he turned on the ignition, started it up, and flew off into the dim light of dawn.

Neighbors were awakened by the noise of Fischer's twin engine airplane as he circled Ms. Wooley's father's house at least seven times. Then, certain of exactly which of the split level house s on the block belonged to John Torchia, he put his airplane into a steep dive and headed down, kamikazi fashion, for what he thought would be the flaming ending to his life and the life of his ex-lover. But he missed.

The plane hit and exploded into the attached two-car garage of the Torchia house. Karen Wooley, the three year-old son and the father, John Torchia, easily escaped from the house out the windows before the whole place went up in flames. William Fischer, of course, was killed on impact. A great death.

Interestingly, in spite of all the facts, the local police chief Walter Gilbert was not willing to say that William Fischer had deliberately tried to do Karen Wooley in.

"To determine that he crashed into the house on purpose is very hard at this time," the police chief said. But then he thought better of it. "Certainly, though, it is not your ordinary plane crash."

Somewhere, already, there is a writer about to make this into a novel and a movie. –Dan Rattiner

Flight 800 off the Caost of Moriches four summers ago, has changed commanders. Outgoing Captain Phillip J. Heyl saw in the new Commander Todd Nelson. Heyl had taken over the Coast Guard Station in 1998, succeeding Commander Kenneth R. Burgess, Jr., who had been commander at the time of the tragedy of Flight 800.

Outgoing Commander Heyl was given credit for overseeing the station's Y2K readiness and for improving emergency preparedness. He received a Meritorious Service medal.

Incoming Commander Todd Nelson is an attorney who previously served as Assistant Legal Officer for the 17th Coast Guard District in Juneau, Alaska. He comes from a Coast Guard family, his grandfather and great-grandfather having served as Coast Guardsmen.

Thiele Opposes Increase In Spent Fuel At Millstone

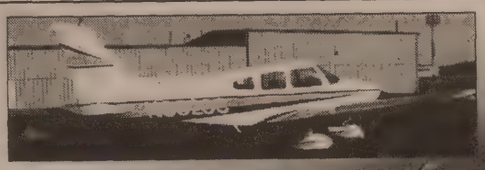

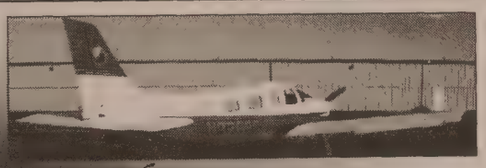

Assemblymen Fred Thiele is strongly opposing the application by the Millstone 3 Nuclear Power Station across the Sound in Connecticut to increase the capacity of its spent fuel storage pool. Thiele says this will create a high level waste repository that violates current safety regulations.

Thiele has sent letters to the Chairman of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board as well as the office of the Secretary, Rulemaking and Adjudication Staff at the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC). He writes, "This proposal also greatly increases the probability that the spent fuel pool water temperature will exceed the structural qualification temperature and reach the boiling point. The risk of this application far outweighs the benefit!...the addition of high-density storage racks...will unreasonably threaten public welfare."

Hillary's Hampton Happening

On a beautiful Saturday afternoon, made in the shade for a round of golf or a Pina Colada by the pool, more than a hundred people turned out to meet and support Hillary Rodham Clinton in her Senate bid. The event took place at the Water Mill home of Dennis Basso and Michael Cominotto. Dennis got a little choked up when thanking Mrs. Clinton, after all, he had been invited to the White House, but having the First Lady come to your house is another thing entirely. Mrs. Clinton talked about her views on national matters, including health care reform her long time passion, and discussed steps to save the environment on the East End. Her theme and the theme of the event was about "doing" and she challenged all who attended to be active participants in politics. The "do" slogan was very appropriate for me as I was wearing my "Can do Woman" teeshirt. Dennis may have found his calling. He acted like a Chief of Staff, making sure everyone had their picture taken with Hillary and found out each of their names and a little something about them to mention to Mrs. Clinton as they were introduced. Each person waiting on line had 10-15 minutes to think of something witty or compelling to say to the First Lady, while Mrs. Clinton had all of about 10 seconds to give a reply.

Moroccan Moods

We've entered the next fez. Regine Traulsen and Commissioner Bill Diamond threw a Morrocan dinner party at their new home in the historic Whitefield estate. Caftans are not familiar sites along Hill Street in Southampton but many chose to dress the part for this party. The cocktails were on the veranda of the main house in Whitefield and I wonder if architect Stanford White could look down and see Morrocan rugs on parts of the gardens Dan and "his" Cat walked thru all of the beautiful rose gardens in full bloom. After cocktails, guests were invited in for dinner and belly dancing, with a professional belly dancer and amateur guests. Luckily the dancer only chose those guys with thin bellies although they were known to have fat bank accounts.

Jazz at Jennings

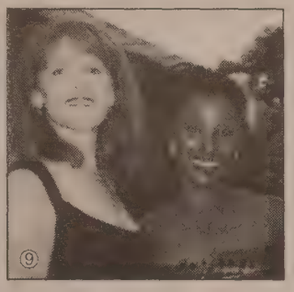

Saturday, June 24th brought out Jazz lovers galore to Jazz at Jennings, an event to raise money for the Bridgehampton Child Care and Rec Center. The "Lions and Legends" at Jazz made this a "magic evening." This year's concert was up there with the great events of a lifetime. The first Jazz at Jennings had Max Roach and Winton Marsalis playing together for the first time. Percy Heath has "played" at all four Jazz at Jennings concerts. We all thought that first year couldn't be beat. This was every bit as good and according to our host, Peter Jennigns, "the best ever!" I'm still star struck.

YOUR GUIDE TO EAST END WINERIES A

Macari Vineyards – from humble potato fields to the cutting edge of Long Island wine making.

Wines By Morrell

Possibly one of the most attractive wine shops in the country is presently in East Hampton. Located at 74 Montauk Highway in the Red Horse Shopping Mall, the shop features an extensive collection of representative wines and spirits from around the world including a large number of cold sakes, the finest wines from Long Island, summer roses, and a knowledgeable staff focused on service. The shop also features a climate controlled wine vault (Old & Rare Room), antique wine posters, wine antiques on consignment and a wine tasting area highlighted by a seven foot diameter tunneau or wine barrel built in Paris in 1850.

Various old wine and liquor bottles adorn the interior and one can find old maderas from the late 1800's as well as large casks of whisky from 1865 still in their original wooden enclosures.

Starting on Memorial Day Weekend and continuing each week on Saturdays from 4-7 p.m., the store will conduct wine tastings with various vineyards and producers featuring their best wines. In additional to the complementary wine, each presenter will share details about the wine, how it was made and how it should be served. An extensive collection of wines and spirits and friendly service make Wines By Morrell an exciting and unique shop to drop by and surround yourself in wine memorabilia and good conversation. So come on by and sit around the outdoor water fountain while sipping a cool glass of whatever suits your fancy.

DAN'S WINE LIST

Macari Vineyards is the quintessential North Fork spuds to vines success story. For years the Macari family of Queens had owned a sprawling potato farm north of Sound Avenue. After an adjacent winery went under in 1992, the Macaris purchased the land and fulfilled their dream of producing wines. p. 121.

Lenz Winery in Peconic has barreled its way to international recognition. Aggressive marketing has played a part. So too has a trio of stunning appraisals for its wines at prestigious wine-tasting events in world capitals. Lenz' owner Peter Carroll reflects on the winery's emergence as a regional powerhouse. p. 122.

With its always reliable lineup of vintages and ever-savvy marketing efforts, Palmer Vineyards is known not just throughout America – but above it as well, thanks to Palmer's presence aboard American Airlines. We take a look at some special events planned at the winery this year and also offer some tips on the label's best buys. p. 124.

The philosophy of Southold's Seafood Barge, built around a devotion to excellence and eagerness to experiment, has stayed as fresh as the restaurant's hallmark ingredients. p. 126.

It seems fitting that the North Fork's Promotional Council has chosen the local wine industry as the focal point of its efforts this year. As the North Fork's season as a tourist destination continues to expand, the role of the vineyards has moved front and center. p. 128.

The North Fork's culinary bounty doesn't begin and end with its sensational local ingredients. The region also boasts a surfeit of exceptional chefs. For the benefit of the cooking public, Mattituck's Heritage Inn shares the recipes for two of their most acclaimed dishes. p. 129.

WINE SPECTATOR

June 15th, 2000

I reviewed almost 90 wines from 31 producers....only two wines received outstanding. Long Island, especially the North Fork, has clearly emerged as the regional leader in the eastern United States. Besides producing the two best wines... the concentrated 1995 Cupola, a cabernet blend from Bedell cellars (90 pts, $25), Long Island topped every varietal category in the tasting.

Thomas Matthews, Wine Spectator pg 135

95 Bedell "Cupola"

Rich and ripe. This generous, well-defined red is packed with plum and currant flavors, with firm tannins and toasty oak notes. A good match for grilled meats. A blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc and Merlot. Tasted twice, with consistent notes. Drink now through 2004. (430 cases produced) 90 pts Wine Spectator

98 Corey Creek Reserve Chardonnay $225 cs

Firm and polished, this well-structured white offers melon, honey and sweet vanilla flavors. Harmonious and lively on the finish. Drink now through 2002.
(413 cases produced) 88 pts Wine Spectator

FYI: Other wines in this issue: 98 peter Michael Chard 89 pts $80 btl

Macari Vineyards – Quality through Teamwork and Dedication.

By Roy Bradbrook

"Back in 1974 when I bought this land which was mainly used for potato growing, I wanted to plant vines here," Joe Macari Sr. told me. "Unfortunately, at that time everyone thought I was mad to suggest it and the Town turned the plans down so that was that." If Joe, a very successful real estate developer in New York, had had his way Macari Vineyards would have been the first vineyard on Long Island but as things turned out he had to wait until 1992, when his son, Joe Jr., and wife, Alexandra moved here from their home in Queens.

Joe Jr. has a background in building and construction, so the world of vineyards and wine making represented a new challenge for him as did looking after the organizational work and the sales and marketing, which is Alexandra's main task, apart, that is from bringing up four young children!

"Our family grew up with wine, because of our heritage," Joe Sr. explained. "Even the emphasis on organic compost nourishment comes from my mother's example growing up in Queens. She insisted that we all keep her compost heap going and she used this on the fruit trees. So what we do is really going back to basics."

The Macari family believe that if you are going to do something then it is no use playing at it. The initial planting, in the former potato fields they have owned since 1974, was sixty-seven acres of a number of varietals. Today, after buying ten acres of Merlot when the Mattituck Hills Vineyard went into foreclosure in 96, Macari Vineyards has 175 acres of their 370 acre estate planted with vines and they are still add on to it each year.

Joe Macari Jr., who is now the President of the Winery, is dedicated to ensuring the successful future of the business. He has been behind many of the innovations such as using a laser planter from Germany to ensure that vines are planted exactly in accordance with the best methods of modern vineyard management.

"Buying the parcel of land from Mattituck Hills gave us a great location because it fronts the main road," said Alexandra Macari. "We then brought in Carol DiCicco-Vinci, who is a well known New York architect to design the new tasting room. The decks were extended and we added warehouse space and a new bottling line."

Bernard Ramis is the vineyard manager and hails from the Languedoc region of France. He explained how he came to be on Long Island, " I came to the US because I wanted to extend my international experience but at that time I had no idea that grapes were grown on Long Island. I lived for a while in New York City after being in California and then I saw an advertisement for this position so I called Joe Macari Jr. When I came out here I was amazed by the countryside and the quality of the vineyards and the wines being produced at Macari." In conversation with Bernard, he expounded on how Macari is working towards the situation where the vineyards will be totally organic. "We have not added nitrogen for several years and we do not use herbicides on the vines. Only organic compost is used from our own compost beds which are fed with waste fish, manure from our herd of Texas Long Horn cows and with straw and hay. Grass is not used because it most likely will have been treated with commercial fertilizers and weed killer."

Perhaps being a philosopher is an integral part of the make up of viticulturists and winemakers because both Bernard and Jose Montilla who is the Wine Maker at Macari explained how, in the last analysis, everything that they do and all their considerable expertise can be totally thwarted by even a few day's rogue weather, let alone a hurricane such as the one last year which devastated the Pinot Noir crop. "It wasn't just the hurricane," Bernard continued," the salt toxicity which it deposited on the leaves affected the canopy and prevented the grapes from ripening properly. You just can not overstate the importance of the weather here to us. The winters are so long compared to France and Spain and grapes such as Pinot Noir and Cabernet Sauvignon, in particular will always be among the most difficult to grow because they really need a long season to ripen fully. Our goal is not yield but quality. Around three to 3 1/2 tons per acre is our expectation. If the grapes are not right then they will not go to Jose to be made into wine."

Macari's Continental connection – Jose Montilla and Bernard Ramis

Montilla comes from Barcelona and has considerable experience in wine making in both his native Spain and also in Portugal. He is a great believer in the preeminence of quality and he is delighted with the work being carried out in the vineyards by Bernard and his team. "Everything we are doing will result in the grape quality continually improving. The number of varietals will probably reduce as we find out more and more about the ideal ones for the combination of soil and weather in this part of Long Island."

After touring the beautiful Macari property and the immaculate wine making and bottling areas, naturally it was important to taste the wines with Jose offering his expert comments. Macari produces a sparkling wine which is produced by the methode champenoise with its classic double fermentation and continual 'remuage,' where the bottles are slightly shaken, twisted and tipped slightly nearer vertical before the sediment is finally disgorged after having been frozen. There now is a machine which does most of this and takes away the very labor intensive nature of the traditional hand turning method. The Macari sparkling wine has a very clean taste with an abundance of fine bubbles. This wine sells for just under $17 and will hold its own against many pricier competitors, including both sparkling wines and champagnés. Jose told me that they are working on a vintage cuvee from the '99 Chardonnay and the results of this will be seen (and tasted) in about three years time.

The '98 Viognier produced by Macari is an excellent wine which won a Bronze Medal in competition with entries from forty-nine other countries at the prestigious International Wine and Spirit Show in London. This is a very good wine, which sells for $15 and has a combination of fruit flavor and bouquet which makes it a good choice either to serve with fish or chicken or to enjoy on its own.

Another of their classic white wines is the '97 Reserve Barrel Fermented Chardonnay. This wine was chosen to be served at three White House Dinners, hosted by President and Mrs. Clinton. This is a supple wine with a blend of delicate oakiness and many fruit flavors and sells for just under $25 a bottle. Further proof of its quality came when it won a Bronze Medal at the London Wine Show.

Macari's '97 Merlot also won a Silver Medal at the International Show. This robust wine has an intense bouquet with a smooth taste and some lingering tannin. Overall this is a good wine at $22 to serve with most meats or again to enjoy on its own in front of a fire. If this sounds like your kind of wine then mark September 15th on your calendar for that is scheduled to be the day when Macari will release its latest masterpiece. Bergen Road '97 is a blend of 55% Cabernet Sauvignon, 25% Merlot, 16% Cabernet Franc and 4% Malbec. I was privileged to have a foretaste of this exceptional wine which seems certain to be featured in many good restaurants as well as being in demand for home consumption. The wine will likely sell at around $32 and Jose told me that, in his opinion, it will keep for at least three years and will stand comparison with many great French Bordeaux wines.

At Macari, they produce Rose wines only from red grapes. The '99 Rose d'une Nuit is blended from Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Cabernet Sauvignon has a beautiful color and is not at all sweet but has a soft flavor reminiscent of summer fruits. This Rose is a very refreshing wine for the summer and sells for $12 a bottle.

During my visit, Jose talked about what he regarded as the most important part of his work. "To me it is very important that the wine we produce is of the very best quality possible. I have already seen that in this part of Long Island we have the ability to make exceptional wines. Now it is time for us to concentrate on perfecting our Long Island style and to stop comparing ourselves with other wine making areas of the world. Also, as a winemaker, I want our customers to be happy with the wines they buy from us and they should know that we will never sell them a wine which we would not be ready to put on our own tables."

I also asked Joe Macari Jr. to explain what he sees as the long term goals for Macari Vineyards, "I have a vision of our really making a difference by bringing out the truest possible expression of what this region can contribute to wine production and to the best use of this beautiful property. Everything we plan to do here will be with the aim of lifting the self sufficiency of the soil by purely natural methods far beyond even what we are doing today and through this producing wines of the highest quality."

Joe Macari Sr. deserves the last words in this story of achievement because it was his dream many years ago which has now become a reality. "It has taken a lot of hard work and dedication to bring Macari Vineyards to where we are today and at times the going has been hard. It is a thrill to look over the vineyards and to see the finished wines and I am looking forward to even better results in the years ahead."

At Lenz, The Wine's the Thing

By Mary Foster

There's a "buzz" about Lenz. The Lenz Winery, now twenty-two years old, has remained a small, well-run estate producing not-so-small, in fact remarkable, results.

Like a "little farm that could" Lenz, has become widely recognized as one of the premier quality wineries on Long Island. It has become most prominent in the public's mind, perhaps, by virtue of its highly publicized comparative tastings. There have been seven tastings so far, including one in New York City, one in San Francisco and one in Paris. At these blind tastings, Lenz has pitted its wines against leading wines from France and California.

The tasters have included notable chefs, many from top French restaurants, wine industry people, some winemakers, a handful of Masters of Wine, and a few marquee tasting names like Stephen Spurrier, Zelma Long and Michel Dovaz.

Three very good vintages for the Carroll family, 1989, 1987, 1993; Lenz Merlot

The remarkable press that Lenz has received has become a rallying point for advertising the region as a whole. When you see the ad from the New York Wine and Grape Foundation quoting The New York Times, ("Either prestigious French wines are wildly overpriced, Long Island wines are the buy of the ages... or both,") that's about Lenz. Even though Lenz is not actually a member of the NYW&GF.

Oldest Vineyards

With some of the oldest, and most meticulously cultivated vineyards on Long Island (Lenz' first planting was in 1978 and they now have sixty-five acres), the winery has steadily gained international attention and critical praise for all its wines: chardonnay, merlot, cabernet sauvignon, gewürztraminer, and their méthode Champenoise sparkling wine.

One of the engines driving the high quality at Lenz has been its strong management team, put together by the owner Peter Carroll, when he bought the winery from founders Peter and Pat Lenz, who were previously owners of the 4-star restaurant, A Moveable Feast. Carroll, a businessman in his own right, hired talented people in three key roles: winemaker, vineyard manager, and marketing manager.

The word in the industry is that Lenz has excellent vineyards and it always has among the best, most-ripe fruit come harvest time. Meticulous vineyard management means devoting a tremendous amount of time and attention to the crop. Translation: money. Yet they keep prices down where they can. One of the best buys here – and possibly in the world – is the Lenz "White Label" chardonnay, available for years now at $9.99.

Out on a Limb?

To put "blind tastings" into perspective, here's a brief history: It was through blind tastings, especially one crucial one in Paris (1976), that California established its legitimacy in the wine world. By the unstinting efforts of one winery owner named Robert Mondavi, who kept putting his wines up against some of the best in the world, and a well-respected wine critic, Stephen Spurrier, who dared to write about what he saw and tasted, California, and Mondavi, became "respectable."

I recently asked Peter Carroll about the Lenz blind tastings and how they have affected the perception of

In Tasting, L.I. Wines Hold Own vs. French

By Richard J. Scholem

"Either prestigious French wines are wildly overpriced, Long Island wines are the buy of the ages or both. At least those were the conclusions that resulted from a recent blind tasting of Lenz Long Island wines and high-flying French headliners like Chateau Pétrus 1992, '93 and '94, J. Drouhin, Montrachet Marquis de Laguiche 1994, '95 and '96, Veuve Clicquot Gold 1989 and La Grande Dame 1988 and '89."

"And how do Lenz wines that cost from $10 to $30 stack up in head-to-head competition with French superstars? They equal or surpass them."

Palmer Vineyards – Maximizing the Quality Factor

By Roy Bradbrook

There have been many changes in the wine making industry on Long Island since the first vineyards were planted back in the 70's. Palmer Vineyards started in 1983 when Robert Palmer decided to plant vines on the sixty acres of land he owned in Aquebogue on the North Fork and then a further major step forward was taken when he acquired an additional fifty-five acres of established vines about ten miles away in Cutchogue. Palmer Vineyards has been in the forefront of many of the advances in vineyard management and wine-making and in the last four years it has invested over $500,000 in upgrading the winery with new tanks, a new bottling line and press. Today, Palmer can claim to be one of the most widely distributed wineries on Long Island. Palmer wines can be found across wide stretches of the US and Canada and can be bought in the United Kingdom, Switzerland and Scandinavia. Palmer wines are also featured by American Airlines on their transcontinental First Class service.

"We have a continuing commitment towards improving the quality of our wines," Tom Drozd told me. Tom is the winemaker at Palmer and is a classic case of local boy makes good. When Tom spent part of his college time in Italy, where he studied Renaissance Art and the Italian language, he already had a love of agriculture, because he grew up in Aquebogue where all around grew potato, corn and other crops. Tom also had an interest in wine production and when he returned to the North Fork, he began to work in a Jamesport winery in an entry level position. In 1988 he moved to Palmer Vineyards as Cellar Master and since then gradually worked his way up to Associate Winemaker until, in 1998, Bob Palmer promoted him to the top job of winemaker. "These twelve years were a wonderful opportunity to learn my craft and I am very grateful to all those who helped me. Bob Palmer was totally supportive in allowing me to take on increased responsibilities. One of the factors that really drew me into winemaking is the freedom that it offers along with the wide responsibilities. Every year is different and for someone like me who has always had a leaning towards creative production it is a very satisfying profession. It was a great thrill when we bottled the first wine that had been produced since I became winemaker."

Tom Drozd pours one of his creations

I asked Tom to expand more on the particular philosophy that he brings to his role, "If I have to try to summarize our objectives it would be that we are striving to bring all of the varied attributes of the soil, climate, grapes, yeast and casks into a total balance. This is the total imprint of this region and from it derives the true identity of our wines. We are continually working to refine the combined art and science of vineyard management and wine making to obtain the optimal results."

Palmer Vineyards grows eight varieties, with Merlot and Chardonnay being the largest quantities. Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Blanc, Gewurztraminer and Riesling complete the list. The Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon grapes have an intense color and deep fruit flavor and the clones from these selections are propagated in nurseries and sold nationally as the 'Palmer Clone'.

Before tasting some of the wines which they have for sale, Tom took me into the winery and carefully drew a sample of the '99 late - harvest Gewurztraminer which is almost ready for bottling. He explained that they had expected this wine to be special because the grapes had been exceptionally full and ripe and showed a degree of the 'noble rot' that comes from the botrytis fungus which is essential for the production of a great sweet wine. This wine had an incredible bouquet and flavors of fruit and spice and perfumes. When bottled it promises to have an elegance without heaviness which will make it comparable to the best Alsatian productions of this delicious wine. Normally this is a wine that many would select to drink with a fine dessert but this wine seems likely to deserve being kept for sipping as an aperitif or to be paired with some seared Foie Gras. "Either Prestigious French Wines are Wildly Overpriced, Long Island Wines are the Buy of the Ages... or Both"

New York Times, August, 1998

3000 miles closer than Napa Valley, 5,358 kilometers closer than Bordeaux, and only 70 miles from New York City, the world's most exciting and influential new wine region has emerged on Eastern Long Island.

As the praise and awards continue to accumulate, Long Island wines have become sought-after products in fine restaurants and wine shops from coast to coast and beyond national borders.

A Unique Climate

Once you have toured the area's vineyards and wineries you will better understand this astounding success. Snuggled between ocean, bay, and sound, few regions in the world offer the unique combination of climate, soil characteristics, and growing conditions so essential to the production of premium wines.

"The Graves-like subsoils, long and generally temperate growing seasons combined with a group of conscientious quality-driven producers, has resulted in some of the east coasts finest wines." ~World-wide wine authority, Robert Parker, December, 1999.

Since 1973 this beautiful maritime region has grown from one small vineyard to more than two dozen wineries, and will soon surpass 3000 acres of vines.

LONG ISLAND WINE COUNTRY

THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE

By Roy Bradbrook

Dick Ehrlich, the owner of the Clam Bar restaurant at Napeague on the South Fork bought the Seafood Barge about five years ago and since then, with his team of consummate professionals who run the restaurant, has developed into being considered as one of the very top restaurants on Long Island. "We decided to reduce the setting from 245 to 175 to allow more space between tables and to improve the ambiance," he told me, "there is nothing worse than being crammed elbow to elbow. The restaurant has a beautiful view of the water and we wanted to hold on to that open airy feeling."

Scott Jaffe has been the Executive Chef at the Seafood Barge for the past three years. He is a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America and worked in Nantucket before coming to Long Island. He gives a lot of credit to his grandmother for the way that his love of cooking has developed over the years. Even though he is only twenty-nine years old he has shown a remarkable maturity and imagination in his cooking style and has built a considerable loyal following over the last three years. Two years ago the Seafood Barge took another major step forward when David Huang joined them as the Sushi Chef.

I asked Huang, who received many years of training in the art of sushi preparation with Jiro in Manhattan in the preparation of sushi, how sushi has been received by their clientele. "We ensured that all of the waitstaff could explain to customers just what sushi is and the different types that we serve. We always try to make sure that if a customer doesn't want one of our varieties that we substitute something to their taste. Today we have a sushi team of five persons in the kitchen and sushi is an important part of our dining experience".

The Seafood Barge
Main Road, Southold
765-3010

One of the first persons who greeted us on our recent visit was Daniel Luce, Wine Director for the restaurant. The wine list is very comprehensive and very well presented so that diners can easily focus on the type of wine from which they will choose. For example, even if you only want to order a glass of wine with your meal it is not just a choice of 'House Red' or 'House White' without having any idea of what you are likely to end up drinking. Daniel offers a choice of seven pouring wines, all from Long Island vineyards, ranging from a very drinkable light '98 Sauvignon Blanc, Channing Perrine from Mudd Vineyard to a deep rich '97 Merlot from Macari as well as Corey Creek's fruity '97 Rose. " We are pleased to showcase our local wines because they are now of such high quality. We also have some Long Island wines here that would be difficult to find in other places. These 'Library Wines' are really exceptional, whether you choose the Lenz '94 or '95 Merlot or the '97 Chardonnay from the Schneider Vineyards or any of the others on the list and we will always try to help diners choose something which is going to be to their total satisfaction".

After talking for a while with Daniel, we were shown to our table by Tony Thompson, the assistant manager of the restaurant. First up was a plate of sushi that deserved to be photographed for its artistic qualities. As good as they looked, we soon found this was amply matched by the taste. The highlight of the sushi plate was the centerpiece, a delicate flowerlike offering of a fish which we could not place. Tony told us in the end, that it was, in fact, made from a porgy chosen earlier that day by David from a local fisherman's catch. The sushi offerings together with ginger and horse radish. were complemented by a glass of ice cold sake (rice wine), which Daniel suggested we taste. This was the top of their range of three sakes they offered and was incredibly smooth and potentially potent! If you have never tasted sake, beware of the fact that its taste is gentle but it is extremely strong.

After the sushi we moved on to one of Scott Jaffe's specialty appetizers, organically grown oysters encrusted in cornmeal, lightly fried and served with aioli and chipotle peppers. Jaffe has really taken the preparation of fish and seafood to a very high level as was again shown in the entrees we tried. Soft shell crabs were one of Scott's daily specials and he pan roasts these and serves them with whipped Yukon Gold potatoes and local asparagus topped with a white wine and lemon sauce. The other dish we selected came from the regular entree menu, swordfish encrusted in peppercorns and served with a green peppercorn sauce. The fish was incredibly white and fresh and the peppercorns and the sauce added a piquancy to the taste. Baby bok choy and a wonderful hash made from five different types of potatoes was a very pleasing accompaniment to a satisfying meal. With the soft shell crabs, we sampled the '98 Riesling from Peconic Bay Vineyards and at Daniel's insistence, the '93 Pindar Mythology, a blend of Cabernet Franc and Merlot with 10% Cabernet Sauvignon.

The dessert menu at the Seafood Barge varies from day to day although a New York style cheesecake is always a stable item on the menu. The flourless chocolate cake that we tried came with a white and dark chocolate sauce and the superb flavor of the Belgian chocolate used in this rich dish lingered for a long while after the plate had been cleaned.

The Seafood Barge also has the facility to cater for private parties of up to fifty people in a separate section of the restaurant.

North Fork Promotion Council Showcase Vineyards, Wineries

By Roy Bradbrook.

At the Season's Opening Press Party held at the Corey Creek Vineyards, Neboysha Brashich, the President of the North Fork Promotion Council explained their key objectives. "Tourism is very important to all of us who live or work on the North Fork. Last year, we reached about 60,000 visitors through our two information booths and our mailings and we conservatively estimate that this has generated over $10 million in revenue to the region. Each year we showcase a particular aspect of the region, last year we focused on the historic homes and this year we are promoting the Wine Industry which has grown and flourished so much. I must thank Joel Lauber for offering this beautiful spot to hold the party and to John and Nikki Perry of Gristina for the catering supplied by the charmingly named 'A Small Affair'. Thanks also to our staff who work very hard to help us build and keep a sensible balance between expanding tourism while preserving our beautiful environment."

Audrey Wigley is the Promotional and Administrative Director of the Council and I talked with her in more detail about their work. "Really, this all started back in '87, with the Southold Promotional Committee and then in '93 the current Association was formed. We have grown ever since and we are hoping for two more members to join us later this year. One of our main objectives now is to extend the tourism season. The North Fork is beautiful and has so much to offer all year round. Many of the wineries are open all year to visitors and more and more restaurants and shops are staying open. Thanksgiving, and Christmas are special times here and we hope that many more visitors will come to share these with us.'

Corey Creek Vineyards

Joel Lauber shared his views of the Long Island wine industry, "If you look at the way things have gone, I would say that we are just leaving our infancy and moving into the age of puberty! The '80's were the survival times with the '90's being the age of recognition. With the dawn of the new millennium this must be the time when we reinforce our commitment to quality." The feeling of people was the recent investments in the Long Island wine industry is a encouraging sign that the region has gained the recognition that Joel Lauber talked of and is poised to make major steps forward.

The event was well supported by many of the North Fork vineyard owners and their senior staff, who brought along samples of their current offerings for the guests to enjoy.

tasted this wine the aftertaste lingered so well that it was a pity that we had to clear our palates to move on to taste some of the other Palmer wines.

The '97 Select Reserve White is a blend of 45% Chardonnay, 32% Pinot Blanc, 20% Sauvignon Blanc and 3% Gewurztraminer and has produced a definite blend of apple and citrus flavors which makes it a very good wine to accompany seafood dishes. This wine normally sells for $17 but recently has been on sale at $11 and is a real bargain at this price. Another recommended white wine is the Palmer '98 Estate Chardonnay which sells for $12. It is made from a blend of stainless steel and barrel fermented wine and has a very crisp style. Drink this wine with poultry, veal and seafood.

Among their range of red wines, the '97 Reserve Merlot at $30 is outstanding in quality now and will continue to get better over the next four or five years. Tom explained that they took the very best of the grapes and warm fermented them with maximum maceration (the process of soaking and softening which extracts color and tannin from the grapes). The wine was then stored in French oak barrels for eighteen months before it was bottled. Although this is a very good wine for laying down, it is fully drinkable now but, as with all young full bodied wines, it will benefit from gentle aeration, so it is a good idea to decant it even though there is unlikely to be any sediment yet. This is a wine to complement the very best red meat dishes, duck or roasted game or to be enjoyed simply on its own.

Palmer Vineyards believes very much in attracting visitors throughout the year to see first hand how wine is made and to taste their range of wines. They are arranging a series of, what they are calling 'Perfect Pairs' events on Saturdays during the summer. According to Jeanne Lamendola, the Special Events manager for Palmer, "Marianne Preston is a well known cookbook author and she will be demonstrating how to grill a wide range of meats, fish and vegetables and each week we will pair the grilled food with one of our wines. The demonstrations will start on July 15th and run until August 26th. The first one, for example will pair Shrimp, Pork and Roasted Corn with our 98 Pinot Blanc. All visitors who buy a glass of the wine will be able to taste the food for free. We also will be having special offers for people who wish to purchase the wine to take home. Then we will round off the series on August 26th. Scott Tarwater from Disney's Fulton Crab House and Portobello Restaurants will give a seminar on Aroma Component Sampling and a Food and Wine Cause and Effect Demonstration followed by dinner catered by the Salamander Gourmet Grocery Store in Greenport and dancing to the Toby Altman Jazz Band. We are asking people to call us early, at 516 722 WINE - ext. 21, for reservations, for what promises to be an evening of fun, good food and learning more about wine, as we have a restricted seating capacity."

Palmer Vineyards has come a very long way since Bob Palmer first decided to be one of the winemaking pioneers on the East End of Long Island and he and his team are determined to carry on working to enhance the purity and distinction of their wines and to continue to make them accessible to a broad spectrum of wine drinkers around the world.

Long Island and Lenz wines.

MF: Peter, aren't you going out on a limb, putting a small American winery up against the world's greats?

PC: Well, I'm having fun with this, after all the hard work at the winery. Obviously I've left myself open to slings and arrows, but I think our wines can take the challenge.

MF: So you are as much interested in how your wines stack up to the greats, as in making a point about wine prices?

PC: Yes. And we emerging wine regions are at a disadvantage price-wise. We have to buy our vineyards, our vines, and pay the expense of importing*Vosges* barrels, at $600 each, for instance. I'm trying to make the point that even equaling the prestigious wines in blind tastings, our wines are a bargain! But don't take my word for it, have your own comparative tasting.

MF: Well, we just might take you up on the challenge!

PC: I have to tell you of one more article that appeared in the press, because it tells the story so well. Richard Scholem of The New York Times was one of our tasters in the blind tasting at the Harbor Rose, in Sag Harbor, in 1998... Here's a part of what he wrote in The Times:

And how do Lenz wines that cost from $10 to $30 stack up in head-to-head competition with French superstars? They equal or surpass them. (So much for the pseudo wine sophisticates who say Long Island wines are overpriced.)

Remember those $10 Lenz chardonnays? Two of the three ('94 and '95) received higher marks than three Puligny Montrachets, a $45 Chartron 1995, a $44 Verget 1996 and a $29 Louis Latour 1994. Even more startling were the red wine rankings where Lenz's 1993, '94 and '95 merlots costing $25, $30 and $30 topped the $750 Chateau Petrus and its $550 1995 running mate.'

PC: (laughing) It's been said that a wine is profoundly naked without its label... When professional tasters prefer the Lenz, would you rather pay more? For a label?

THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE

All You Need Now Is A Glass Of Wine

By Roy Bradbrook

While I sincerely hope that you will follow our paths to new and old restaurants that we report on, unfortunately you are unlikely to be able to taste everything they have to offer.

So, for those of you who like to prepare exciting meals, from time to time we will publish some recipies, which the chefs we have interviewed have been prepared to share. Our first offering comes from Bob Rinere, the Proprietor of the Heritage Inn in Mattituck, who has provided recipes for two of his favorites, Heritage Veal Rolls and Fennel Salad with Shaved Parmesan.

Fennel Salad with Shaved Parmesan
(serves two)

1 large fennel bulb
Juice of 1/2 fresh squeezed lemon
2 tablespoons of extra virgin olive oil
Sea salt to taste
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
Four thinly shaved slices of parmigiano reggiano

Cut the fennel very thinly on the horizontal (that is cut from the bottom toward the stalk)
Cut the Parmesan very thinly (you can use a potato peeler or the slicing side of a hand grater)

1. In a mixing bowl combine the lemon juice, olive oil, salt and pepper. Add the sliced fennel and toss until evenly coated.

2. Remove to flat plate and top with the sliced parmesan cheese. Serve immediately.

Heritage Veal Rolls
Tender cutlets filled with proscuitto, sausage, cheese and herbs
(4 servings)

8 think sliced veal cutlets
1/4 cup chopped prosciutto
1/4 cup chopped Italian sausage
4 tablespoons butter (unsalted)
2 tbs. extra virgin olive oil
1/4 cup finely chopped shallots
2 tbs. chopped Italian parsley
1 tsp. finely chopped garlic
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1/4 cup grated parmesan
1/4 cup grated mozzarella
1/4 cup flour
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 cup of veal stock (or chicken stock)
Optional salt to taste

Filling:
Saute shallots, sausage, garlic, in two tablespoons of butter. Add black pepper to taste. Remove this mixture to a mixing bowl (drain excess fat) mix in the chopped prosciutto, parmesan cheese, mozarella cheese and chopped parsley. Mix together well. (salt to taste)

Tuscany Comes to the Hamptons
Friday, July 7th

Tuscany comes to the Hamptons as Fun With Wine.com hits the South Fork for the first of two fantastic summer wine parties. All of our parties are lively events, and this should be no exception.

We will sample at least 12 Italian wines on the beautiful grounds of Wolffer Estates Sagpond Vineyards (1 mile east of Bridgehampton). The property is very reminiscent of a Tuscan Villa and provides a perfect backdrop for this lovely event. The party will run from 7:30 to 10:30 PM.

Sign up for this event on-line at www.FunWithWine.com, under FunWithWine.com events. The cost is $65 with an on-line advance purchase reservation. For more information, or to pay by phone, call Nancy at (877) WINE-199.

Our next event will be on Aug. 4th at Wolffer Estates

A Summer's Walk In Wading River

By Loraine Page

My aunt stayed with me a few days recently. She used to live in my village years ago, and one evening I suggested a walk down memory lane. I grabbed a flashlight and we set out.

I felt alive and ready to enjoy night air and crickets. I never tire of ambling along these country roads, though this area is now, decades after I visited my aunt here as a child, referred to as suburbs. I was a city girl back then and Wading River, located at the base of the North Fork and noted for its high bluffs edging the Long Island sound, was beach paradise. I vowed I would live here some day.

My aunt felt winded. She had forgotten how hilly the roads are. I talked her into going on a bit farther, to the next road, for selfish reasons. Herod Point was where she had lived and memories of my summer visits there still tantalized — cute boys, raspberry bushes getting ripe, and apples falling off trees.

Herod Point sloped downward and my aunt felt better. She remembered that she promised her son in Florida, where she lives now, that she would visit Luca.

Luca is her son's godfather. I knew him as half of the couple "Lee and Luca," which my parents used to say so fast it could have been one name. I didn't know Luca but I knew some things that were said about him. Mostly they had to do with how quiet he is.

When we came upon Luca's green cottage, it appeared dark inside. My aunt said he wasn't home but I could see a TV screen flicker. She called his name through the screen door. Luca rose from the couch in his living room, where a game show blared. He opened the door and hugged my aunt fiercely. She introduced me to him, saying I was Antonio's daughter. He nodded.

I was nervous. Luca's beloved wife was dead and I knew they had been close. Childless, married five decades, they had spent every moment together. I heard that even at Smithhaven Mall, where some couples part and go their own ways, Lee and Luca walked together, arm in arm.

Lee succumbed to cancer two years ago, only a few months before it took my mother. My father never recovered from his loss. He took me to the hillside Wading River Cemetery several times to make sure I knew he was to be buried in the plot above her. A year and a half after my mother died, he joined her there. Now I was afraid I'd see Luca's pain and remember my father's.

But the man who stood before me looked good. He was tall and slim with brown hair combed neatly to the side. I was surprised to hear he is 85. He wore brown shorts, a white, short-sleeved shirt, a gold watch, and a ring with a red stone. He invited us into his tiny house, which was as obsessively clean and neat as my grandmother's house used to be, with cloth covers protecting the upholstery.

Luca went into his bedroom to get something. While he was gone, I remarked that he and his house appeared ready for company. I live alone and work at home. If you stopped in unexpectedly at my place, you'd find me in unattractive clothes and dishes piled up in my sink. When Luca returned, my aunt said, playfully, "Luca, my niece says everything looks so nice that maybe you were expecting company?"

"I'm alone," he said, shrugging. "Always alone."

Luca and my aunt went into the kitchen to examine photographs my cousin, his godson, had sent. I wandered around the living room inspecting framed pictures of Lee and Luca posing at weddings and on vacations. My father kept two pictures of my mother and him taped to the china cabinet in the kitchen. He saw them every time he sat down to eat. My mother sits in his lap in one.

My aunt oohed and aahed over the photos. Her grandchildren were in them and so was the new house my cousin bought. My aunt lives a mile away from her son, who is all she has left now. Luca said he tried to call his godson to thank him but there was no answer. This sparked a discussion and a flurry of paperwork to determine if he has the number for the new house. When this was settled, Luca showed my aunt a letter that had come also.

My aunt squinted at the typewritten letter. "Luca," she said, "this has to be Croatian. Why can't you read it?" Luca, like my father, comes from an island in the Adriatic Sea. It is called Croatia now but it used to be Yugoslavia. There's a contingent of Croations living on Eastern Long Island, maybe because the surrounding waters remind them of home.

Luca shrugged. Even though he married an American-born girl, as my father did, the very few words he spoke and his thick accent told me he was not comfortable with English. I took the letter, to see what language it was written in. When I saw all the j's and k's, I knew it was Croatian. My cousin had gotten someone of Croatian descent to write it not realizing it might be the wrong dialect. My aunt told Luca to find someone to translate for him.

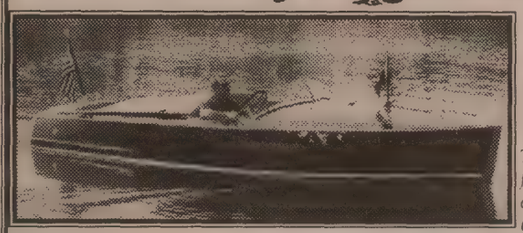

A couple of game shows on TV had run their course and it was getting dark outside. Luca wanted to show us a few things before we left.

He showed us that he had three TVs besides the one in the living room. He showed us his boat. I asked if he took it out anymore and he said no. I remember when my father sold his boat and his days of bluefish catching came to an end.

Walking to the gate at the end of Luca's walkway, I noticed that the lawn was mowed, the hedges clipped, and the flower beds weeded. "Yes, lot of work," said Luca when I remarked on this. "Lot of work, but I like it."

We said goodnight, and my aunt promised to call before she left for Florida. They hugged again, and I clicked on my flashlight. My aunt and I walked without speaking through the black night, breathing in the scent of honeysuckles. I reflected on how grateful I am to live here, especially in summer. Winter on Long Island is inevitable but maybe I could find things to like about it. Some people know how to embrace both seasons and maybe I could learn something from them.

Larry's Lighthouse Marina Inc.

Lucky Lindy crossed the ocean in his daring transAtlantic flight. Cops nosed around docks at night in search of illegal moonshine. And Jay Gatsby gazed out on the Long Island waters from Gold Coast bluffs, watching his dreams slip away with the tide.

These were the years between the wars when Americans, flush with post-depression optimism took to the waters on small motorboats. Their boat of choice was the Chris Craft Racing Runabout.

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

For many years, the reputation of the American car has taken a bashing from the public. Let me set the record straight.

Let's give credit where credit is due. Yes, the new Mercedes 500 S Klasse sedan is the best edan in the world. It should be. This Panzerwagon costs more than a house in Shirley and was esigned by a bunch of engineering fanatics. I've been to the Porsche factory in Stuttgart, and I'mbsolutely certain there are more Porsches here in the Hamptons than in Porsche's home town. These cars handle like a race car, and are as expensive as a pedigreed race horse! I admire the magnificent Ferrari, the greatest sportscar in the world: Italy's finest product. All Ferraris have the body shape of a reclining Sophia Loren in her prime, and are simply the sexiest and fastest cars on the road.

The Japanese fleet of Toyotas, Hondas et al., have engines that tick over as quietly as Seiko watches and seem to be built with the precision of a Nikon camera.

All are formidable competition for the American car. Yet, American cars have always been admired throughout the world, since the invention of the motorcar.

The Model T Ford, that was introduced in 1908, was voted the most significant car of the last century. It was truly the first " peoples' car". When it was built, the base model sold for $260.

The most eagerly awaited new model car in the history of automobiles was another Ford. In December of 1927, the day the Model A Ford replaced the Model T, twenty five million people, yes, wenty-five million people flocked to showrooms to see it. Within two weeks, 400,000 orders had been taken for this new car.

In 1932, Ford introduced its new V-8 motor. It was unusually powerful,and became the basis for what was to become the most widely used racing motor in the world.

The Ford "Flathead " V-8 was so popular that the Ford Motor Company received some of the most bizarre testimonials ever given to a car company. Both John Dillinger and Clyde Barrow, the umber one public enemies of the day,wrote to tell Ford that they always stole Ford V-8s to use as taway cars because they were so fast.

The famous Prof. Ferdinand Porsche, car designer extraordinaire, visited the Ford factory in 1936. He purchased a Ford V-8 Coupe and, with his son, toured America. When his visit was er he shipped it back to Germany, to study its inner workings because he was awed by the fact at Americans could build such a quality product for so little money. He eventually went on to ": Germany's own" People's Car" which as we all know, in German,translates to Volkswagen.

As an interesting aside to the above story, at the end

SCENES FROM SPOKES MAN (OBSERVATIONS FROM A TEN SPEED)

DOG DAYS

Last Monday, a brilliantly sunny and promising day, I ended my morning bicycle ride at the Wainscott Beach at the end of Beach Lane. The farm, leading up to the beach was cordoned off with yellow and black "crime scene" tape. It certainly is a crime how some fields have been invaded. There is one on Parsonage Lane that had the ominous real estate "Exclusive" sign in front. that field is literally "pushing up white daisey's" with yellow centers as if it knows it is doomed. There was a time when farming was the backbone of this country. There was also a time when America was dotted with thousands of factory towns, where everyone in the town worked for a company and were proud of the product that was produced. Much like when Bulova watches were made in Sag Harbor. I think about this as I pass the crime scene tape, the Beach Lane windmill and approach the ocean.

Before the Beach parking lot is a new expansive post modern, cleverly named "BEACH.calm." The newly completed stone walls and paving took a winter's worth of labor. It is great to see the art of stonework being revived on many projects. At either end of this house, the architect designed lighthouse-like structures which are most appropriate for this oceanside retreat. A few doors down, the driveway leading to a most stately mansion is lined with the most fragrant honeysuckle. It fills the air on this already warm morning.

Taking a peaceful walk toward the Calvin Klein "Eternity"/DeBeers "A Diamond is Forever" house I turn and see an S.U.V. car door open, a huge chocolate lab pops out and procedes to raise a leg and relieve himself all over my recently acquired Bianchi road bike. The two women sitting in the car continued to sip on their double latte whatevers, and made no move to tend to their dog. The dog takes another leak on my bike. When I inquired as to why the dog was not tagged or leashed, they both looked at me as if I was just released from some padded room. Going down this particular beach, it is noticible how many dog owners do not clean up after their pets. This is a health hazard. Children play in the sand, people stroll barefoot. Bacteria and infection can spread. On other East Hampton beaches there are warning signs and plastic bags are provided for pet owners. Why this is not in place at Wainscott I do not know. We are blessed with the most spectacular beaches on the East Coast. Let's respect them and respect each other. We are all responsible for protecting the natural beauty of our area.

After the infuriating coffee klatch encounter with the two "summer people, summer not" I rode back past the windmill, wondering why we don't use wind power more out here. I once rode my bicycle through a windmill "farm" on Nantucket that generated all the energy for a particular sub division. The adjoining farm field was now being plowed by a farmer perched high on his dusty red tractor. Across the street, a general contractor was instructing his crew on reshingling a cedar shake roof. I got back into the rhythm of the ride, got back into beach.com and went home to shower, and got ready for work.

DAN TRAVELS

of World War 11, Henry Ford was offered the Volkswagen factory in Wolfsburg, Germany, and production rights for the Volkswagen. He turned down the offer, stating that a weird looking car like the Volkswagen Beetle would never sell. This was probably the single biggest error in judgement ever made by an industrialist.

The first metal cars were American. The windshield wiper was an American invention. The first /wind-up windows were used on Packards and Pierce-Arrows in 1919. Chromium plating made its debut in 1925 on an Oldsmobile. Safety glass was first used in American cars. The first on-board mechanical computer was fitted to a 1928 Model J Duesenberg, at the time the most powerful and prestigious automobile built in America. A car envied by everyone in the world.

Many more important innovations were introduced in American cars: curved windshields, air conditioning as early as 1940 in Packards, radios, seat belts, tinted glass, air bags, electric sun roofs, electric starting, tubeless tires, power steering, and the beat goes on and on.

Today, the American car may not even be a car, but a truck, The biggest selling vehicle in America is the Ford F150 pick up truck. Look at the armies of SUV's we are producing. I'm not crazy about these highway dreadnaughts, but we like things big in America, from Texas-sized ounce steaks to 20,000 square-foot summer homes. Once again the world is following our lead. Mercedes and BMW are presently making off-road behemoths. Even Porsche, a staunch designer of the world's leading mass-produced sports cars, has a giant SUV on its drawing boards.

There are lots of great cars currently being produced in the world. But none of them have the American Spirit. Happy Birthday America.

Shop'til You Drop.....With Maria Tennariello

This upcoming Fourth of July weekend and the town is already buzzing with tourists, visitors and shoppers looking for sales and special merchandise. So let's do some shopping, shall we?

If you're shopping on Main Street in Westhampton this July 4th, weekend, do stop and shop at Turnbury Lady on Main Street, behind ABS for their "Grand Opening Sale." This off price boutique is filled to the rafters with ladies casual and sportswear. Look for cool Capri's, summer dresses, short sets, hats, beach cover-ups and accessories. Yolanda will be more than happy to accessorize you...

If you are looking for Eileen Kramer of Quogue that does those wonderful "Trunk Shows," I found her. Her wares are unique, and the prices are way below retail. She is still carrying the crocodile bags, belts and accessories, but now she is also showing ostrich. Eileen manufactures (In Italy) handbags, belts, wallets and many more accessories for both men and women. Her prices are much lower than retail, in fact from 25% on small accessories to 50% on the handbags and she has sample handbags in crocodile and lizard at 75% off. Look for Eileen's Trunk Shows throughout the Hamptons this summer, I will keep you posted. Call her at 631-653-9655.

OK, now are you ready for this? I found a shop that really took my breath away! Table D 'Art located on Jobs Lane in Southampton is fully stocked and ready to go with a great collection of outdoor furniture in cast aluminum in four unbelievable finishes, patinas, blue, green, gray and My personal favorite), antique copper. The table tops are special, made in mosaic, suitable for indoor and/or outdoor dining and entertaining in varied sizes, shapes and designs. All, are exceptionally well priced. And the best part? All this is available immediately and Table D 'Art will ship anywhere in the world. If you love Art Deco like I do, you must see the collection here. There are Art Deco dining tables, buffets, bedroom sets, accent pieces, all in exceptional condition. But that's another column. Thank you Roger for the lovely tour of this wonderful store. Call 631-204-9199 for information.

Moving right along, I stopped in at Stubbs and Wootton where there are many new styles rolling into its Southampton Store. Hot off the production line are vine needlepoint slippers and mules in many fashion forward colors. Also new to the collection are Burgee, a beautiful embroidery on navy blue linen of crossed nautical flags. Other arrivals include Rumba, a fun design reminiscent of 1950's Cuban Rumba dancers and Thong Logo, the perfect Vachetta leather thong sandal for the summer stamped with the Stubbs and Wootton new logo.

Another July 4, sale you won't want to miss has already started and will run to July 6, at Dansk on Main Street in Southampton. Some of the great sales you will find here are summer outdoor lighting at 30% off, select wood items at 40% off, summer barbecue utensils and Stars and Stripes party poppers at 50% off, all textiles, frames, clocks, silk flowers and select barware and stemware, @25% off, and all summer plastics are a hot 30% to 40% off. I came home with two shopping bags full of sale merchandise and money still left in my wallet!

Renowned jewelry designer Catherine Angiel is inspired by her surroundings in the Hamptons. This summer, her Gallery Eclectic in Southampton unveils her new "Creation" set of starfish-shaped earrings and necklace. The elegant, whimsical pieces are made from bead-set diamonds set in gold or platinum, with the diamond texture evoking the unique texture of starfish. (I'm a Pisces, so anything with the beauty of the sea enchants me.) Angeil, whose clients include Susan Lucci and friends Christian Slater and Courteney Cox Arquette, often finds inspiration while walking along the ocean shore, and incorporates these moments of reflection in exquisite, distinctive jewelry lines with names like "Bliss," and "Freedom." "Creation" earrings and necklace can be found at Gallery Eclectic, and are priced starting at $576.

Oh well, Dan hope my raise went through!

After you finish shopping you can stop into Gym Source for some real exercise. Located on Windmill Lane, they are having a Fourth of July Sale with 15% to 40% off including the new line of Reebok Ellipticals. Ask about the free T-shirt, while quantities last. At Gym Source you will find all of the top brand fitness equipment that you will need to look good and feel so fine....

I almost forgot to stop off at a brand new shop on Main Street in Bridgehampton to pick up a brass nameplate that I special ordered for my dad. At King-Beck Fine Stationery you will enjoy shopping and browsing among the upscale merchandise like hand painted enamel stationery boxes, a fine selection of pens, photo albums and leather books or finding fun gifts to send to your child or grandchild at camp. This is a must-see shop. Call Alice and Sandy, the owners for a convenient appointment for all your stationery needs at 631-537-5115.

Breezing into East Hampton my automatic stop is at Biba East Hampton on Newtown Lane. Celebrate the Fourth of July with Barbara Biba and her staff with great merchandise that she has brought back from Paris. Check out the hottest summer clothing, shoes and accessories direct from the French fashion runways. Biba Southampton is also located on Jobs Lane in Southampton, both stores are stocked for the July 4, weekend with Capri pants, summer dresses and skirts, crochet tops, halter tops, tube tops, and evening wear for the entire family. All this fresh off the press from Paris to you. Don't miss out on the one stop shop sale. Open seven days a week for your shopping convenience.

Kick off your holiday celebration with a visit to SEAN, the new store for men at 66 Newtown Lane, and get a cool 20% off selected summer merchandise. Just some of the items you will find on sale include their lightweight 100% cotton V-neck and polo sweaters, in an array of breezy summer colors. You will also find linen and cotton French painter's jackets marked down, perfect for those cool, summer Hamptons' evenings. A large selection of shirts, suits, and cotton and linen pants are also on sale. SEAN, with stores in Soho, the upper westside, San Francisco and Paris, wants you to celebrate their first summer season in East Hampton. And...If you mention my name, Gerry Logueg will give you and yours an additional 10% off any merchandise. Go for it!

OK, now one more stop before I go to Arline's Salon at the Omni in Southampton for my special hair color treatment. Arline has added two great hair specialists to her staff, Pete and Dan and they will be happy to serve you and make your hair wishes come true. Dianne the professional nail specialist will be more than able to apply a brand new set of nails, manicure or pedicure. And of course there is always a fresh pot of java waiting when you get there. Call Arline's Salon, 283-7472 for appointments.

Last stop, Hedges on Main Street in Sag Harbor where they have been un-packing their European shipment all week. Some of the highlights are: beautiful olivewood French salad bowls, hand carved from a one hundred year old olive tree trunk, priced at $295, various candles

"THE LAST PLACES ON EARTH" AT SAG HARBOR PICTURE GALLERY

If last week's "Traveling Artists" at the Nabi Gallery celebrated the sublime through non-representational styles, the new photography show at the Sag Harbor Picture Gallery takes the opposite approach. Eric Meola's foreign locales are rendered in a style closest to realism, yet the subject mater and theme are anything but "objective."

Mr. Meola's forays to such places as Africa, India, and China are mysterious at the very least. At the very most, they are "mythic" in the grand sense of the word. The stories that these photographs relate remind this critic of Joseph Campbell's "mythic hero": a man's journey to unlock the "keys" of life. (Films like Witness with Harrison Ford are also good examples, when a city cop journeys to the strange world of the Amish where he learns/discovers secrets that he brings back with him.)

Although the works deal with isolated images which may not overtly mark such a journey, there's a suggestion, nonetheless, of a stranger in a strange land. Curiously, it is the viewer himself who is this stranger, a fine tribute to Mr. Meola's ability to place us literally and figuratively "in the picture." ("Nomads, Niger," for example, positions us with the veiled foregrounded figures.)

Eric Meola's "Nomads, Niger"

The implied secrets to be learned and carried back in this scene are many: for example, power relationships between the nomads. In another photograph, wild horses thunder across the landscape, indicating another power relationship that is placed on the horizontal, symmetrical line, versus the asymmetrical line implied by "Nomads, Niger."

Other contradictions appear. In one photograph, an African boy with no shirt appears walking in front of a billboard advertising Coke, thus signifying the mythic versus the modern. In another photograph, a man is walking through the forest; a tree looms in the background. Man versus nature.

Mr. Meola aesthetics include an arresting sense of line, where opposing directions are given special meaning in pieces like "Nomads, Niger." Balance is off center here as individuals are turned toward the center; in the image with the horses, movement is from left to right denoting harmony (the direction in which we "read").

"The Last Places on Earth" will be at the Sag Harbor Picture Gallery until August 1.

Honoring the Artist: Roberta LaRosa

Artist Roberta LaRosa knows no fear when it comes to her art. She's been known to jump into a dirty dumpster at the drop of a hat when she sees some found object for her collection. She even calls herself an "inside-outer" and seems proud of it. One thing is certain, however: Ms. LaRosa is not your "run-of-the-mill" artist.

The first unique thing about Ms. LaRosa is the fact that she was born and bred in Manhattan. While most native New Yorkers are exposed to art and an unconventional life at an early age, Ms. LaRosa's exposure went a bit further: her parents were also in the arts (her father had an advertising firm, and her mother was involved professionally with the Parsons School of Art and Design).

Although it may have been natural for Ms. LaRosa to attend both New York's High School for Art and Design and Parsons as a result of her upbringing — and even to become an art director and a free-lance illustrator— she found herself at a crossroads.

Ms. LaRosa left advertising four years ago and started to experience a life style that was anything but "conventional." Having a studio in an industrial building in Hoboken, New Jersey, was a prime influence on her new professional direction. "One day I was walking down the hall, and I saw all these computer 'buttons' on the floor," she recalls. " The man who owned them said he was just throwing them out. I said, 'Not any more.'

That was the beginning of my series of flags with these buttons or keys sewed on them, like the one on this week's cover. People would come to see them in private parties from museums when I had an open studio."

But the story of how Ms. LaRosa developed her flag technique is only a partial picture. She's also committed to the theme that her series develops. "The series is an interpretation of the Constitution's freedoms," she explains. "The cover painting spells out the Thirteenth Amendment about freedom of slaves. It's still relevant today. What's also relevant is that the series has allowed me the freedom to create my own works."

Roberta LaRosa

The flag series is not Ms. LaRosa's only foray into textile art. "When I was in Alexandria, Virginia, I found some quilter's squares in an antique store," she recalls. "I made pillows out of them, decorated them with beads and filled them with cedar."

Obviously, Ms. LaRosa has found her calling, combining craft and commerce in the creation of her pieces. ("This combination can't be helped," she says, "given the nature of my background in art and advertising.")

Even so, there are other elements which play a part in her work. "I have been influenced by folk and tribal art," she says with enthusiasm. "And I love children's art. For example, I received a crayon drawing from a friend's child, and I did an eight foot by ten foot fabric piece from it. I also saved my brother's drawings when he was younger, developing a work called 'My Hero.'"

Family ties are not the only influence on Ms. LaRosa's art, however. "My urban environment made a collector out of me," she remarks. "My genes are also good; both my grandfathers were in textiles. My work has humor, too, which I guess I developed from living in New York."

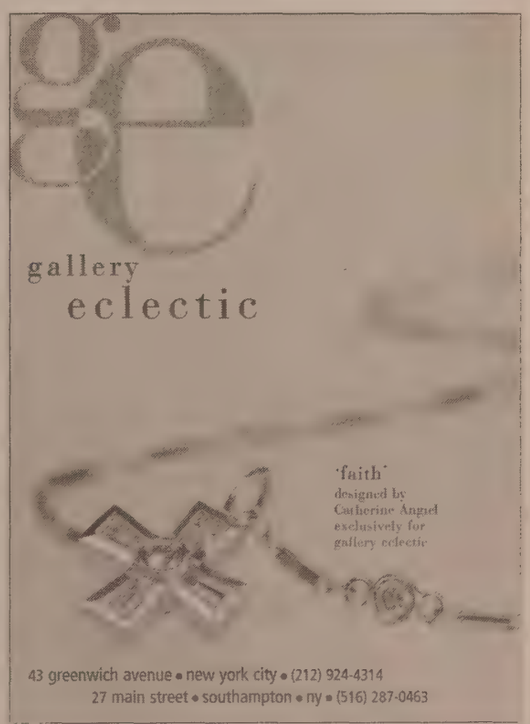

Currently, Ms. LaRosa is busy getting settled into her new residence in Southampton. She says she feels "at home here" and invites this writer to come visit her place where "everything is a collage, where my home is a work in progress."

Take Five 2000

with Jan Silver

From Westhampton to Montauk, this July 4th weekend is brimming over with music, films and theater performances. The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center previews a new film with Prof. Richard Brown on Friday, then Ethel Merman's Broadway on Saturday, Janis Ian and Livingston Taylor in concert on Sunday, and Orquestra Aragon on Monday. East Hampton's Guild Hall offers Betty Buckley's cabaret show for two nights, then the New York Collegium Baroque Orchestra on Sunday and great jazz on Monday with Dave Samuels, Dave Valentin and Steve Kahn. Bay Street Theatre, Sag Harbor, continues its run of Hedda Gabler plus a Monday-night-only performance of Legends with Lypsinka. Montauk Theatre Productions brings in The Dressing Room for four performances. The "Fridays at Five" writers' speaking series begins at the Bridgehampton library, and there are benefits for the Southampton Fresh Air Home, Southampton Historical Museum and the Kent Animal Shelter.

With true patriotic spirit, a coalition of anti-radiation groups are staging "Paul Revere Rides Again!" on Friday, 10 a.m., at East Hampton's Hook Mill to protest the danger posed by the nearby Millstone Nuclear Power Station. In Greenport, this is a festival weekend with tall ships, guns salutes and a band concert. There are supervised fireworks in many East End villages, and Southampton has its big parade down Main St. with marching bands and invited participants from all over Long Island (10 a.m. on Tuesday, July 4). For details on events mentioned above, and several more, read on:

Livingston Taylor at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center

THEATER

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre continues its premier run of Jon Robin Baitz's adaptation of the Henrik Ibsen classic drama Hedda Gabler. The production stars Kate Burton, Michael Emerson and Harris Yulin. Performances are Wednesdays through Sundays. On Monday evening, July 3, a staged reading of James Kirkwood's successful play about two feuding Broadway actresses, Legends, starring Lypsinka (James Epperson) and Sinthea Starr (Joel Vig) will be performed on the main stage at 8 p.m. To reserve a seat at Bay Street, call the box office at (631) 725-9500 (11 a.m. until 6 p.m.).

Rita McKenzie brings the wit, personality and music of American musical theater legend Ethel Merman to the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center on Saturday, 8:30 p.m. (631-288-1500). Montauk Theatre Productions brings in Mimi Scott's The Dressing Room, a show in development, with music by Matthew Gandolfo. Performances are Thursday through Sunday evenings at the cozy South Elmwood St. playhouse (tickets, call 631-668-5656). If you're in the mood for slapstick comedy, Spindletop Productions, a local troupe, performs Sam Bobrick's Hamlet II, a spoof of Shakespeare's melancholy Dane, as a dinner/theater package on Sunday and Monday evenings at Rocco's Restaurant, 21 West Water Street, Sag Harbor. Dinner is served at 7 p.m. and the play begins at 8 p.m.; the tab for both is $39.95. Reservations are recommended; call (631) 725-0358.

MUSIC

East Hampton's Guild Hall begins its 'Cabaret-by-the-Sea" series this weekend with award-winning actress and musical theater star Betty Buckley and trio. The show is Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. On Sunday, the baroque music specialty orchestra New York Collegium will play the music of Bach, Biber and other 17th/18th century composers at 7 p.m. The music continues on Monday with the "Caribbean Jazz Project," featuring Dave Samuels on vibes, Dave Valentin on flutes, Steven Kahn on guitars and their combo performing American, Afro-Cuban and South American jazz (8 p.m.) Tickets to Guild Hall programs are available at the box office (631) 324-4050.

Well-known singer/songwriter Janis Ian ("At Seventeen," "Society's Child"), whose ballads contain social commentary, will be at Westhampton Beach Performing

SHAFT
SCORE: WHITE SOCKS 12 - BLACK SOCKS 7

KA-RACK! SOCK! POW! BLAM! Holy Mackerel, Andy! What tough fight scenes exploded in the remake/sequel of the 1971 Blaxpoitation movie, SHAFT ... and that was behind the cameras during its making. The black and white truth of the matter was that it was a matter of black and white. Was this new SHAFT to be a Black film or Whitey's version of a Black movie? Sides were drawn almost immediately. The formidable actor, Samuel L. Jackson, backed up the young director, John Singleton (Boyz N the Hood). He gave strength to the still-forming spine of the young African-American director whose idea it was to resurrect the private dick/sex machine character that broke down the racial doors which had kept out a huge audience of self identity. They squared off opposite Scott Rudin, a producer of very different films ...from Addams Family to Angela's Ashes (he vaccuumed up the ashes so well, it was unrecognizable). Now, he was dry cleaning off a lot of the Black from Shaft, tending to leave him just kind of smudgy and dingy looking ...much more like a dusty Dirty Harry ...the Clint Eastwood role inspired by Shaft. With the help of his writer, Richard Price, Rudin had made Shaft a career cop (like Harry) who is too Blue (NYPD) and too Black (NAACP) for his own good ... and many other "Let's get it into the middle-of-the-road-Hollywood-sure-bet category "switches like..NO SEX for Shaft! and not even a romance! Big Sam L. was thinking, "There's something wrong with this picture." And , there is, but...

BIG COALITION BOX OFFICE

There is a lot about this picture that's right...like Big Sam Jackson, with his glossy dome, trident trim beard and stylishly long Armani coat and duds, he takes strong control of the role (as usual). But, castrating Shaft (he wasn't called that for nothing) is like taking Clint's Magnum .45 away from him. Well, at least the white guys won't have to worry about their women. Also on the plus side, Jackson got his cop job cashiered as early in the movie as possible and some tribute is paid to the original Shaft...Richard Roundtree is seen as Jackson's John Shaft's uncle but, he's not heard much. Uncle John still has a detective agency but his help in Shaft's quest for justice lies gasping on the cutting room floor. After all, Dirty Harry does it all alone and goes to bed alone.

Justice for all... has a nice Liberty Bell ring to it. Mr. Singleton's script, done with Shane Salerno follows Shaft's doggedly persistant pursuit of a rich white kid who bludgeoned a black youth from behind. Shaft watched the boy die convulsively and then had to watch the killer walk (out on bail) and then run (skip the country) but, not until after he shuts up the smart alec's foul mouth with a fist in the face. That got him a demotion and when an equally prejudiced judge lets the wealthy man's punk heir out on bail...he quits the force by flinging his badge at him with the velocity of a missile. He will bring him in....no matter what... if only for the mother of the murdered young man. Then Rudin and Price (He got the lead credit) bullied in a lot.

WITH MAYHEM AND JUSTICE FOR ALL

Don't expect a plot nouveau, it's mostly like the hat Jackson inexplicitly wears towards the end of the movie . . . old, stingy and battered. It goes like this: Shaft knows that the witness, (Toni Collete) a wimpy, young woman, knows more than she'll tell and, when the killer returns to this country . . . Shaft's there but, the judge lets him out again. In film . . . to make it different from TV ... they double everything. So, when the killer learns the witness actually saw the murder and will probably tell . . . he hires another killer. Now, we have two villians . . . and not a minute too soon. The rich WASP race-card killer is portrayed by Christian Bale, who recently cut-up so cutely in American Psycho, is a bit too chilled out for a movie as heated as this one and so, comes off lukewarm. But, villian Number 2! He's even villainous when he's doing Number 2! and gets one of the movies nosiest laughs. Jeffrey Wright does such a number as the funny, scarey, Dominican drug, minor kingpin he practically swipes the Kliegs light from Mr. Jackson. And pity, Vanessa Williams doing so well as a detective ... but , microcosmically.

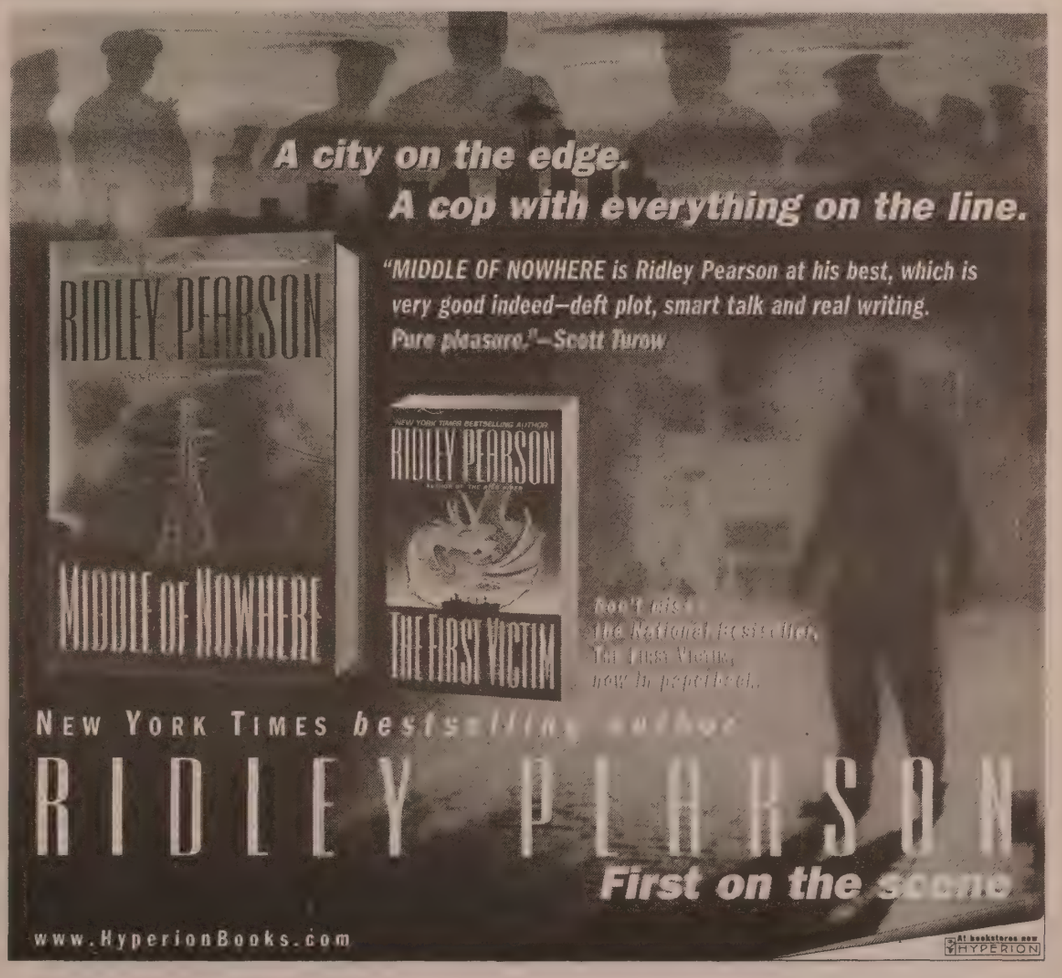

SO, WHO WON?

So, much went in and out of this movie . . . parts, lines, scenes cut, re-made . . patched and re-patched almost everyone had a beef and it was usually on a black eye, trying to reduce the inflamation. . . . all because of the in-fighting . It has made a shorter movie and certainly less meaningful one. In spite of its high contrast black and white . . .color, gumption and emotion are done justice . . . in the end.

SHAFT clambers, rough shod, over political correctness and gives Jackson's Shaft added strength, and plausibility. As he turns, vigilante he quips, "It's Giuliani time." We're still wondering what were some of Price's lines that Jackson refused to say? Very much heard is Isaac Haye's heart pounding theme but, shiftless in-between is David Arnold's uninspired score. Just like the movie . . . those high peaks and rolling minor ups and downs of familiar slopes. Looking back at the original SHAFT, its mechanics are as primitive as a Kentucky lean to on the hill but, its revolutionary stance thrilled an audience that wanted to claim justice with authority.

Guy- Jean de Fraumeni is the producer, writer and director of award-winning films for ABC, NBC, PBS, and European feature films. He is assisted in this column by Sarah Halsey who hosts with him the Dan's Papers "They Made the Film Here" Festival.

HAMPTONS NIGHTLIFE WITH CHRISTINE CARROLL

Shout out of the week goes to: Mark & Donnal, the kitchen kings.

SPEAKERS

The Hampton Library's (Bridgehampton) popular "Fridays at Five" talks by well-known writers begins this Friday, 5 p.m., in the garden behind the Main St. building. Novelist Rona Jaffe is speaking. Admission is a $15 donation to the library. Refreshments are served following the program (rainsite, Bridgehampton School). Ms. Jaffe will be at BookHampton, East Hampton, on Saturday at 5:30 p.m. talking about her latest novel, Road Taken. At Canio's Books, Sag Harbor, prolific author Daniel Stern (poetry, plays, short stories, novels) will read from his latest short-story collection One Day's Perfect Weather at 6 p.m. on Saturday. At Canio's on Sunday, 6 p.m., the East End Writers Group will fete Gay and Lesbian Pride Month with readings about "queer" families. All readings at Canio's and Book Hampton are free.

Rogers Memorial Library, Southampton, offers two interesting programs this week. On Wednesday, July 5, writer Harvey Feinstein will read from his humorous memoirs, "Spanning the last 100 years with Harvey Feinstein" at noon. On Thursday, July 6, at 7 p.m., popular author/lecturer Dr. Mark Ciabattari will discuss Personal History, the best selling memoir of Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham.

Both programs are at Cooper Hall and there is no admission charge, but space is limited; call (631) 287-1931.

FILMS

Two NYU film-studies professors will be here this week screening and discussing new films. At Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center this Friday, Prof. Richard Brown has a "sneak preview" and then a discussion with the director or an actor in the film (7:30 p.m.; for tickets, call 631-288-1500). Next Thursday, July 6, the Film Society of Lincoln Center begins a series at Guild Hall, East Hampton, featuring movies by new filmmakers. Prof. Robert Sklar will introduce The Flower of My Secret at 7:30 p.m. (tickets $10 and $12; call 631-324-4050).

BENEFITS AND SPECIAL EVENTS

The annual American family picnic at the McEntee estate to benefit the Southampton Fresh Air Home is this Friday, June 30. There are games and fireworks in addition to the picnic dinner. For ticket information, call (631) 283-5487.

The tall ships are in New York harbor, but Greenport is offering its own "Sail 2000 Festival." The Mir, a three-masted Russian rigger, can be toured through this Friday, and The Pogoria is a Polish square-rigger that will be dockside June 29 through July 3. Other events during Greenport's July 4 weekend include a carnival, band concert and fireworks (for a schedule, call 631-477-3000).

There's a cocktail party and tour on Saturday to celebrate the restoration of Halsey House (South Main Street, Southampton), built in 1648 and believed to be the oldest English house in New York State. Call the Southampton Historical Museum for information (631-283-2494).

The North Fork's Kent Animal Shelter is the beneficiary of "Taste of the North Fork," a cocktail and buffet party featuring signature dishes from North Fork restaurants and wines from Palmer Vineyards. Black Cat Bone, a popular Long Island blues band, will entertain. For tickets ($35), call (631) 727-5736.

VentureHighway.com Promotes Online and Offline Support For Investors

The objectives of investors and entrepreneurs can be assisted through services provided by VentureHighway.com. Based in Syosset, NY, accredited investors have the oppurtunity to review hundreds of business opportunities and participate in private placement deals. The site allows investors to view potential deals which they would not otherwise have knowledge of. By reaching a wider audience funding for entrepreneurs and investors can be obtained through the online environment. The site assists entrepreneurs and investors in reaching their company objectives through a variety of services designed to provide offline, as well as online, support. This promotes interaction where entrepreneurs can meet face-to-face with investors and faciliate investments. VentureHighway.com is supported by the commitment of their Kirlin Holdings Corp., a financial media company. The site runs on a password exclusive basis, allowing investors to view investment opportunities.

There is an application process for accredited investors and no charge to investors who use the service. In order to join, you must compose a business plan summary, and provide your company's geographic location and required financing. Prepare to send a package that includes a signed copy of the posting agreement, which is downloaded from the website, and two copies of your business plan and a check for the first quarter,s posting fee. The packlage will be sent to VentureHighway.com's headquarters in Syosset. Once the package and online application has been reviewed, VentureHighway will post your investment opportunity on the site.

If a member locates an investment opportunity through the VentureFinder.com database, the investor can send an automatic interest e-mail to the staff of VentureHighway. In doing so, VentureHighway.com will notify the entrepreneur of the potential financing source and they may be contacted directly.

Listing your business summary on www.venturehighway.com gives global exposure to your investment opportunity.

The fastest track to capital while providing private equity for entrepreneurs. VentureHighway.com is looking to kick off a redesigned website by the end of the summer, and will have many initiatives underway that will set them apart from west coast competitors, according to Steve Pasko, CEO for VentureHighway.com. Aside from more content, the site will allow people to listen and view management roadshows and a question and answer session of business plans between VentureHighway.com staff and potential investors. Right now, VentureHighway.com plans to remain domesticated in the East Coast, but in time may look globally for future business plans. For more information, call 1-888-396-9890. –Rachel Sokol

E-Schemes and E-Scans: Internet Investment Fraud

By all accounts the Internet has had a tremendous impact on the investment community. For many investors it is an invaluable research tool that helps them evaluate investment opportunities and learn about different strategies and techniques. However, it has also become a playground for unscrupulous individuals looking to take advantage of investors through a variety of schemes and scams that already have caused financial harm to unsuspecting individuals.

In October 1998, the Securities Exchange Commission (SEC) helped investors understand the magnitude of Internet investment fraud when it filed charges against forty four stock promoters who failed to disclose to investors that 235 companies had paid them millions of dollars in cash and stock shares in return for Internet-based promotional efforts that were designed to raise stock prices.

Providing inexpensive, convenient access, anonymity, and an attentive, affluent audience of millions, it's no surprise that the Internet is a popular medium for con artists. In response to the growth of online investment fraud, the SEC, Federal Trade Commission, and National Association of Securities Dealers have all devoted resources to help lessen fraudulent activity. However, the use of investment scams likely will continue to proliferate despite enforcement efforts, therefore it is extremely important that investors educate themselves on the types of scams that exist and thoroughly investigate all investment opportunities and information disseminated through the Internet.

Providing the ability to communicate to large audiences without spending a lot of time, effort, or money, there are three Internet forums that are especially popular with con artists; they include online investment newsletters, bulletin boards, and e-mail.

ONLINE NEWSLETTERS

Online investment newsletters have become very popular on the Internet. Because newsletters can easily be made to look like unbiased information sources that offer access to research and expert stock picks, they have become a choice medium for con artists looking to prey on unsuspecting investors. Masquerading as outlets of credible information, some individuals who publish online newsletters accept money from companies in exchange for promoting the stock of the company. In an effort to maintain credibility with investors, many of these newsletters will fail to disclose this arrangement.

Another common tactic employed by illegitimate newsletters is to spread inaccurate information or promote worthless stocks in an effort to drive up the price of their personal holdings.* Once the price has risen sufficiently, the individuals who touted the stock will quickly sell their shares and reap the profits.

BULLETIN BOARDS

Consisting of "threads" that are made up of individual messages referring to a particular stock, bulletin boards are a popular forum for investors searching for information on specific companies. Unfortunately, they are also another tool used by individuals looking to defraud investors.

Because many bulletin boards allow participants to disguise their identity with an alias – there is no way of telling how credible the information is on many bulletin boards. In an attempt to capitalize on this opportunity, fraudsters often pretend to reveal "inside" information on a company or attempt to pump up a company's stock price by posting multiple positive messages under different aliases – thereby giving the impression that there is widespread interest and support behind the particular stock. Referred to as "pumping and dumping" this tactic is usually done using small-cap stocks because they are less heavily traded and therefore prices are more easily manipulated.

E-MAIL

The popularity and convenience of e-mail provides con artists with an effective means of reaching countless investors with hardly any effort or cost. By sending personalized messages to thousands of individuals in broadcast e-mails, con artists can communicate false information about a company or promote a baseless investment opportunity. In many cases, e-mail has replaced cold calling and mass mailing as a means of targeting individuals to solicit their participation in a particular scam. Con artists also use e-mail to draw attention to their own fraudulent online newsletters and bulletin board threads.

While investment fraud can be a problem facing investors who use the Internet for advice and research, it is important to note that there is a significant amount of legitimate information on the Internet. By taking a few precautionary steps, investors can successfully tap into the wealth of knowledge available on the Internet. Here are some basic tips for investors who use the Internet to research investment opportunities:

1. Do not make investment decisions based solely on information in an online newsletter, bulletin board, or e-mail. Consult a qualified financial advisor who is capable of analyzing financial statements, verifying claims about new products, and reviewing the quality of management before an investment decision is made.

2. Avoid investing in companies that do not regularly file reports with the SEC. This can be checked by accessing the SEC's EDGAR database online or by calling the SEC at (202) 942-8090.

3. If you are at all unsure about the legitimacy of an opportunity after doing research, contact the SEC or your state securities regulator and check to see if any complaints about the company or its promoter have been filed.

4. Beware of investments that use terms like "guaranteed," "risk-free," "limited offer," "high return," "fast profits," "insider information," and "safe as a CD." Remember, investments that sound too good to be true, are usually just that.

5. Exercise particular caution when evaluating offshore opportunities and investment opportunities in other countries. In the event that something goes wrong, getting answers or locating your money is often extremely difficult.

A well-informed investor is a scam artist's worst enemy. And while the vast majority of Internet resources are credible, falling victim to an Internet investment fraud can be a very expensive lesson to learn firsthand. To find out more about researching investment opportunities and protecting yourself against investment fraud, contact Chad Frost a Financial Advisor at Prudential Securities, Southampton Branch. He can be reached at 800-543-3719.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

The much anticipated Fourth of July weekend has arrived – and with it the likely pleasure of picnics, parades and parties.

As a small child, I remember our family outing to picnics in the park in Valley Stream, Long Island. The drive from our small Brooklyn home to the lush green spaces of the park held a certain excitement. I especially remember the aromas wafting from my mother's covered pan of braised veal chops with an abundance of caramelized onions. The pan was wrapped in a blanket to keep the chops warm. (Mom's version of insulation.) This was not your typical picnic fare but it was a wonderfully juicy dish. To go with it there was a chopped salad of lettuce, tomatoes and hard-boiled eggs, good bread and slices of sweet cold melon.

For my picnic today I would choose a pan bagna, meaning bathed bread in French. It is a typical Provencal sandwich consisting of tuna pressed into a large round of crusty bread with a salad of roasted peppers, tomatoes, pitted black olives, capers, and greens dressed in vinegar and olive oil. Not your typical tuna sandwich.

To go with it bring along a Tuscan bean salad redolent with fresh herbs, a wedge or two of cheese, chunks of seasonal melons, and a sweet that is easy to transport, such as lemon squares or brownies. A bottle of chilled Rose is the perfect accompaniment for a summer picnic.

Whether you are headed for the beach, the backyard or a quiet shady spot, a picnic is a wonderful warm weather tradition. Have a happy and safe Fourth.

PAN BAGNA

In French, Pan Bagna means "bathed bread." It is a savory Provencal sandwich that is, in effect, a salad Nicoise stuffed into a round loaf.
Serves 6-8

1 1/2 pounds fresh tuna steak, cut 1 inch thick
Extra-virgin olive oil
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper

For the peppers
2 roasted red peppers, cut into julienne
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon shredded fresh basil leaves
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
Coarse salt and freshly ground pepper

For the tomatoes
1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 shallots, finely chopped
6 plum tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
2 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves
2 tablespoons shredded fresh basil leaves
Coarse salt and freshly ground pepper

For the sandwich
1 10-inch round crusty country bread
2 large cloves garlic, cut in half lengthwise
4 teaspoons red wine vinegar
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1-2 tablespoons capers
2-3 tablespoons sliced Nicoise olive, pitted
1 bunch arugula, washed, spin-dried and towel wrapped

1. Rub tuna steaks with olive oil and a sprinkle of salt and pepper. Grill or broil 3-4 inches from source of heat for 2-3 minutes on each side for rare or 3-4 minutes for medium-rare. Remove from grill and let cool. Cut into thin slices.

2. Stir peppers with garlic, lemon juice, basil and olive oil to mix.

3. For the tomatoes, heat olive oil in a skillet. Saute garlic, and shallots for 30-40 seconds until tender. Add the tomatoes, herbs and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer for 2-3 minutes and let cool.

4. Halve the bread horizontally. Hollow out the top and bottom leaving 1/2-inch thick shells. Rub the inside of both halves with the cut side of the garlic halves, then divide oil and vinegar on each half. Spread tomato mixture on bottom half of bread and scatter olive slices on top. Arrange tuna slices over the olives then the roast peppers in an even layer. Top with arugula leaves.

5. Fit the top half of the bread over the bottom half. Wrap the pan bagna in plastic or foil. Transfer to a plate and place a heavy weight over it (a covered brick or a large coffee can). Refrigerate for 2-3 hours or overnight. To Serve: cut the loaf into wedges and serve at room temperature.

To Prepare Ahead: Follow steps 1-5 up to 2 days ahead.

TUSCAN WHITE BEAN SALAD WITH HERB VINAIGRETTE

Be sure to cook the beans until they are tender and creamy. Prepare the dish one or two days ahead for flavors to mellow.
Serves 8-10

1 pound Great Northern beans, soaked overnight in water to cover
2 1/2 quarts water for cooking beans
4-5 fresh sage leaves
2 large cloves garlic, peeled and left whole
1 tablespoons olive oil
2-3 teaspoons coarse salt

Vinaigrette
1 tablespoon finely chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley
2 tablespoons shredded fresh basil leaves
2 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves
1 teaspoon coarse salt
Freshly ground pepper
2 teaspoons grainy Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons imported red wine vinegar
4-5 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
3-4 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and diced (optional)

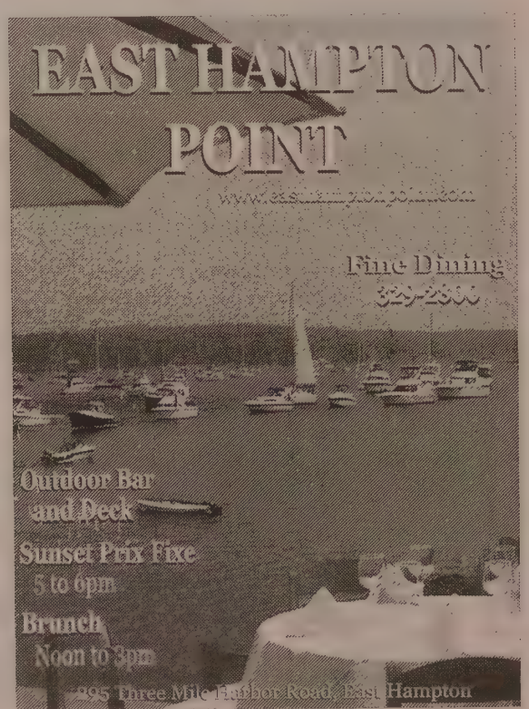

1. Drain beans, then rinse in cold water and place in a large saucepan with fresh water, sage, garlic, and oil. Bring to the edge of a boil, then adjust heat and simmer slowly for about 50 minutes to 1 hour, with cover ajar. Raise and lower heat as necessary to maintain a surface bubble at all times and cook beans until tender. Add salt about 10 minutes before beans are done.

2. With slotted spoon, transfer beans to a mixing bowl. Transfer bean liquid to a smaller saucepan and simmer briskly over moderate heat until reduced to about 1 cup or to a syrupy consistency. Pour over beans.

3. Stir to mix herbs, salt and freshly ground pepper with mustard and vinegar. Slowly whisk in oil until thoroughly incorporated. Add to the beans and, with a rubber spatula and gently stir to mix. Add tomatoes,

FIREWORKS BBQ AT THE MAIDSTONE ARMS

The Maidstone Arms (324-5006) will host a special BBQ on Sat. July 1, the evening of the Main Beach fireworks. An all-out barbecue will be set up on the front lawn featuring items like ribs, grilled corn on the cob, shrimp kebobs, hot dogs and hamburgers. Beer, wine and soft drinks will be available. The party begins at 5 p.m. and there will also be live music.

SALTY DOG OPENS

The Salty Dog in Noyac (725-2666) will open for the summer on Thursday, June 29. Look for menu items like clam chowder, steamed mussels, burgers, hot dogs, grilled chicken, crab cakes and grilled tuna.

TURTLE CROSSING EXTENDS SCHEDULE

In addition to dinner; Turtle Crossing in East Hampton will serve lunch Saturday – Tuesday on the 4th of July weekend. They are now open seven days for dinner (starting at 4 p.m.), lunch on the weekends and Sunday brunch.

GURNEY'S BBQ

On Tuesday July 4th Gurney's Inn will host an All-U-Can-Eat BBQ. Prices are $17.95 for adults and $9.95 for kids. Call for more information.

DINE OUTDOORS AT THE PARADISE CAFÉ

The Paradise Café (725-6080) now offers outdoor dining on their back deck. Diners can sample executive chef Stephen Putnam's New American fare at breakfast, brunch, lunch, and dinner, indoors or outdoors, seven days a week. Late afternoon cocktails and late night drinks and desserts will also be available. The deck, which features attractive latticework and plants, may also be reserved in advance for private functions.

ESTIA HAPPENINGS

Estia's Little Kitchen in Sag Harbor (725-1045) has an early- bird fish prix fixe dinner on Friday and Saturday evenings from 5:30-6:30 p.m. For $16.95, diners can choose from three fish appetizers and three fish entrees. Estia's garden in Amagansett is now producing fresh lettuce, sweet snap peas, carrots, radishes, onions and herbs which both Estia restaurants are using in special summer dishes. And Estia in Amagansett (267-6320) is hosting a reception Sunday, July 2 from 4 – 6 p.m. for artist Ric Kallaher, whose photos of East End villages are hanging in the restaurant.

TIERRA MAR PRIX FIXE

Tierra Mar (288-2700) now offers a special three-course prix fixe for $28. The special menu is available all night Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday it is available from 6-7 p.m. The menu features such selections as crisp tempura battered crab cakes, homemade saffron fettuccini with summer vegetable ratatouille and crème brulee.

SUNDAYS AT NICK & TONI'S

Nick & Toni's (324-3550) will no longer serve brunch on Sundays. Brunch service will resume in the fall. However, they will now be opening at 5 p.m. on Sundays and will be featuring pizzas from the woodburning oven on that day only. Look for choices like the Margherita, with fresh mozzarella, tomato and basil, and the Quattro Formaggio, with mozzarella, asiago, goat cheese and grana padano.

VINTAGE PUB PICS AT ROWDY HALL

East Hampton's Rowdy Hall (324-8555) has acquired a new photography collection for permanent display. The photos, procured from the Manhattan-based Hulton-Getty Picture Collection, are from the 1920's –1940's and depict vintage eating and drinking scenes from England. The photos nicely complement their bill of fare, which boasts authentic fish-and-chips made with Guinness batter and the East End's widest selection of draught and bottled beers.

PACIFIC EAST WINE DINNERS

Pacific East (267-7770) continues their series of Long Island Wine Dinners through July. Each five-course dinner features wine pairings from that evening's guest vineyard. The dinner begins at 7 p.m. with a reception featuring passed hors d'oeuvres and wine. The price for the dinners is $49.95 per person. The schedule is as follows: June 5–Pindar, July 12–Paumanok, July 19–Corey Creek, July 26–Lenz Winery.

Sea Grille at Gurney's Inn

The Old Montauk Highway, Montauk
668-2345

If you are wondering where to plan your Fourth of July dinner, your search has ended.

The Oyster Grill at Gurney's is the ticket. Not only do you get a magnificent view of the ocean and the fireworks, but you also get the very sophisticated and European service provided by the dedicated staff. Dining there this week with three friends, I was greeted by the m'aitre d, Kister Lindholm, who has held this position at Gurney's for the last year. Not only is he charming and gracious, he's also a good sommelier. He chose the perfect bottle of wine to accompany all our meals. But let me begin at the beginning. I went to Gurney's with a group that can cook, and loves good food. Translation – they're tough to please. We all agreed to order an appetizer so that we could experience a taste of everything and compare notes.

Tom ordered the Honeydew melon soup with crème fraiche. It was beautifully presented, the creme fraiche swirling through the fresh green of the soup. Nothing prepared us for the delightful and refreshing taste however, which was seasoned with mint. We agreed, this soup was a showstopper.

I ordered the Mussels Posillipo. They arrived in an aromatic sauce simmered in fresh tomatoes, garlic and parsley, and cooked just the right amount of time so that the mussels were neither under nor over done. Accompanying the appetizers, the chef had prepared bruchetta with chopped mozzarella on a light, toasted garlic bread with a drizzle of melted Parmesan cheese. I am not generally a fan of garlic bread, but this one was very light, crisp and not at all oily with a zesty topping that made it hard to resist. My friend Linda ordered the littleneck clams on the half shell. They were so sweet and meaty that I chose to eat them without the help of condiments, but my friends liked the sauce spiked with plenty of horseradish. Linda's sister Carol ordered the Mozzarella appetizer, and as it made the rounds of the table, we all oohed and ahhed about the texture. The taste was sweet, and although the tomatoes could have been a bit riper, it did not take away from the flavor of the cheese. Although we did not order salads as appetizers they looked plentiful and crisp and the diners seemed to enjoy them.

Our waiter for the evening was LA Ducally. He was charming and polite and the service was extremely good without ever being intrusive. His associate Audrey Green imperceptibly cleared the table between courses, and every so often we'd be joined by Johnny B who is a very talented fellow member of the waitstaff who is from the Dominican Republic and also happens to speak fluent Italian. Being Italian, my dinner companions were delighted to engage in a conversation in their mother tongue! Kister Lindholm reappeared with an excellent bottle of white wine from the North Fork – Macari '98. The wine was light and fruity and the perfect accompaniment to the fish and fowl, which we had ordered as our second courses. We treated the second courses much the same as the first – we shared and tasted them all. The lobster was beautifully presented and the meat was sweet and succulent and perfectly cooked. The Veal Melanese was tender and sweet while the breading was light and peppery, and the chopped vegetables on top were fresh and tasty. I ordered the duck which was cooked tender on the inside and crisp on the outside (difficult to do!) in a deliciously sweet, port wine sauce, that happily was not too sweet and was served with mashed sweet potatoes. I was pleasantly surprised by the combination. There was just enough salt in the potatoes to balance out the sweetness of the sauce. Tom being a meat and potatoes kind of guy, ordered the porkchops which were moist and tender and had a spicy and very pleasant aftertaste. They were served with a side of creamy mashed potatoes, that we all agreed were a good accompaniment to the meat and Tom being a non-drinker, found the list of non-alcoholic beverages vast enough to soothe his palette.

For dessert, we each had a bite of the apple tart with vanilla ice cream, crème brulee, carrot cake and chocolate cake. They were all good but my favorite was the crème brulee which was the perfect consistency, with just enough of a burnt sugar top to give you that tingle when you eat it. I also liked the apple tart, in which the apples were not too sweet, and the pastry was very light. If you are a chocolate lover, I recommend the chocolate cake, which is very rich in dark chocolate. Not being a carrot cake fan, I am probably not the person to discuss it. But among us there were those who thought it was moist and rich, and the creamy frosting was said to be the right consistency.

One of the loveliest things about the restaurant aside from the beautiful flower arrangements, the spectacular view and the pleasantness of the staff, is that you never feel rushed. Dinner can take up to four hours if the food and the conversation are right, and never do you feel that you must hurry. I highly recommend the Oyster Grill at Gurney's, for all the reasons you like going out to dine.

Summer Events At Wolffer Estate Vineyard

The setting is undoubtedly one of the most glamorous in the Hamptons. The Saffron-hued mansion at Christian Wolffer's Estate Vineyard in Sagaponack sits majestically on fifty rolling acres of vineyard. In addition to producing some of the areas finest (and award winning) wines, Wolffer Estate is offering a full summer schedule of events which includes their Celebrity Chefs Series, a Metropolitan Opera Series and a New World Symphony Series.

I attended the first of the Celebrity Chef's Series earlier in June with Chef Robert Gurvich of Alison on the Beach. Participants receive their recipes for the day and are then invited to go to the bar for a glass of Wolffer Estate's elegant and refreshing Rose. Guests then select their seats at clothed cocktail tables set on the spacious stone terrace overlooking the picturesque vineyard.

Roman Roth, Wolffer Estate's winemaker and general manager, welcomed everyone and then introduced the chef to an eager audience of food and wine lovers. Prior to the cooking demonstration, Roman delighted the participants with a tour of the vineyard and an engaging talk on the different vineyard plantings and training canopy systems of growing the grapes. He then led the assemblage to the wine cellar to view the tank and barrel rooms and the gated champagne cellar. With their new-found knowledge, guests returned to the terrace. Here they enjoyed a continuous parade of delicacies prepared by Chef Gurvich along with Roman's narration on how to pair the wines with the food.

We began with oysters on the half shell with pickled cucumber relish in Verjus, the vineyards well-known fermented grape juice – so popular with sophisticated chefs – and Sevruga caviar. A terrific artichoke crostini followed as more Rose was poured. Chef's bluecrab, mango and cucumber salad was a tasty summer delight with distinctive and pure herbal flavors of mint and cilantro.

An interesting preparation of braised veal breast with a variety of vegetables including fresh green, wax and fava beans worked with Wolffer Estate's robust Merlot. As Roman explained, the wine sported lots of oak and tannin making it the perfect accompaniment for the veal. As I downed the creamy confection of coffee, cardomom and orange pots de crème while sipping the 1996Wolffer Cuvee Sparkling Wine Brut, I thought, "What could be more romantic than Sunday lunch on the sun-filled terrace at Wolffer Estate Vineyard?"

The celebrity Chef series continues at the Vineyard with Vincent Scotto of Scopa, the Tuscan-style restaurant in New York City on Sunday, July 9th, 3:00-5:00pm and Laurent Tourandel of Cello restaurant in New York City, on Sunday August 6, from 3:00- 5:00pm.

Call Wolffer Estate Vineyard at (631) 537-5106 for more details on the chef series as well as their spectacular Metropolitan Opera and New World Symphony Series.

ZESTY LEMON BARS

The batter for these tangy and delicious lemon bars, work best in the workbowl of a food processor. Have you used your food processor lately? Yield: about 24 squares

For the batter
2 cups all-purpose flour
8 ounces (2 sticks) unsalted butter
1/4 cup powdered sugar

For the filling
4 eggs
4 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons lemon juice
2 cups granulated sugar
Confectioners sugar for dusting

Preheat oven to 350 degrees
Lightly butter a 9 x 13 inch Pyrex baking pan

1. Place flour in workbowl of food processor fitted with knife blade and cut in the butter. Add the powdered sugar. Process mixture just until a ball begins to come together. Do not over process.

2. With fingertips press mixture in bottom of pan until you have an even layer. Bake in preheated oven for 20 minutes. Remove from oven and set aside to cool.

3. Meanwhile, beat eggs in a mixing bowl until yolks and whites are combined. Fold in the flour until thoroughly incorporated then whisk in lemon juice and sugar to mix well. Pour mixture over the partially baked crust.

4. Return pan to oven and bake for 30-35 minutes or until lightly colored and set. Sprinkle with powdered sugar before cutting into squares for serving. Can be prepared up to several days ahead. Refrigerate, covered with plastic wrap.

Chequit Inn
23 Grand Avenue, Shelter Island Heights
749-0018

One of the most attractive features of the Chequit Inn is its location on Grand Avenue in the heart of Shelter Island Heights' Historical Section.

And, of course, driving along the Island on a sunny May day makes the picturesque view even more delightful.

When we arrived we were again impressed by a beautiful view of the distant harbor, framed by evergreens, forsythia, and budding trees.

On our previous visits to the Inn, my friend and I had dinner in the first floor dining area where the atmosphere is very informal, reminding me of a British pub in which the bar plays an essential role, especially if you have to wait for a table. However, though it was still early afternoon and not crowded, we decided to try the upper dining area which commands a view of the surrounding romantic, historical buildings. I was immediately impressed by the country-style oak furniture, the wide plank oak floors and flowers and candles on each table. An elegant setting indeed, though still maintaining the quality of ease and informality.

When we were seated, Monica, our waitress, introduced herself and handed us a wine list. I selected the Lenz Chardonnay, my friend Dubonay on the rocks.

While we were sipping our drinks Monica returned with the early spring menu, together with a list of "Specials," which included some enticing "Starters": cream of broccoli soup ($5.00), smoked salmon ($11.00), clams on the half shell ($8.00), fresh local steamers ($11.00), and grilled asparagus ($8.50). It had been sometime since I had steamers, so I decided to try the local variety. My friend ordered grilled asparagus served with herbed goat cheese.

I must say that the Chardonnay and plump, tender steamers made a great combination—and I also enjoyed sampling the asparagus and goat cheese, a combination which I had not had before.

Being a lover of seafood, I ordered an entree of egg dipped flounder ($19.00). My friend ordered the grilled N.Y. sirloin—rare ($22.00).

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

The flounder, broiled in lemon butter and caper sauce was served with rice, corn and steamed vegetables—all well prepared and delicious to the palate.

My friend commented that her steak was just the way she liked it: rare and juicy, served with mashed potatoes, corn and steamed vegetables.

Our entrees were generous portions, indeed, and as we paused every so often, we chatted with our attentive waitress who came by to see if everything was to our liking.

Monica told us she was an inhabitant of Shelter Island and this was her sixth season at the Chequit Inn. When we mentioned how much we were enjoying our dinner, she remarked that the chef, Justin Dwyer, had also been with the Inn for six years: a perfect combination of efficient service and culinary genius!

But let us not forget desert. Monica insisted that we try some of their home made specials, among which I selected the apple crunch (with ice cream and strawberries). My friend decided on the fruit dish: fresh raspberries and blueberries with cream. A perfect ending to a perfect meal.

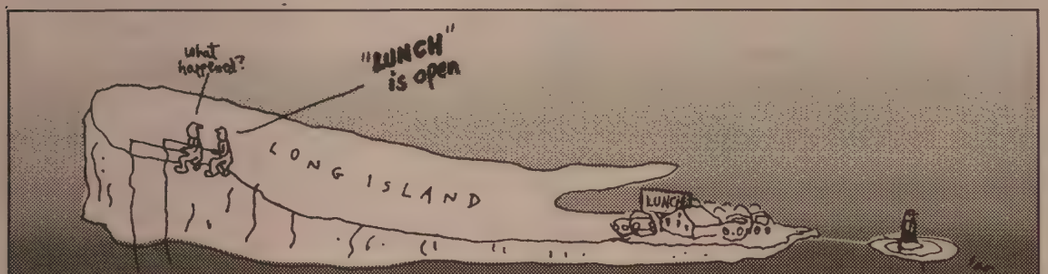

Before we left, Monica suggested we should come back some Friday when they have "live piano."

I'd like to return anytime to enjoy some of the other dinner items.

Just to mention a few, consider oysters "Moscow" ($12.00), fried calamari with spicy marinara ($8.00), pan seared salmon ($20.00), blackened catfish ($17.00). And if you're interested in luncheon salads, chef salad with black forrest ham, roast turkey, Swiss & American cheese, hard boiled egg garnish ($10.00).

And let's not overlook the plates & sandwich offerings, which include such items as cold lobster plate (M.P.), a crab cake sandwich with spicy remoulade ($10.50), grilled tuna steak sandwich with wasabi mayonnaise ($9.00), and many others at modest prices.

The restaurant is open year round, with lunch served between 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., and dinner from 3:00 to 8:00 p.m. There are dinner specials Sunday through Thursday. If you're planning to stay over for a few days or the weekend, you might want to know that the Inn has charming rooms at reasonable rates, but be sure to call ahead to make reservations. –Alex Russo

It's Our Garden WITH ELIZABETH AND CROW MILLER

CROW'S BEAN WISDOM; FOR PRODUCTIVE GROWING

Beans like warm soil and air, so don't jump the gun when sowing seeds. Bean seed germinates best when soil temperatures are warmer than 60F. Plant in cold soil and your beans will germinate slowly and be vulnerable to rot and soil-borne diseases. And even if you do manage to get some seeds to sprout in cold soil, you won't be eating beans any earlier, because beans planted when the soil warms up will catch up to those early sown ones within a month or so anyway.

By planting after all danger of frost is past, you also avoid subjecting the growing tips of your fragile young bean plants to killer cold snaps. If you must have the first bush beans on the block, preheat the soil in the garden bed by covering it with black plastic for a couple of weeks before you intend to sow; then plant a week or so early. Once the seedlings emerge, protect them from cold by using floating row covers.

For super-fast germination, soak your seeds in water for an hour before planting. Our advice is to apply a thin layer of straw after you plant to keep the soil surface moist and soft. This will protect the plant's growing tip from breaking off as it pushes through the soil.

Research at Spring Meadow suggests that you can really crowd those bush bean seeds in the soil (good balanced organic soil) and still get a great crop. And there are good reasons to do so, like getting the leaves of the plants to grow into a shade—producing canopy that cools the soil and inhibits weed growth. (this method is called using a living mulch) We suggest a spacing of 4 to 5-bean plants per foot, that' 2 1/2 to 3-inches apart with rows spaced 2 to 3-feet apart. And, also recommend the intensive block planting method for small space gardeners. Mark off 2-by-2 foot blocks, that's a small enough area for you to be able to reach into the middle, then scrape off a 2-inch layer of soil from the block's surface. Scatter your seeds over this area and cover them with compost. Later, thin the seedlings to about 3-inches.

We recommend that you rotate your beans every year. Don't grow beans in the same garden bed every year. Beans are susceptible to an array of diseases that live in the soil and rotating your crops will help prevent a build-up of these diseases in your beds. If your beans die in the seedling stage, diseases are probably killing the roots, so rotate!

Beans have shallow roots that will quickly lose the fight for moisture and nutrients to feisty weeds, so keep garden beds clear! We cultivate between our bean plants with a hoe until the plants have grown big enough to shade out weeds. (Remember, using living mulch method) Instead of actually hoeing out our weeds, we push soil from the space between our rows over emerging weeds to smother them. Be sure to cultivate shallowly. Bean roots grow so close to the soil surface that you'll risk pulling out the bean plants along with the weeds if you go too deep. When summers are hot and/or rain is at a premium, mulch your beans to keep moisture where it belongs, near those shallow roots!

Regular picking is the number one way to prolong

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

With the increasing concern about global warming, one of the primary options being considered for reducing US greenhouse gas emissions is a plan to pay farmers for implementing agricultural practices that reduce carbon emissions from the soils. This issue came to my attention through my involvement with the National Association of Conservation Districts.

Carbon-reducing practices include reducing tillage, conserving tillage, retiring cropland, fertilizing with livestock manure, decreasing methane and reducing energy use. The compensation could come from one of two sources: the government, or companies willing to "trade" carbon credits. Under the carbon credit trading proposal, a company that produces what is determined to be an excessive amount of carbon would pay a farmer to sequester carbon in the soil. Carbon sequestration is not currently recognized as an option under the Kyoto Protocol, an international agreement that would legally bind the US to a 7% reduction in greenhouse gas emissions below 1990 levels between 2008-2012. US negotiators will be pushing for carbon sequestration as a recognized method of reducing emissions at the Sixth Conference of Parties (COP-6) of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC).

"The US delegation will be up against resistance from the European Union, whose member countries will not benefit as much because they do not have the capacity to sequester that the United States does," said Jon Doggett, an American Farm Bureau senior director of governmental relations.

A carbon sequestration policy has more than European opposition to face; one domestic challenge is establishing a level playing field for participation.

"Soil does get saturated with carbon, so a farmer currently using practices that retain carbon in the soil will not have the capacity to store as much as his neighbor who is not using such practices," said Doggett.

While the public policy discussion has focused on the benefits to corn and soybean growers in the Midwest, there are many commodities, such as certain fruit and vegetable production, which cannot use the methods necessary to keep the carbon in the soil. Another concern of farmers is the repercussions for certain other activities, such as livestock production, that emit greenhouse gases. Such a compensation program could lead to added costs for producers who are emitting. And then there is that ever-present agricultural variable - the weather. What would be done if a producer sequestering carbon were struck by a natural disaster? Would they have to pay that money back if their ability to sequester is wiped out?

All farmers may find that a carbon sequestration compensation program ends up increasing costs for all. "The industries that will be required to purchase the carbon credits often supply farmers with vital operating materials, including fuel and fertilizer," said Doggett. "As regulatory costs for companies rise, farmers will pay for that as fuel and fertilizer costs go up."

Carbon storage in the soil could potentially disrupt other environmentally beneficial practices that farmers do not get paid to use. "At the end of the harvest, California producers flood their land, providing a habitat for ducks and geese," Doggett explained. "Who's going to decide what's more important in cases like this, greenhouse gas reduction or providing a refuge for wild animals?"

Obviously, as is often the case in agriculture, there are no easy answers here. The State Conservation District based in Syracuse is investigating what the impact will be on New York growers. Keep an eye out for future columns following the progress of this issue.

A Piece Of History: The Hedges Inn

One of the most beautifully appointed old inns in the Hamptons greets east-bound travelers as it overlooks the edge of Town Pond in the historic district of East Hampton where route 27 turns down Main Street.

Located in East Hampton's National Historic District, whose tree-lined sidewalks are paved with red bricks, the Hedges Inn is one of the oldest and most historic inns in the Hamptons. At one time, it was part of a large farm whose land extended all the way down South Beach Lane to Hook Pond and the ocean.

A few feet down the block historic buildings weave a narrow path to the Gardiner Windmill, which was built in 1771, and whose arms had been lost in a hurricane in 1938.

At the end of the Village Green— a gentle park framing Town Pond across from the mill— the old South End Burying Grounds continue to endure the passage of time. Directly across from the historic fenced-in burial grounds, a carved stone marks the place where Rev. Thomas James, the first minister in the area had lived from 1650-1696, and in whose honor the street was named. A wooden sign over the stone tells an intriguing tidbit of personal history, "Rev. Thomas James prepared a catechism for Montauk Indians and was arrested for asserting rights."

Just a few more yards down Main Street the Historic "Home, Sweet Home" Museum is flanked by the Mulford Farm —the home of East Hampton's Historical Society. Guild Hall then faces the village library and stately estates begin to lead the way to present day storefronts and a movie complex.

The site of the Hedges Inn dates back to 1652 and was inhabited by members of the Hedges family until 1923 when Mrs. John D. Hedges died and the house was sold.

The earliest building inhabited by the Hedges family may well have been torn down. The "new house," which was deeded to Daniel Hedges in 1774 by his father, is presumed to be part of the present day inn. The Hedges family, like so many other old families living on Main Street had "taken in" boarders since 1870.

The first land that was sold from this property was ten acres that was bought by a man by the name of Fowler for a total of $2000. Most of the Hedges farm, however, was sold to Frederic Gallatin in 1880 and is now the site of homes on Hook Pond Land.

When Mrs. John D. Hedges died and the house was sold, it went through a brief period of being a roadside restaurant that brandished a huge sign-an offensive sight to many of the early villagers, who saw it as a blight to the entry way into their dignified Village.

Mrs. Harry L. Hamlin, who had known and loved Mrs. Hedges, and who had bought and restored several other early East Hampton houses, was incensed by the indignity rendered to the fine old house and bought the property in 1924.

Mrs. Hamlin enlarged the Hedges family house in 1935 and transformed it into a reputable inn before leaving it in the hands of her own butler and cook.

It was sold again in 1954 to renown restaurateur, Henri Soule of Le Pavillon in New York, who transformed it into a famous summer restaurant. Rumor has it that the legendary wine cellar was once part of the Underground Railroad.

Today it is still an inn, and along with it, an atmospheric restaurant by the name of James Lane Cafe. The address is 74 James Lane—named after Rev. Thomas James, who had presided over the first church in East Hampton for 46 years where it had stood in the middle of the Old South End Cemetery beside Town Pond.

A very old small building behind the inn is said to have once been a shoemaker's shop. The Hedges men once raised cattle and manufactured shoes, saddles and harnesses for themselves, their neighbors, and consumers in other parts of the country.

Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, the Hedges Inn has been fully restored. All eleven rooms have private baths and a continental breakfast is served in a charming country breakfast room with a view of a multi-flowered garden. For those who want to sip a glass of wine before dinner while enjoying the beauty of nature, there is a side terrace on the side of the house. Linda Calder is the present-day innkeeper.

How to Tell If Your Roof Survived Winter

Winter months can be cruel to your roof. Your roof is possibly the most critical element that protects your home. If your roof fails, it can cause great expense, significant damage and waste your time. So, now that the weather is better, it's a good idea to perform a quick check-up to insure that your home is protected.

Leaking roof systems can result from several sources. The most common leak sources include cracks in flashing around the chimney and vents, worn out or missing shingles, or condensation from inadequate attic ventilation.

Here are some suggested warning signals that you can identify yourself, according to Dave Harrison, vice president of GAF Materials Corporation, North America's largest roofing system manufacturer:

1. Ceiling spots. A warning sign that your roof system needs leak repair.

2. Missing shingles. These should be replaced quickly to avoid structural damage to your roof deck and the interior of your home.

3. Cracked flashing. Should always be replaced.

4. Buckled or curled shingles. Indicate old age or a problem with the shingle underlayment (i.e., the felts underneath the shingles).

5. Blistered shingles. Typically occurs due to inadequate roof ventilation or application over a wet deck.

6. Granules in the gutter. If excessive they may indicate aging shingles that should be replaced.

7. Peeling of interior or exterior paint/wallpaper. A sign of possibly inadequate attic ventilation.

8. Excessive energy bills. Can be a sign of inadequate attic ventilation, especially air conditioning in the summer.

If you have issues with your roof system, consider utilizing the services of a professional roofing contractor. Most people think roofing is simple and are therefore willing to hire "fly-by-nighters" to perform their roofing services.

This probably is why roofing is one of the top reasons for complaint calls to the Better Business Bureau. Consider checking the Web site www.gaf.com. It contains a great deal of information about roofing problems and solutions, as well as the names of Master roofing contractors located in almost every area of the United States.

Also, if you need to locate a manufacturer-certified contractor, you can find one by utilizing a free service at 1-888-LEAK-SOS (1-888-532-5767). Also ask about the informative video "Avoiding Roofing Disasters" when you call.

Warm Weather Car Maintenance

You can get more out of your car when you know what you're putting into it. This is especially true in summer, when the combination of warmer weather and heat from your car's engine can cause motor oil to lose viscosity or thickness. Thinner oil can result in an overheated automobile.

To find out the correct grade of motor oil for your car, truck or SUV, the engineers at Kendall Motor Oil suggest checking the owner's manual and following these general guidelines:

A SAE 10W-30 or 10W-40 motor oil is recommended for year-round use where there are seasonal temperature changes. These multigrade oils can adapt to a greater range of temperatures than a single-grade motor oil can. The majority of late model cars suggest SAE 5W-30 or 10W-30 motor oil.

For areas with consistently warm climates, Kendall recommends using a thicker oil such as SAE 20W-40 or 20W-50 motor oil.

Experts also emphasize the importance of closely monitoring engine oil levels and changing the oil and oil filter every 3,000 miles. It's important not to let the level drop by more than one quart. Engines in new cars often hold less oil than in older models, magnifying the problem of running low on oil. The oil simply has to work harder, making it that much more important to use a high quality oil.

Engines in new cars tend to hold less oil than in the past. When the oil runs low, it has to work harder. Check your levels often and use high quality oil.

your bean harvest. You should check at least every other day and you should pick your beans before their pods swell up with seeds. When seeds finish developing inside the pods, it sends a signal to the plant that it can stop producing because it's succeeded at its job of reproduction. But if you keep picking before those seeds can mature, the plant will make more beans to make more seeds.

To extend that deadline we suggest spraying bean plants with a mist of cool water during brief hot spells to keep your beans comfortable and productive.

And finally, don't ever plant all your beans at once! A couple of ten to fifteen–foot long rows, planted every two to three weeks, will keep your family in fresh green beans throughout the season.

And don't forget to innoculate those bean seeds before you plant them by coating them with a special bacteria, available in powdered form from mail-order seed suppliers. Like peas and other nitrogen–fixing legumes, beans pull plant–feeding nitrogen (N) right out of the air thanks to the help of soil dwelling bacteria that form nodules on the roots of these plants. And you get 150—pounds of free nitrogen per acre, And lets face it, you can't beat that with a big stick.

New ZAP Electric Scooter and Bike Store Opens In East Hampton

It's the Summer of the Scooter, according to The New York Times, and Zero Air Pollution scooters (ZAPPYs) as well as ZAP bicycles have made their debut in the Hamptons. Available at a new shop, aptly named ZapHampton, located next to Top Drawer Lingerie and near the Bank of New York parking lot at 59 The Circle in East Hampton, the scooters and bikes are flying out the door, according to owner John Swanson.

Scooters, ones like you propelled as a kid and the new electric-powered, rechargeable ZAPPYs, have garnered a lot of publicity this spring. Actor Kevin Spacey caused quite a stir when he rode out on to the set of the David Letterman show on his ZAPPY. They've been covered by almost every major publication including Newsweek and the Boston Globe, which featured the scooters in a front-page article. And the cover of a recent New York Times Magazine Section showed a very young senior citizen tooling around on a ZAPPY. John was the first guy out here last summer with a ZAPPY electric scooter, a gift from the Chairman of the Board of ZAP, who also happens to be his father. "Dad and I were so impressed by the ZAP products that we decided to open a store in East Hampton," says John. ZAP, at Zapworld.com, is a publicly traded company based in Sebastapol, California. ZapHampton is the only exclusive ZAP franchise on the East Coast, so if you want a ZAP product, you have to see John.

So what is a ZAPPY electric scooter? Well, it's the opposite of a gas-powered scooter. No gasoline, no smell, no noise, no heat or danger of explosion. ZAPPY produces zero air pollution (hence the name ZAP), along with zero noise pollution. A gentleman's or gentlelady's or kid's—scooter all the way. "A lot of professional's use them to commute in the city," says John. This cute, lightweight fold-down is the wave of the future, especially in this area, where parking is a nightmare.

The ZAP electric bicycle is just a good normal bike, except that you can stop peddling if you want.. Brilliant idea, especially if you have bad knees, or are going up hill, or if you just get tired but want (or need) to keep on going. Gently apply pressure to a small level on the handle-bar, and a ZAP bike's electric motors kicks in. Just sit back and steer. ZAP bikes range in price from $700 to $1500. Bike styles range from the classic beach cruiser to mountain bikes with front shocks. They come with a charger that you plug into a wall outlet, like a lamp. Nothing complicated here.

Swanson's favorite saying is, "It's all about the fun!" He goes on, "A lot of people just want to have fun on a bike. They are not driven by the activity, they just want to drive around this beautiful place on a nice, safe bike. These people are my clients. And ZAP bikes give them that nice optional boost."

You can get more information about ZAPPYs and ZAP bikes at ZapHampton.com and Zapworld.com, or go to the shop and say hello to John. He says his biggest compliments come from repeat customers. They say, "John, it's really fun doing business with you because there's no sales pitch." And John wouldn't have it any other way. "It's all about the fun, the joys of being outdoors, and the experience of buying a ZAPPY or ZAP bike should be a breeze, too." And, you don't need to ask John twice to see pictures of his newborn son, either.

Clean Air For Kids

The phone rings: "This is the school nurse calling again. I know it's not even lunchtime yet, but can you come to school and get Michael? He's got another headache, he's nauseated, and his asthma is worse. He's missing so much, we're worried about his grades." You cry in frustration. "But he's fine when he leaves the house".

What's going on here? Why is Michael getting sick at school?

Last week, in a stunning survey report more than a year in the making, the New York State Association of School Nurses said that 71% of their members statewide (65% of the members in Long Island schools) said they knew children in their schools whose learning, breathing, or behavior was affected by pollutants at school: pesticides, cleaning products, scented products, bathroom deodorizers, bus fumes. One quarter of the nurses statewide (20% of the Long island school nurses) also reported that schools were not trying to reduce pollutants as part of protecting student or staff health. In fact, a remarkable 14% of school nurses on Long Island said they knew their schools still used insecticide sprays indoors, and worse, 17% had no information about the schools indoor pesticide applications. The nurses are calling for legislation, and fast. Their call was joined by the Healthy Schools Network, the American Lung Association of New York State, Civil Service Employees Association, Environmental Advocates, and New York Coalition for Alternatives to Pesticides, among many supporting groups statewide.

Schools need to catch up. The American Academy of Pediatrics, the National Academy of Sciences, the American Public Health Association, and the US Environmental Protection Agency, as well as other federal agencies, have all established initiatives for children and the environment, because children are uniquely vulnerable to hazards. Children breathe and eat more per pound or body weight than adults, engage in more hand to mouth behaviors, and can' t identify or protect themselves from hazards.

Today, as Michael's school knows, asthma is a leading cause of school absenteeism. The American Academy of Pediatrics says that, in addition to asthma episodes, symptoms caused by indoor pollutants can include headaches, nausea, rashes, fatigue, the flu, or trouble with memory or concentration, and behavior problems. Thus, US EPA, and other groups working on school environments often recommend starting with zero- or low-cost steps to avoid toxics: adopt least toxic pest control strategies that rely on building maintenance instead of chemical sprays; switch to low-odor, environmentally-friendly supplies; keep diesel fumes out of schools by moving bus loading areas.

That Michael is getting sick in a polluted classroom would not surprise anyone. In 1996 the US Government Accounting Office reported that the nation's schools faced an epidemic of indoor air pollution. In fact, in 1998 the state-funded Central NY Occupational Health Clinic reported chat over its nine year history, 12% of all its clients were school personnel complaining of health effects from chemicals used in schools. Collectively, various state and school—funded occupational and environmental health experts are asked to do hundreds of school walk-throughs annually. But there are no standards and systemss of services designed for children School employees fear job retaliation it' they tell parents about illnesses triggered by school conditions.

The time is now: children are more vulnerable, they are compelled to attend school, schools aren't protecting them from environmental hazards that can affct learning. Yet, our schools have access to new construction and repair funds, and have won four consecutive years of record increases in aid. We need environmental health legislation targeting cost-effective; reforms.

With the leadership of Assemblyman Steve Ertglebright and Senator Carl Marcellino a package of healthy school environments' bills is in both houses. Two bills have already passed the Assembly: the School Integrated Pest Management program bill (A 8206) would require schools to follow a least-toxic approach to pest control that relies on building maintenance; the Unproved School Siting and construction bill (A4700A/S361 4) would require the Education Department to address school siting on or near hazardous facilities and assure indoor air quality and energy efficiency in school design. The School Pollution Prevention Purchasing bill on the Assembly calendar (AS I 78/53617) requires state agencies to make available on state contract specifications for environmentally preferable purchasing of products used by schools. The Senate is working to match the Assembly's School 1PM bill: the other two bills are idling in the Senate FAucation Committee.

Next fall, wouldn't you like Michael and his friends to be as healthy in school as they are at home? We know the classroom teachers, parents, and school nurses would.

Vacation Safety: From Boo-boos to Jet Lag

Sleepless jet-lagged nights. Motion sickness in cars and boats. Poison ivy. Welcome to your vacation!

Traveling offers precious time for family and a welcome break from the daily grind, that can pummel your body. Are there ways you can insure that those minor medical emergencies don't ruin an otherwise perfect vacation?

One answer is a well-stocked first aid kit, that includes remedies for minor emergencies like burns, cuts, or scrapes, plus health supplements and medications your family uses daily. Here are the basics:

- Bandages, first aid tape, and gauze
- Scissors, tweezers, and medical gloves
- Antiseptic and waterless skin sanitizer
- Antibiotic ointment
- Burn and sting relief products
- Elastic bandages for sprains and securing bandages
- Flashlight and batteries
- First aid manual
- Daily supplements and medications

Optional items include pain and fever medications, antihistamines (to stem allergic reactions) motion sickness medicine, and products for jet lag. Here are my suggestions:

- Diphenhydramine (Benadryl) for allergic reactions
- Dimenhydrinate (Dramamine), cyclizine (Marezine), or meclizine (Bonine) for motion sickness
- Melatonin, a dietary supplement, for jet lag

My wife and I are planning a trip to Hawaii that includes an evening bay cruise. It sounds romantic, but I'm afraid that my on-again, off-again motion sickness might strike. Is there anything out there you can recommend for this?

Motion sickness (nausea, vomiting, dizziness, and sweating) occurs with movement. It is most common in children, but also affects adults. Flying is the worst, because you lose hours during travel. Several things can reduce or eliminate jet lag entirely:

- Drink lots of water during the flight
- Eat high-protein, low-calorie meals before, during, and after the flight
- Spend lots of time in natural daylight at your destination
- Take 1—3 mg of melatonin 1-2 hours before bedtime for three days before and five days after an international flight
- If needed, take a prescription sedative a few nights to get your sleep cycle back in rhythm

To prevent or help relieve motion sickness, focus on a still object, such as the horizon if you are in a car or boat. Avoid alcohol and heavy meals before traveling.

Over-the-counter drugs that may help include diphenhydramine (brand name Benadryl), dimenhydrinate (Dramamine), cyclizine (Marezine), and meclizine (Bonine). These drugs are effective about 50* percent of the time.

Other alternatives include acupressure wristbands and electrical acustimulation bands, such as SeaB and Relief Band, which work by applying pressure or electrical stimulation above the wrist on the inner forearm, resulting in decreased nausea and vomiting. Acupressure wristbands seem to be effective for about 50 percent of people who use them.

Bon voyage! Just a little preparation and forethought will insure that your vacation won't fall victim to minor health and medical complaints.

A Healing Touch

Healing Touch (HT) is an evolving collection of healing interventions using hands-on and energy-based techniques to balance and align the human energy field. HT was developed by Janet Mentgen, RN, BSN, who bad been practicing energy based care in Denver, since 1980. In 1990, she developed a certificate program in HT with the American Holistic Nurses Association. In 1996, Healing Touch International was formcd to meet the expanding needs of training and certifying HT practitioners worldwide.

HT is an intentional process of directing or receiving energy through the hands of the practitioner to facilitate the healing process in the client. Body, mind, emotion and spirit are affected and each individual is empowered to participate in the healing journey. Earlier in the 1970's, Dora Kunz, in conjunction with Dr. Dolores Krieger, then a Professor of Nursing at New York University, developed Therapeutic Touch (TT). Today, hands-on modalities are recognized as legitimate medical techniques, and are used by more than 30,000 nurses in hospitals each year. Hands-on healing has been shown to accelerate wound healing and increase hemoglobin.

A model for a scientific basis of the physiological changes of HT can be extracted from acupuncture rcsearch. In acupuncture, healing is stimulated by the insertion of fine needles at specific points. Research has shown that these points are often skin locations of decreased electrical resistance. Most points are found on channels or meridians. Both the flow of injected isotopes and the transport of electrical current along these meridians have been demonstrated. Needles are either left alone or manually rotated, heated by flame or by glowing moxa herb, or stimulated by electricity, depending on the goal of treatment. Needling stimulates the flow of Qi an entity that is not fully understood. Qi is felt to be vital energy, and is translated variously as "life force", "vital force" or "finest matter influences" or perhaps better just left untranslated.

Qi appears to behave like electromagnetic energy that comes from living tissues. It circulates along the meridians or channels along the surface and inside the body, and performs various functions including support, nourishment, protection, and warming. Documented changes of acupuncture include the release of endorphins, serotonin and hormones. Acupuncture can produce relaxation, nausea relief and pain reduction, and is effective in numerous conditions including drug and alcohol detoxification, asthma, sinusitis, migraines, menopausal flashes, frozen shoulder, osteoarthritis and stroke.

In acupuncture, as in HT and Qi gong, the theory is that when energy is flowing through the body at balanced levels, the body stays healthy. When out of balance, or if blocks occur, physiology is affected, followed by signs and symptoms of pathology. Energy interventions serve to maintain good health and prevent disease, but if one is ill, one can more quickly regain health by re-establishing a normal balance in the energy system. HT can be thought of as a bioelectromagnetic interaction to stimulate bioclectromagnetic and physiological changes in the patient to promote healing.

Using the SQUID (superconducting quantum interference device) magnetometer, scientists have been able to detect the minute energy fields around the human body, and huge pulsating fields eminating from the hands of practitioners of healing methods. These biomagnetic fields are associated with physiological activities inside the body. Electrical currents generate magnetic fields, and since living tissues have much electrical activity, it is reasonable to think of the entity known as the human aura, as being, at least in part, the manifestation of these magnetic fields. There is also fascinating research on distant energy work, including prayer and Qi gong, where results cannot be easily explained by our current understanding of physics.

Healing Touch Techniques in Arthritis

The HT program teaches how to prepare and manage the practitioner's field to create change in the field of the client. In practice, the healer creates a healing environment (safe, trusting, caring) for the client. There is an intake interview and a data sheet is completed. Pain, including that from arthritis, is felt to be a sign or message that there is a problem in the person's energy field. Learning to hear and to understand what the body is telling us, are important aspects of healing. For example, identifying what was going on in the client's life at the time the problems were initially noticed would be appropriate. The healer then does an assessment with his or her hands after first becoming centered (clear in the self) and open (able to receive without judgment).

Environmental Graphics Ease Stress

According to the American Institute of Stress, Americans are more stressed than ever before. Forty three percent of adults suffer adverse health effects as a result, and seventy to ninety percent of adult visits to primary care physicians are precipitated by stress-related problems. Stress also causes approximately one million employees to be absent on any given workday, and ultimately is responsible for nearly 50 percent of employee burnout and forty percent of worker turnover.

"Stress is an inescapable part of modern life," explains Todd Imholte, vice president of Hopkins, MN-based Environmental Graphics, the United States' largest producer of WallMurals. "Whether we like it or not, we're constantly juggling a myriad of professional and personal responsibilities, often with too little time to do any of them justice. Add in technology, which now allows us to be "on call" during our leisure time via cell phones, pagers and e-mail, and it's no wonder our stress levels are higher than ever before."

That's the bad news. The good news is that there are a variety of stress management techniques that can be easily incorporated into the busiest daily routine. Imholte offers a few suggestions:

TOP FIVE STRESS-BUSTERS

1. Go for a walk on the beach, in the mountains or around your neighborhood. Just twenty minutes a day can work wonders, both physically and mentally.

2. Bring the outdoors, indoors. Decorate your home with nature-inspired décor to help you relax and soothe the soul.

3. Take up an enjoyable hobby. Whether it's painting, playing an instrument, knitting or fly-fishing, choose something that will force you to calm down and enjoy the moment.

4. Try Tai Chi, meditation or prayer. By focusing on within, you'll acquire a proper perspective and better control over the anxiety-riddled external world.

5. Hug your spouse. Kiss your children. Pet your dog. Laugh. Be playful... spontaneous ... and have fun.

Imholte emphasizes the importance of creating a peaceful, nurturing home environment. "At the end of a busy day, most of us want to 'cocoon' and escape from the hectic outside world. Adding a WallMural like "Oriental Garden" "Cinnamon Bay", "Clouds" or "Hawaiian Sunset", helps bring the outdoors in with soft colors and calming images.

"Serenity", Environmental Graphics' newest nature-inspired offering, depicts a tranquil garden of pale mauve and lavender wildflowers and moss-green shrubbery. A welcoming floral-covered arch and park bench complete the garden oasis motif. When added to a room, it helps establish a balance of color and texture, while emanating a feeling of harmony throughout.,

"I wanted this work to create a place where individuals could go to refresh their mind and spirit," says "Serenity" artist Christa Kieffer. "As they look at the mural, they feel connected to their own private view of the country. The hazy background, in particular, helps them envision that they live in the place of their dreams."

"When you look at the mural, you're automatically transported to a quieter, gentler place," adds Imholte. "Your blood pressure lowers, your muscles unclench, and you're better able to enjoy the rest of your day."

For a full-color brochure that includes WallMural designs and local dealer information, call toll-free (888) 205-0914 or visit their web site at www.egproducts.com. To purchase WallMurals, visit Home Depot, Sherwin Williams or your local home center or paint and wallcovering retailer.

Micro-Dermabrasion Erased The Ravage Of Time

What is this new holistic technology for today's health and beauty demands? The new method used in Europe for years has hit the states and is just amazing, its called micro-dermabrasion. The micro-dermabrasion treatment uses an advanced method of abrasion to revitalize the skin and promote new cell regeneration. It is used for brown spots, melasma, crow's feet, acne, scars, sun damage, enlarged pores, lip and character lines. The micro-dermabrasion treatment erases fine lines wrinkles and aids in the reduction of any facial scars. This treatment is virtually painless uses no anesthesia there is no recovery time and no known side effects. What more could we ask for?

What is the actual treatment you might ask? Well, micro-dermabrasion is used in place of chemical and glyolic peels by offering a series of controlled exfoliation treatments to achieve renewed complexion and glow. The power peel is a fast effective painless treatment leaving little or no redness to your skin. Micro crystals gently remove dead skin cells, allowing the surface to regenerate bringing a healthy youthful appearance to the skin. Best results can be achieved with a series of five or more to effectively control and focus on the problem areas. A follow up home care treatment of the proper cleansers sun screen creams and toners for you skin will aid in the process of your youthful appearance.

The Style Bar day spa (631) 725-6730, located at 1 Bay Street in Sag Harbor, offers micro-dermabrasion as one of the many treatments of this wonderful new addition to the "Harbor", they also offer manicures pedicures, European waxing, facials, massage, and various body treatments. So if the micro-dermabraision treatment sounds like it might be a treatment you are interested in looking into, please call over to the Style Bar day spa. They offer a consultation with their professionally trained licensed estheticians, Phyllis Gasparri and Christine Picciano, who have been using micro-dermabraision for two years and have watched the "hands of time literally turn backwards" on their clients. You can benefit from a micro-dermabrasion power peel for a more youthful healthy appearance. It works.

The hands, used as sensors, are slowly moved about in the air near the body, especially from one to six inches off the skin, to determine the shape and quality of the energy field. One compares right and left sides. Healers will also direct attention to scanning specific vortexes of energy known as the Chakras, to further determine where flow is affected. May heelers find the use of pendulums quite helpful in evaluating the strength and direction of energy flow over these Chakras. Attention should also be directed toward scars which may "leak energy" and contribute to problems locally and even elsewhere.

Sensations vary and include temperature (warm, cool), discomfort (painful, prickly, itchy), pressure (empty, dense), and movement (smooth or pulsating flow). The temperature perceived in the air is different than the actual temperature felt when the hand is placed on the person's skin. Different healers perceive differently. The healer listens attentively to words coming from the patient and to thoughts coming into his/her own mind, for clues to the problem. In arthritis, the fields over the affected joints may feel cool or hot, empty or too full, smooth or pulsating, and one cannot anticipate how the field will feel simply by taking a history. These same scans by bend and pendulum are repeated during and after the treatmant to monitor changes.

While energy changes already occur during the initial scanning the next part of the healing sequcnce is the specific intervention. There are a multitude of hand-on approaches. Sessions may be strongly directed by intuition. I commonly first establish a connection with the patient by simply placing my hands in the air an inch or two just above and under each foot. This initial calm and non-threatening approach is well accepted by patients, and then I usually continue with other interventions, such as full body techniques including smoothing the field with the "Magnetic Unruff1e" and balancing the field and supporting flow with the "Chakra Connection".

In arthritis, the intention of the healer is to reduce pain and swelling, to retard the degenerative process. and to restore the joint to function. The use of therapeutic modulation" and the "pain drain" may be quite helpful interventions. In modulation, the healer places a hand to either side of the affected part with the intention of normalizing the field, while in the pain drain, one places one hand over the area of pain, and positions the other hand away from the body as if to siphon away the pain or congestion. Pain may be felt by the healer during these interventions.

Another arthritis technique is "Ultrasound" where the healer directs focused energy through the thumb and two fingers held together, moving the hand over the affected joint. There are more elaborate interventions, detailed in the reference Healing Touch Level II Notebook, such as the 'Vertebral Spiral Technique", used to relax the muscles holding the vertebrae while using a variation of ultrasound, and the "Hopi Indian Technique", used if specific areas of the spine remain blocked.

Many healers consciously ask for guidance and assistance from higher entities, such as Guides, Archangels, Jesus, God and the Universal Energy FIeld. In addition, counseling skill expertise is often very important. While some interventions may take a few moments, a full session would usually involve thirty to sixty minutes. At the conclusion of the session, the client should feel fully alert, integrated and relaxed. His or her energy field should feel balanced with a smooth, easy, comfortably warm flow.

Sotnetimes a person needs to be seen only once for a healing intervention, but usually more sessions are useful especially for long term chronic problems. The frequency of sessions can be daily, but in practice, they usually occur weekly, and then less often. Clients are advised to not abandon customary medical interventions, and to seek a physician if not already done.

Acupuncture Techniques In Arthritis

As in hands-on healing, there are numerous acupuncture techniques, both ancient and modern. My preference is to use percutaneous electrical nerve stimulation (PENS). In this approach, an electrical device, powered by a nine volt battery, is connected to acupuncture needles using a pair of alligator clips. The placement of needles may be either around the affected joint, or more proximally at the corresponding vertebral levels. Additional needles with electrical stimulation can be placed into poims along the traditional meridians. Most of my patients receive HT interventions from me, after needle placement.

The frequency (Hertz) selected affects the outcome. Low frequencies at two-four Hertz, are used for tonification. Higher frequencies usually greater than seventy Hertz are used to unblock channels and to move energy. Using a mid range of perhaps twenty-thirty confers advantages of both high and low Hertz. Instead of using electricity, one can manually twist the needles or heat them. One could also just leave the needles alone, in 'neutral', to disperse energy. Other approaches achieve sedation with other needle twisting techniques, attach importance to the angle of the needle's penetration, and the importance of specific needle depth/size.

Low frequency/high intensity (ten or more milliamperes) stimulation mimics manual needle stimulation and produces analgesia that is slow in onset, generalizcd throughout the body, continues after the stimulation has ceased, is cumulative and is endorphim dependent. This type of analgesic response is blocked by opiate antagonists, and requires an intact nervous system.

High frequency/low intensity stimulation (less then ten milli-amperes) activates low-threshold skin and muscle receptors, to produce analgesia that is rapid in onset, is segmental (active only in the electrostimulated regions), ceases when the stimulation has stopped, is not cumulative, and is not endorphin dependent. High frequency stimulation appears to be mediated by the monoamine transmitters serotonin and norepinephrine, as well as dynorphins.

Other acupuncture approaches to treating arthritis and other conditions, focus on ear points inauriculoacupuncture (France), hand acupuncture (Korea) and scalp acupuncture (Chinese and Japenese). In North America, there is much interest in the neuroanatomuic approach to needle placement, based on detailed knowledge of the anatomy and function of the nervous system.

Acupuncture sessions usually include some brief and tolerable discomfort. The intensity of the electrical stimulation or manual needle tonification is fully controlled and done while nuiritaining direct communication with the patient. Sessions may last from fifteen to sixty minutes, depending on the complexity and variety of interventions done. The benefits may not occur until the next day, and may infrequently be preceded by a day of exacerbated pain. The relief provided by acupuncture may be only two to five days initially, but extending much longer with subsequent treatments. Most patients receive weekly sessions for perhaps four to twelve sessions, and then every two to four weeks, or less often, depending on the outcome. Some problems require only one treatment.

The more traditional Chinese acupuncture views arthritis as a "Painful Obstruction Syndrome" (POS) of the channels, and sees the problem arising from invasion of external wind, cold or dampness. POS or "Bi' means pain, soreness or numbness due to obstruction/stagnation of Qi and Blood caused when invasion of the above three external evils overwhelms the person from relative deficiency of protective Qi arid Blood. Overuse of the joints, accidents, mental problems and aging are reasons for a joint's energy to be depleted or stagnated, leading to vulnerability, when pathogenic factors converge with the joint's Blood and Qi.

Certain points along the meridians have special functions and are selectively used in treating POS. In addition to expelling the Externel Factors using traditional points, one may also select points to enbance Liver (for the sinews), Kidney (for the bones) and Governing Vessel (for general defensive Qi) Chinese herbs are an integral part of traditional Chinese medicine, but due to my concern about animal and human ingredients and possible contaminants from pesticides, pharmaceuticals and heavy metals, found in some imported herbs coming from China,, I have not yet incorporated such products into my practice.

POLICE BLOTTER

A Southampton Village resident returned home to find two intruders in his Hillcrest Avenue home watching television. Robert V. Moses Jr., 35 and Frank L. Taylor, 40, both hailing from Southampton, were arrested. Moses was charged with criminal trespass, a misdemeanor, and Taylor was charged with felonious burglary.

A Water Mill motorist was unwilling to wait for the light to change at the intersection of North Sea Road and County Road 39 in Southampton, so he cut through a gas station to avoid it. Unfortunately for him, he was observed by the police and stopped. When asked for his license, Kenneth S. Viske, 19, handed over a fraudulent Vermont license. He appeared to have been drinking, so the officers asked him to take a sobriety test, he refused. Viske was charged with possession of a fake license and refusal to take a sobriety test, both misdemeanors, as well as driving while impaired by alcohol, a violation.

Also doing bad things in the presence of the law, was a Hauppauge woman, who according to police struck a person in the face while an officer looked on. Danute E. Sleiviene, 54, was charged with harassment in the second degree.

Somebody attacked the ATM at the Suffolk County National Bank on Pantigo Road in East Hampton, breaking the monitor screen causing over $1,000 in damage. This time no officers were present, but the security camera was rolling. Police are investigating.

A Sag Harbor resident was stopped for several traffic violations when police noticed a large bong in the bed of his truck. Steven M. Batten, 24, was arrested for unlawful possession of marijuana. According to police, Batten said, "I only smoke marijuana out of that pipe."

An unknown pyromaniac piled some newspapers on the hood of a 1998 Lexus parked outside of a High Street home in Sag Harbor and set them on fire. The owner found the charred papers and called the village police.

At the East Hampton Point marina in Springs, someone tried to scuttle a boat. The pirate disconnected the bilge pump and left a running hose in the vessel. The owner found the hose and turned off the water. The boat did not sink, but considerable damage was caused.

Someone called the Southampton Village Police to report the discovery of a plastic bag thought to contain an umbilical cord. An officer investigated and found the bag to contain fishing bait.

CONCENSUS ON THE CENSUS
Dear Dan,

Please review your "census statistic" (May 12, 2000) and ask yourself why the White Catholic, Italian Americans categor y is the only one among many groups you felt free to denigrate?

Your imitation of their supposed speech is crude and insensitive and reveals a bias that perhaps you find acceptable to voice in the pages of your paper. I hope this is not the case and that you will be able to admit in print that it was thoughtless, ill-considered "humor," and a lapse of taste.

GREAT ADVENTURE MISADVENTURES
Dear Dan:

We read with interest your article in the June 9th edition in reference to the three Easthampton High School student's counterfeit problem while at Great Adventure. I am enclosing a copy of an article from the New York Times describing our son's death by suicide after being arrested at Great Adventure and the school's refusal to transport him home. Obviously Riverhead School District failed in their duties but we also feel that Great Adventure's handling of our son's incident seems to form a pattern. Considering that Great Adventure is closed to the public when they have these Physics days, they are well aware that every student there is chaperoned. Their failure to contact our son's chaperones before they had him arrested and taken away by the police, contributed to the tragedy.

Parents and schools need to know how Great Adventure operates! Their security personnel and poor paging system make it a bad place to take students on a field trip.

Please forward us any information that is at your disposal given your investigative powers and please feel free to offer up our names and phone numbers to the families involved.

WEEKEND DRIVERS DRIVING YOU CRAZY?
Dear Dan,

I have been spending time out here for the past five or six years, until this year. After graduating college and joining my best friend in some business ventures we rented a house in East Hampton on our own. I am a bit worried for many out here on the East End, and a bit confused as to why more articles are not written about the way people drive out here! It seems to me, that there are way too many people worried about where the next antique shop is or what friends of theirs are walking down Main Street than what is going on in front of them on the road. We recently purchased motorcycles, and I refuse to go out on mine unless others are with me... in fear an antique crazy weekender will run me down! I personally think a big article in your paper might bring some attention to people. I pray for myself and others that a safe summer can be enjoyed, but with the way things are looking, I am just waiting for an accident to happen to myself or my friend....do you have any interest in trying to pursuade those on the road out here to have some manners? After all, even Billy Joel has so much patience!'

Thanks,
Kevin

The Music Festival of the Hamptons

The Music Festival of the Hamptons is in its fifth year. A few short years ago there were no live classical music events in the Hamptons. Now we have concert series, Pianofest, and many others. An extraordinary concert series is aptly titled, The Music Festival of the Hamptons. It's not hard to understand with great talent living in our midst like Lucas Foss. Lucas Foss is the artistic director of the Music Festival. This year's series will run from July 7th-July 22nd. New, this year, are family concerts on weekend afternoons, with performances and informal presentations by distinguished artists and members of their immediate families.

The concerts take place in a tent on Snake Hollow Road and at Guild Hall in East Hampton.

This year's Music Festival is dedicated to the memory of pianist Benno Moiseiwitsch, great uncle of the Festival's president and founder, Eleanor Sage Leonard, who's love of music and who's unending energy have made this dream a reality. Last year's series of concerts were dedicated to the late Elaine Benson.

The opening night gala features Lucas Foss and Elysium. Tickets are $25- unreserved and $50 reserved seating. There will be a cocktail reception before hand. To attend the cocktail reception and have a reserved seat costs $100-. The best idea is to attend the cocktail party, dinner and concert series. A season pass that gets you in to all the concerts, the opening night cocktail party and dinner costs $275-. Hard to pass up!

The opening night concert includes Haydn String Quartet in E flat, Mozart Divertimento in E flat, and Shumann Piano Quintet in E flat.

It would be impossible to single out all the high points of the Festival. It all sounds wonderful. July 8th is billed as a family concert. It starts at 5pm and features Richard Stoltzman and family, performing Gershwin's, "Porgy and Bess" Suite, Poulenc Sonata. Also included will be selections by Bach, Debussey, Monk, and others. It's followed by a concert starting at 8pm, "Mr. Gershwin Goes to Washington".

The list goes on. Look for the Festival program with a landscape painting by April Gornik on the cover, available at most local businesses throughout the Hamptons.

The concerts run through July 22nd. For more information or tickets call, 1-800-644-4418 or check out www.culturefinder.com. The office is located at 33 Flying Point Road, Suite 206, Southampton, NY 11968.

YOU'RE PAYING HOW MUCH TO SELL YOUR HOME?

The commission that your real estate company is charging to sell your house is probably a hefty percentage of what your house is worth. At Help-U-Sell®, we have a different approach: a fee-for-services structure that allows you to choose the services you need - and pay for only the services you use. With the Help-U-Sell concept, you could save thousands of dollars when you buy or sell your next home.

DEFINING THE ART OF REAL DEVELOPMENT

We're not just about selling houses ...

We're introducing a new program . . . a commitment to community.

Over the past twenty five years we've worked hard to earn our reputation as the area's leader in luxury home sales. Throughout that time we've also worked hard to make the Westhampton Beach area the best possible place to live -- through continuous support of our worthy local charities and not for profit organizations. Now you have an opportunity to participate by listing your home or property for sale as an exclusive with Norma Reynolds Realty! At closing we will donate -- in your name -- to one of these local causes, either Family Counseling Services, the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center, the Breast Health Center at Southampton Hospital, Meals on Wheels or East End Hospice. Receive the benefits of an exclusive Norma Reynolds listing -- our extensive marketing and advertising programs and our dynamic selling team -- and know that you're also lending a helping hand. Call us today, we look forward to meeting you!

Local Hot Potato Wows Them In New York City

Peconika. Even the most discriminating New Yorkers are just amazed by this uniquely-blended vodka, made with Bridgehampton potatoes and select grains. Distilled four times, each time from the purest center cut and charcoal filtered, it's sublimely smooth, crystal clean, world-class vodka that makes all proud to pour it:

"Peconika is the best of the best. I never dreamt those wonderful potato fields in Bridgehampton would produce a vodka of such incredible character."
- Michael Aaron, Sherry-Lehmann

"High-end, super premium vodka, distilled four times and charcoal-filtered to ensure a silken texture."
- Marcelle Fischler, The New York Times

"Peconika has a uniqueness to it. It's a quality product that competes on an international level."
- Matthew McCartney, Gramercy Tavern

"We all agree that Peconika, New York's only premium vodka, is a natural for our perfect pour."
- Larry Forgione, An American Place

"We are extremely thrilled about Peconika. It's clean and crisp, and one of the smoothest, if not THE smoothest vodka, I have tasted."
- John Mautone, Dylan Prime

Rated
The #1 Tasting Vodka In The World.

In 1998, the Beverage Testing Institute of Chicago conducted a blind taste test of more than 80 vodkas. They awarded points based on smoothness, nose, and most importantly, taste. Of all the vodkas, Grey Goose® Vodka emerged victorious, receiving 96 points out of a possible 100.

Founded in 1981, the Beverage Testing Institute conducts tests in a specially designed lab that minimizes external factors and maximizes panelists' concentration. The Institute selects judges based on their expertise, and its tasting and scoring procedures are widely praised as the best in the industry.
